

Echoes From the Past

FIFTY YEARS AGO

A party consisting of Misses Crittenden, Strickland, Luckenbach and Garman and Messrs Jenkins and Davis, picnicked at the intersection last Tuesday. All report having a good time.

The next centennial should be that of the settlement on Spring Creek of Jacob Rouser, which occurred early in 1788. The old man moved from Annapolis, now Lebanon county, and settled at Houserville where many of his descendants reside.

Among the members of Company "B" in turmoil and preparation. They are getting ready to leave Friday for Conneaut Lake where they will spend ten days of exhilaration, enjoying the breezes as they are wafted softly across the water. They also will undergo the rigid discipline of military life.

The creamery at Spring Mills is doing excellent work. On an average of 900 pounds of butter is made daily, although some days the total is 1600 pounds. The butter is churned in two large churns, one holding 300 and the other 250 gallons. In a clean, cool room the butter is thoroughly worked and neatly packed into boxes for shipment.

Thursday evening last an enjoyable event took place at the residence of Mrs. Mary Tipton. Howard, Miss Frank Tipton, of that place, and Mr. Edward McEntire, of Tusculuma, Mo., were united in marriage, with the Rev. Mr. King of the M. E. church officiating. The newly married couple will remain in Howard for a month, and then go to their Missouri home where Mr. McEntire will engage in the profession of law.

LEFT HOME AND IS WANTED: Monday evening, July 16, Mrs. Hannah C. Royer, the wife of George E. Royer, who lives a mile west of Millheim, mysteriously and without cause left her home and a family of five small children and has not been heard of since. Her husband, who is distracted with grief and anxiety for his wife's welfare, offers a reward of $50 for any reliable and certain information as to her whereabouts. The woman is of medium height, weighs about 150 pounds, is well set, has sandy hair, gray eyes and the bridge her nose has a slight Roman bend. Her age is 40 years.

A young child of Daniel Gallagher, who buried his wife several months ago, died Saturday of last week and was buried in the Catholic cemetery, Sunday. The crops of this county have never been better. Two more years like this will put our farmers on their feet again. A Miss Rocky, living several miles east of Bellefonte, died Friday last and was buried in the Union cemetery at Zion, Sunday. W. S. Muser, who in a short time, has a fine new bus running between Millheim and Coburn. A small child of W. S. Wian died Tuesday evening from what was supposed to have been cholera infantum. Keep your girls off the streets at night if you want to save sorrow and shame. There are too many young girls running at large when they should be under the parental roof. John Conner, who resides on Logan Street, is dangerously ill with pleurisy. He has been confined to his bed for several weeks.

John Treasurer, Bellefonte taxi man, had purchased a fine town Maxwell for use in his business. It was a fine car and was expected to increase its owner's business considerably.

Clarence Zeigler, for some time employed as assistant clerk in the offices of the County Commissioners, resigned that post to accept employment in the offices of the Titan Moke Company.

Daniel Grove, Centre County Commissioner, was appointed to purchase first class horses and mules for the government. The animals were to be stabled at Centre Hall until they passed inspection by government authorities.

Herbert Hull, Mrs. Clayton Baney and Miss Allen Hull, of Niagara Falls, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Bickett, having been called here by the serious illness of Miss Mary Hull, a sister of Mr. Hull and Mrs. Baney.

Several aged Bellefonte residents were seriously ill. Mr. R. Johnson's father was confined to his home on Spring Street. The condition of Matthias Thall, who had suffered a stroke, was steadily growing morose and Henry Haupt was reported to be sinking.

John Derstine and John McNichols, members of the crew of the transport Leviathan, formerly the German liner "Vatariend," spent a few days' furlough at their homes in Bellefonte. The boys had made more than a half dozen trips to Europe aboard the ship as it shuttled back and forth taking troops to France.

Wallace N. Igen, farmer east of Centre Hall, was the fourth patron of the Centre Hall post office to buy the limit $1000 worth of War Savings Stamps. Others who had purchased that amount were: Messrs A. Ripka and E. M. Huyet, representing the town, and Jacob Shearer and Mr. Igen, representing the rural area.

Sugar rations placed in force by the Government called for the following limitations: 3 pounds per person per month, of 288 teaspoons, three-fourths pound per person per week, or 72 teaspoons. Daily rations per person were: 10 and two-sevenths teaspoons. For breakfast, 3 teaspoons; for lunch, 1 teaspoon.

George D. Johnston, of Howard, was honored on his 77th birthday when his children and grandchildren gathered at his home for a family dinner. Among those who attended, in addition to his daughter, Lulu, who acted as his housekeeper, were: J. K. Johnston, Esq. and family; and H. G. Johnston, Esq. and family; Hugh Boyle and family, of Hazleton; and J. P. Foreman and family, of Howard.

A spark from a chimney set fire to the roof of the house occupied by the Samuel Gulewite family on West Beaver Street, Sunday night. A wood fire had been built to prepare a meal, and several shingles burned off the roof before Messrs. Cuy and James Lee threw water on the blaze from ladders. A fire alarm was sounded, but the blaze was under control before the companies arrived on the scene.

HOLTS HOLLOW Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Confer and family, of Niagara Falls, spent a few days' relatives in this State. J. T. Watson and Green Walker spent a few days fishing in the mountain streams. Orvis Watson and son joined them on Saturday and returned home on Sunday.

Eddie Burd of Pine Grove, visited home folk over Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Leif Fitzgerald and family entertained quite a number of relatives on Thursday evening in honor of their son, Raymond's birthday anniversary. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Petzer and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Merl Lucas and family, Mrs. Name Lucas and son Kenneth, William Lucas of Jacksonville. Ice cream and cake were served as refreshments.

Naomi Lucas spent the weekend with home folks at Pleasant Gap. Mrs. Charles Poorman is spending a vacation with relatives at Clearfield and expects to visit Atlantic City.

Carl Farringer and Evelyn Johnson of Johnsbury, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Petzer and daughter, were Sunday callers at the Poorman home. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sheesley and children, Ray Griffin of Stormstown, were Sunday guests at the Orvis Watson home.

Mrs. Agnes Shawley and daughter Grace spent Friday with relatives at this place.

Mrs. John Watson, Nevin Watson, Dickie Fyfe, John and Tommie Conway, were visitors at the M. C. Conner home at Gum Stump on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Switzer Joanne and John Rhoades of Bellefonte, Mrs. Roy Sheesley and sons were callers at the Watson home on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wesley of Clearfield, spent the weekend with home folks.

Mrs. Orvis Watson and son spent Saturday night with relatives at Stormstown.

Mr. Lewis Caseberry, of Howard, while riding his motorcycle near the Forge, Bellefonte, was thrown from the machine and was taken to the Bellefonte Hospital for treatment. It was found he had sustained a dislocation of one arm. It was believed the accident had been caused when the machine's stand fell to the ground, throwing the cycle out of control.

The sun beat with such heat against the side of one of the beehives owned by William J. Wilson, at Howard, that the wax comb inside melted and ran out of the hive. More than a gallon of honey escaped and many bees were drowned in the sticky substance they had worked so hard to gather. Mr. Wilson and T. A. Pletcher opened the hive, cleaned out the melted comb, and gathered up the honey which they covered with twigs and brush to act as a platform for the bees in gathering it and putting it back in place after rebuilding the damaged hive.

Answers to Modern Etiquette

- 1. At the first pause say, "Well, Mrs. Green, I am glad you stopped in to see me." Even this is not guaranteed to work. 2. Yes. No consideration should be made for doing so. She would not be doing the serving if the affair were formal. 3. Yes, always, unless they are in such a position that it is awkward to do so. 4. No. Of course there are exceptions. On a very hot day, and it is merely a family group, or intimate friends, it is often done. 5. It is better to do so, as sometimes the service doors are not inspected regularly. 6. No. Say, "The wife of Dr. Miller," or merely "Mrs. Miller."

Snake Bites Two. Going into the bedroom to find out the reason for her 3-year-old son's fretting, something struck Mrs. Rose Cluser of Monterey, Tenn., on the leg near his bed and, looking down, she saw a copperhead snake writhing away. Pulling back the covers, she found that it had bitten the child on the foot. Both mother and son were made seriously ill.

Sunday School Lesson

RUTH: ADVENTUROUS FAITH. GOLDEN TEXT: "Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God."—Ruth 1: 16. (Lesson Text: The Book of Ruth)

The Book of Ruth was one of the five "rolls" or short writings, which were read in the synagogue on five great days of the Jewish calendar. Ruth was read at the Feast of Pentecost, the harvest festival.

The time of the story goes back nearly twelve centuries before Christ. The date of authorship is not known positively. Some think it was written during the time of Ezra, and was intended as a protest against his harsh policy towards foreigners.

A reading of the Book shows very plainly its tendency to encourage friendliness with those of other races. Its attitude is a long stride from that practiced by the early Israelites, who believed that God wanted them to kill all the Canaanites. Not only does Ruth, the Moabitess, marry the well-to-do Boaz, but she is accepted as a member of the Jewish community and is the ancestress of David, the great King, and the even greater Jesus, the Messiah.

The story given us in the Book of Ruth is simple yet very powerful in its portrayal of understandable human motives, and characteristics. While the Judges ruled Israel, a Jew by the name of Elimelech, with his wife Naomi, and two sons, migrated to Moab. An old legend says that the head of this family was wealthy, and moved away to avoid having to care for the less fortunate during the distress of the famine, probably originated by the famine in the year which later came to this group in their new land. However, it is just as probable that Elimelech had to leave for a more fertile region in order to keep alive, just as those well-known Biblical personages had done.

In Moab, the two sons married. Mahlon to Ruth and Chilion to Orpha. These young women of Moab were worshippers of the regional god, Chemosh, for at that time even the Hebrews recognized that other lands and peoples had their own gods. In the course of time, Elimelech died and the same fate overtook his two sons, leaving Naomi and her daughters-in-law widows. It seems that Naomi regarded the deaths, partly at least, as the punishment for having left their own native land. Naomi decided to return to her people in Bethlehem, her home town, and the two other widows accompanied her on the journey, as was the custom towards a departing guest. The older woman finally told Orpha and Ruth to return to their homes notwithstanding their expressed willingness to go with her, but while Ruth refused to leave Naomi, Orpha did so and we hear no more about her. When Naomi again advised Ruth to stay in her own country, the younger woman uttered the well-known passage contained in the sixteenth and seventeenth verses. Ruth realized that her position among the Jews would be difficult, for they would regard her as a heathen and accursed, but she felt that Naomi was such that she faced this ordeal rather than desert her at the time.

When the two women arrived at Bethlehem the city was interested considerably. The people could hardly believe that this was the same Naomi who had left only ten years before. Ruth seems to have gained the admiration and esteem of her neighbors. In order to secure food for herself and her mother-in-law, Ruth gleaned in the fields of Boaz. The Hebrews had the kindly habit of leaving some of their grain from the crops for the poor and needy and Ruth was taking advantage of this. She attracted the attention of Boaz, who finally married her. The Book throws some interesting light on the social customs of that time.

More is said of Ruth, says Rev. Robert F. Horton. "She was only introduced into Scripture to mark a link in the descent of the kings of Judah—in the descent of the distant Messiah. For her foreign extraction and the improbability of a worshipper of Chemosh becoming the ancestor of the Messiah, and not for her gentle ways of life, and the charms which won the hearts of Boaz, does the figure among women of the Bible. But the hands of inspiration is opulent and delicate in its drawing; and introducing the tale of Ruth for another purpose, it draws the portrait of Ruth in this memorable way, to win the love of the ages, and to be the model for girls to imitate. Her grandson was Jesse, and Jesse was the father of David. Beautiful to us must be every strand of goodness and beauty which made the stock from which, according to the flesh, Jesus came."
