DOWN BUT NOT OUT
When trials and troubles surround you
Don't never sit down and pout.
Put up your chin; put on a grin
And say "I might be down but not out."

For we all have our share of trouble
Not one of us is exempt.
We never know just what we can do
Until we have made an attempt.
Today everything may run smooth-ly
Tomorrow all may be wrong.
Take that frown from your face,
and in its place
Try humming a little song.
A song will chase away the shadows
And you wonder what it all about.
Then put up your chin, give us a grin
And say "I might be down but not out."
