AN OLD FISH

In England, in olden times, rich men owning land where there was no river or creek would make lakes which were supplied by mountain streams and springs and stock the lakes with whichever kind of fish they wanted. Some of these lakes are very large and deep. It is on record of a carp that was captured in one of these large lakes, that measured nineteen feet in length and weighed 300 pounds. When cutting the fish up they found a ring with engraving on, after thoroughly cleaning the ring they were able to read the engraving. This is what the engraving was "I am the fish which was first of all put into this lake by the hand of the Governor of the University of Frederick II, October 5, 1230. If the engraving is genuine, the fish was 228 years old when captured. Some years ago scientists discovered fish in a lake in northern California. The fish is called "hogfish." The fish are blind, its head is thrown into the water a distance away. They can tell it and go straight to it. The particular thing about the fish is they have three (3) hearts, of which one is in the tail. The writer does not know if the fish is fit to eat or not.

IN CASE OF ACCIDENT

Things to do quickly—Always apply the prone-pressure method of resuscitation (as used in drowning cases) in all cases of electric shock, as shock, smoke shock, and all other suffocations.

Baking soda paste is a good emergency treatment for burns.

Cool off the victim of sunstroke as quickly as possible—especially the head—with cold compresses or a cool bath. No stimulants.

For snakebite, tie a cord around the arm or leg a short distance above the bite. With a razor blade make a cross-cut clear through the skin over each fang mark. Apply suction with mouth for at least half hour. Keep patient quiet; the more he exercises, the more quickly the poison reaches his brain by reason of stimulated circulation. Always know in advance the nearest location of a supply of anti-venom. Call a doctor.

If a dog bites you, wash the wound with running water; apply tincture of iodine, bandage. See doctor.

To stop bleeding from cuts on the arms, hands, or legs, apply a tourniquet or bandage a handbreadth below the armpit or at the groin and twist until the flow of blood is stopped. Loosen every 15 minutes and allow to remain loose after bleeding has stopped. This method applies to artery bleeding when blood comes in spurts.

For vein bleeding, which comes in a steady flow, apply a clean compress over the wound, bandage snugly, and apply pressure directly over the dressing. Elevate the wounded parts.

Extinguish fires in clothing by throwing a blanket, rug, or coat around the victim.

No scratch is too small to cause tetanus. A 3 1/2-per cent solution of iodine, mercurchrome, or alcohol may be used. Children should be fully instructed to report any injury for prompt cleaning and treatment.

SAW GETTYSBURG BATTLE

Readers who followed the articles in a Philadelphia newspaper by May Garlich describing the story of the Battle of Gettysburg as seen by the late Miss Mary McAllister, will be interested in knowing that Miss McAllister, was a great-aunt of Mrs. George Denithorne, 632 West Beaver avenue, State College, formerly of Bellefonte.

The boy telegraph operator, described in the articles as "Hugh," was Hugh Scott, an uncle of Mrs. Denithorne.
