

2 HELD FOR AIDING ESCAPE

BELLEFONTE MAN CHARGED WITH PLOTTING JAIL-BREAK

Third Fugitive Surrenders to Police At Monterey, Va.; Police Claim CCC Boy Admits Holding Bench While Trio Scaled Wall

With the return to Bellefonte of two of the three men who escaped from the Centre County jail on July 29, and with the apprehension of the third fugitive in Virginia, the Sheriff's office after an investigation of the jailbreak, during the weekend arrested a Bellefonte youth on charges of engineering the escape plot, and a Phillipsburg resident on charges of aiding the trio to win their temporary freedom.

Friday morning after Sheriff Keeler and two special deputies returned to Bellefonte from Indianapolis, Indiana, with William Spangler and Harold Walker, who had been taken into custody in that city on charges of riding a freight train, word was received from Monterey, Va., that Glenn Sullenberger, the third member of the trio, had surrendered himself to police in that city.

With all who took active part in the jailbreak once more in custody, Sheriff Harry V. Keeler and other officials at the jail launched an investigation which resulted in the arrest of James Thomas, of Bellefonte, and George Thompson, of Phillipsburg, on charges of aiding three men to scale the 20-foot wall around the exercise yard at the time of the escape. Thomas was serving a short sentence on a disorderly charge, while Thompson, a former Coburn CCC camp member, was charged with Spangler and Walker, and Spangler's brother, George, all members of the same CCC camp, with a series of post-office robberies throughout the central part of the county.

According to stories told jail attaches by Spangler and Walker upon their return from Indianapolis, they and Sullenberger walked to Curtin after scaling the jail wall. At Curtin they boarded a freight train which they rode to Altoona, where they boarded another freight for Chicago. Sullenberger, they said, left them in Chicago, and they continued on to Missouri. They said they were on their way back to Bellefonte to give themselves up.

Cattle Dealers May Invite Prosecution By Overloading Car

A law that at times may be uninitiated motorists, nevertheless carries a penalty of prosecution, governs the transportation of cattle by truck and prohibits undue crowding of animals while being transported from one point to another.

Any trucker who transports live animals must not overload his vehicle to the extent that the animals will suffer thereby. It is also the duty of the trucker when hauling mixed loads to separate the large animals from the small ones by means of a partition, in order to protect the weaker animals from injury.

Attention is directed to this provision of the humane laws in the hope that it will prevent fines being imposed. George C. Glenn, of Bellefonte, agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, declares that all violations of this character reported to him will be prosecuted.

Court Files Opinion In Hartwick Matter

In an opinion filed this week in the case of A. H. Hartwick, for the use of the C. I. T. Corporation, vs. Furl C. Hartwick, executrix of A. H. Hartwick, deceased, Judge Ivan Walker dismissed questions of law raised by the executrix in her affidavit of defense and places the costs on her. The Court gives the executrix permission to file an affidavit of defense as to facts, within fifteen days.

Some time before his death on May 24, 1937, Mr. Hartwick endorsed a note for $1,078.88 and assigned it to the C. I. T. Corporation. The note was to have been paid off in equal monthly installments of $107.88 each, for 12 months. The executrix contended that because the C. I. T. granted several extensions of monthly installments, the rights of the endorser, A. H. Hartwick, were violated and that he was released of liability by such extensions. The court did not uphold this contention.

Editorial: A CANDID CHALLENGE

How ever one may view the controversy between Governor Earle and the Dauphin county court, every fair-minded citizen will share the same feeling as the Governor in his straightforward endeavor to settle the affair, whatever the result, in the open and in full hearing of everyone concerned.

His challenge, issued last week to the District Attorney, if accepted by that official, will immediately break the deadlock in the grand jury proceeding.

With the same earnestness he showed from the beginning, Governor Earle calls upon District Attorney Shelley to arrest him and all others accused of wrong doing, if Shelley has the evidence to warrant it. Isn't that what any honest citizen would do under the circumstances?

Had the Governor waited until later to throw down the gauntlet, he might have been accused of bluffing. But that has been his demand from the outset. His latest challenge cannot be laughed off by the District Attorney or anybody else.

In his address to the people last Thursday night, the Governor pointed out that because of litigation, there can be no "show-down" until late September, if then. Meanwhile the Governor and thirteen of his officials have been declared "suspects" upon charges, the supporting evidence of which is locked up for a grand jury that cannot sit for a month.

The character of that evidence is unknown to the public and is denied the accused. If it is sufficient to warrant the calling of a grand jury, as the Governor asserts, then it should be sufficient on which to base an arrest and a hearing before an aideman. The Governor therefore demands that, in the interest of himself and his associates, and
