Moves to Check 'Shovel Leaning'

State WPA Director Issues Orders For Full Return For Every Dollar Spent

J. Banks Hudson, Pennsylvania WPA director, cracked the administrative whip yesterday in an order intended to check loafing on work relief projects.

WPA directors in the state's 16 districts were instructed to stamp out "shovel leaning."

Hudson said he was demanding one dollar's worth of work for every dollar spent.

One of the first to act on Hudson's orders was Thomas F. Kennedy, chief of Lackawanna, Wayne, Wyoming, Pike and Susquehanna counties.

At Scranton Saturday, Kennedy and his chief engineer, Harold Swift, warned their general foreman that loafing on projects must be stopped.

Kennedy also had announced previously that he would move to end drinking of intoxicants on the job.

"That's a standing order," Hudson said. "That is one thing we can fire a man for without being accused for all sorts of things like reprisals and coercion. If we catch a man drinking, he's through."

Kennedy went a step further with his foremen by making them responsible for educating their workers who are not used to manual labor.

"Many men on highway projects are young and never held a pick or shovel in their hands before they got their present jobs," he said. "Your supervisory workers should educate them."

Anglers Harassed By Vicious Owls on Stream Near Town

Two mean-tempered owls have been making things disagreeable for anglers in Logan Park, near the Wagner Mill, just south of Bellefonte, for the past several weeks.

One angler described his experience as follows: "I was standing along the stream casting out over a deep pool just after dusk when I heard an unearthly screeching above me, and a moment later a dark object rushed past my face. An instant later the screeching and blur of movement were repeated. It wasn't long before I discovered two owls perched in a nearby tree, and before I had time to do much about it both made a dive for me, screeching at the top of their lungs. The first dive had unnerved me to such extent that the second invitation from the owls to leave the vicinity was hardly necessary."

The tale recalls a similar one originating from the Houseville area last year. A large owl seen scolding chills up anglers' spines after dusk by diving over their heads, striking their hats, and emitting shrill cries.

POMONA GRANGE NEWS

A very enjoyable Pomona meeting was held May 28th as scheduled, with about two hundred fifty patrons attending the three sessions of the day. This group of Centre county Granges met at "Auto-Port," a beautiful new building located just east of State College on Route 322. Lovely scenery, modern conveniences and fine hospitality exhibited by the manager and by Victor Grange, as host, helped to make the day one to be remembered.

The morning session opened at 10:00 with a fine crowd on hand. This session was devoted mainly to Pomona and subordinate Grange business and suggestions. A delicious dinner of chicken and noodles, served by the Victor Grange, with a variety of good things brought by the patrons was thoroughly enjoyed, all having a very peaceful and satisfied appearance at close of the meal.

The afternoon session opened with an address of welcome by Miss Margaret Glenn of Victor Grange and the response by Mrs. Burkholder of Progress Grange. This was followed by an effective Memorial service in charge of the Chaplain, Mrs. Metta Miles, assisted by court ladies, Dorothy Markle, Bessie Johnson and Mays Harpster. Mrs. Harry Confer, economics chairman, gave an interesting report at this time. The theme for the day was Prov. 4:7, "Wisdom is the principal thing therefore, get wisdom and with all thy getting get understanding." The lecturer's period, in charge of Pomona Lecturer Phoebe Chronister, began with numbers by our Pomona orchestra, of which we are justly proud. This was followed by the Pomona choir, all in old-fashioned costume, led by Chorister H. M. Miles, who conducted an old fashioned singing school which was a fine beginning for the numbers that followed. The program of the day, based on "Education One Hundred Years Ago," opened with Episode I, "Letting the School," showing a school committee of 1833 selecting a teacher from a group of candidates. Following this was presented Episode II, "The School of 1833," after which a spelling bee was conducted by Ernest Frank, a box of spelling blocks being the prize. Episode III was the dramatization of "Governor Wolf Signs the Common Schools Act of 1834." All these scenes were enacted in old fashioned attire and were directed by Paul Stephens, of Baileyville Grange, and Mrs. Candace Love, of Howard Grange. We were delighted to have present with us our Worthy State Lecturer, Mrs. Ira Gross, of Johnstown, who gave us a short address on grange activities and interests. A number of our Clinton county friends were also with us and we thoroughly enjoyed their interest and attendance. After a fashion parade of those in old fashioned costume this session was closed with a spirited rendering of "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

A large crowd partook of the supper served by the manager of "Auto Port," enjoyed the conversations and friendly contacts of the hour and showed interest in an exhibit of old books which included a German Bible, poems, history, grammar and other school books of many years ago.

The evening session opened with choir and group singing and a short business session. The Fifth Degree, with special regard to beauty and detail, was conferred on a class of twenty-six candidates. The third episode in the program on "Education," showing the scene of the House of Representatives in 1835, "Thaddeus Stevens Defends the Common Schools Act," was effectively presented in appropriate costume and detail and was directed by Mrs. Luella Cheesman, of Logan Grange. A picture of the "Boy Christ" was presented by Miss Evelyn Leathers of Howard, who was attired in a lovely costume of about eighty years ago. Mrs. Mary Pringle, Port Matilda Grange, received a prize of a miniature ivory book, "The Ten Commandments," for exhibiting the oldest book, one of the year 1784.

The Virginia Reel, by a group in old style costume, closed the program after which Pomona Master, L. E. Biddle, conducted the closing ceremonies in the fifth degree. All present received a very welcome treat of ice cream from the Auto-Port managers.

Altogether we found this a day of pleasant memories and one especially enjoyed due to the fine cooperative spirit and willingness to serve in any capacity as was manifested by all present.
