Houser, Found Guilty, Draws Prison Term; Manslaughter Case Continued

Although no court was held on election day, the trial of the criminal docket for the regular May term of Court proceeded swiftly this week, and the only case remaining to be tried before the session closes is one in which three Philipsburg men are charged with this Thursday morning.

The only remaining case to be disposed of, one in which Judge Ivan Walker was interested before his elevation to the bench, will go to trial Monday morning before Judge Uttley, of Mifflin county, before the first case for the May civil term is called.
