A MOTHER FOR A MINUTE

It was close to midnight. At the switchboard in a small town telephone office sat a lone operator answering an occasional call. "Number, please? . . . Thank you.— Number, please. Number, please!" But on this call, no request for a number was heard. Instead, a child's voice sobbed, "Mummy, please come home. Come home, mummy, I'se seared!"

Noting the telephone number, the operator said, "All right, dear, you go back to bed. I'm coming home right away."

Then-quickly-she looked up the address of the telephone . . . then the number of the telephone next door. She called that number. Did the neighbor know where the child's mother might be? She did ... oh, she was right there? Then-but you can guess the rest-except this:

That operator of ours is mighty child who was "scared".

And it occurs to us that even a grown-up can feel a little safer-a little more secure both day and night when there's a telephone in the home. The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.
