DIRECT FROM LEADING STYLE AUTHORITIES

EARLY FALL SEASON AND 1939

Silhouettes

Boxy Swagger silhouettes are favored with a trend to the fitted silhouette in long coats. Bulky coats give a third variation to line trend.

Sleeves and Collars

These show new trends in fur detail... some collars are band effects... and practically all are small. Straight sleeves are leading, although sleeves with cuffs still hold their own.

Shoulders

Shoulders are more modified than last season... squarer but not so puffed. Coats have that square look!

Lengths

Bulky furs vary in length from 26 inches to 38-inch coats, while the 40-inch box coat proves the leader. The 3/4 length coat is also among the leading lengths.

High-Lighted Furs

In the long-haired peltry skunk leads the march!... in short or long coats and contrasting trims. Considerable accent is placed on brown furs... including minks, jap minks, mink-dyed fitch, mink-dyed muskrat, and mink-dyed squirrel. Grey furs are also being given the ever-standard and practical Seal's... Sealine dyed coney, Hudson Seal-dyed muskrat and Alaska Seal are also being given much attention due to their adaptability to the smart tailored lines. Persians in both black and grey should not be overlooked... and the new sheared beaver for sportswear is "tops."

Police Inspect County Prisons

Lantz, of the headquarters unit in Bellefonte, and Corporal Robert Raymond, of the Pleasant Gap sub-station. After a careful inspection of all the institutions in the county, they reported that cleanliness and humane treatment of prisoners is the rule in this county. They found no evidence that torture or brutal treatment of any kind is used in disciplining prisoners.

Governor Earle ordered a state-wide inspection of penal institutions after it was learned that four men found dead in the Philadelphia county prison punishment cell had been literally roasted alive, and that more than two score other prisoners had been confined for long periods in the super-heated cell block.

WILLIAMSBURG MAN KILLED AS CAR WRECKED

Harry C. Coch, 25, of Williamsburg, Pa., died almost instantly early Monday morning when his automobile piled up against a concrete bridge abutment along route 22 a short distance west of Water Street. Coch, driving a sedan in the direction of Water Street, suffered a broken neck, a crushed chest and fractures of five ribs.

Dr. W. B. West, Huntingdon county coroner, said Coch died within 10 minutes of the accident which occurred about 4 o'clock.

Few details of the fatality are known, but two witnesses reported seeing Coch pull sharply to the left as he neared the bridge. The witnesses, Carl Boyer and Peter Lutz, both of Meyerstown, R. D., Lebanon county, reported that Coch was traveling eastward at a high rate of speed and for some undetermined reason jerked the machine toward the bridge.

Court Sustains College Burgess

Borough, were denied an appeal from a decision by State College Burgess Wilbur F. Leitzeil and were sentenced to pay fines of $10 each, and the costs of prosecution.

According to stories told by prosecution witnesses, including Burgess Leitzeil, Police Officer Martin L. Kauffman and W. B. Keeler, the four truckers violated a borough ordinance by failing to have endgates in their trucks to prevent dirt from sliding out onto the streets. The truckers contended that they had endgates in their trucks when they were hauling dirt, but that at the time of their arrest they were hauling large stones which could not fall out unless the truck beds were raised.

Fred Casher, of Phillipsburg, was in court on charges of desertion and non-support, assault and battery, and assault on the peace, preferred by his wife, Margaret Casher. Mrs. Casher testified that they have six children, from 9 to 20 years old and that she and her husband have been separated since March 1937. She said that in August, 1938, Casher went to the house where she was staying and grabbed her by the neck, threw her to the ground and otherwise mistreated her, threatening at the same time to kill her. Mrs. Margaret Moore, of Sandy Ridge, near whose home the assault is said to have taken place, substantiated Mrs. Casher's statements.

Casher, who is in the coal business with his father, admitted having been "rough" in his treatment of his wife and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of assault and battery. On this count he was sentenced to pay a fine of $1, the costs of prosecution and to serve 30 days in the county jail. The threats charge was removed, and on the non-support charge he was ordered to pay 15 per cent of his income for the support of his wife and the three children under 16 years of age. He was required to post a $500 bond to assure payment.

James A. Gross, of Phillipsburg, charged with desertion and non-support, was found guilty and was sentenced to pay his wife, Edna, $20 per month for the support of herself and her child. An approved bond of $500 is to be posted by Gross to guarantee payments, the Court stipulated.

Robert G. Haines, of Phillipsburg, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of false pretense preferred by Donald Knarr, of Bellefonte. The charge rested on the sale of a book costing $3.98, by Haines to Donald Knarr, on an order bearing Frank Knarr's name. The prosecutor claimed the name had been forged. Haines testified he offered to settle out of court but that the offer was refused. The Court placed Haines under probation on one year's payment of the costs of prosecution and $20 for the use of the county.

Charged with threats and disorderly conduct, Edward Starrett, of Phillipsburg, was directed to post a bond of $500, with approved security to keep the peace, and to pay the costs of prosecution. Joseph Cunkle, of Phillipsburg, testified that he was standing in front of his rooming house about 4:30 p. m. August 13, when Starrett, intoxicated, came up to him, cursed him vilely, and threatened to kill him before 5 o'clock. Cunkle said he knows Starrett for some time, but never was afraid of him until his outburst of August 13. Paul Mays, of Phillipsburg, who was with Cunkle at the time, told substantially the same story.

Starrett took the whole business on the chin. "What they say must be so—I don't remember," he declared. Court attendants reported he has quite an impressive record of minor offenses, and that he doesn't pay the costs when he is before the Court. The man is 52 years old, is unmarried, and when asked whether he drank a good bit, he answered: "I spend my money."

The final case of the session was that of Charles Ancla, 55, of Phillipsburg, who was charged with threats to kill his wife, Katie Ancla and two of her companions. Mrs. Ancla testified that on May 23 she and Mr. and Mrs. Delmer Schramm came out of a Philadelphia hotel and walked across the street to the Schramm car. Mr. Ancla saw them, went to the car and threatened to kill all three, she said. Later he went to Mrs. Ancla's home where he tried to get his daughter to let him in the house. Mrs. Ancla's story was supported by Delmer Schramm and the daughter, Anna Hopper Ancla.

The defendant said everything went well in his family as long as he had steady work, but when his earnings fell off, trouble began. Ancla was found guilty of the charge and was directed to post an approved bond of $500 to keep the peace for two years.

Philadelphia, was his brother's best man.

Immediately after the service a wedding luncheon was served for the bridal party and members of the two families at the Diack home, 744 Bellefonte avenue, after which Mr. and Mrs. Curtin left on a honeymoon trip of unannounced destination. On their return they will reside at 127 West Linn street, Bellefonte.

State Approves Plans For County Poor Home

their control, are dependent upon the county for a home.

The county's application to the Federal Government for an estimated grant of $104,276.25 has been approved by the President to aid in the construction of the home. The county is to sell bonds for an amount not to exceed $127,448.75 as their estimated share of the total cost.

Before October 1 ground is to be broken and construction begun on the structure, which is to be a simple yet dignified two-story and basement brick fireproof steel-framed building, trimmed with limestone. The west end of the building is to be occupied by the male patients, with 27 bed patients on the second floor and 32 ambulatory cases housed on the ground floor. The east end of the building will be the women's quarters, with provisions for 18 bed patients on the second floor and 21 ambulatory cases on the first floor. Most of the bed rooms contain four beds, with a small metal cabinet for each patient.

On each floor and at either end of the building are located large well-lighted day rooms in which the patient may while away the hours in listening to the radio or talking to the men have the use of a recreation room in the basement. This room is equipped with billiard tables, check-boards and similar games, while the women may occupy a sewing room in their end of the building.

Men and women are assembled in a centrally located chapel to listen to sermons or programs presented for their entertainment. On either side of the chapel are located separate dining rooms for the men and women.

The first and second floors are connected by three sets of stairs, one passenger elevator and one dumb-waiter. A large double-exposed kitchen, electrically equipped, connects the two dining rooms on the first floor and a diet kitchen on the second floor. Immediately back of the kitchen is a central wing area for the living quarters for the superintendent, consisting of two bedrooms and bath, combination living and dining room, and kitchenette. Two dining rooms are to be used by the staff and help.

A quarry-tile-surfaced deck is provided over the kitchen and superintendent's quarters on which bed patients may be placed for sunbaths and airing. Beds or wheel chairs may be wheeled directly onto the sun deck.

The basement contains a large machinery-equipped laundry, boiler room, coal storage, work rooms, storage rooms, men's recreation room, morgue and admission room where new patients are admitted.

The building will embody a number of unique features. The day rooms, recreation rooms and all bed rooms are wired for the installation of radios, or so that equipment can be installed for a centrally controlled broadcasting unit in order that either radio programs or phonograph recordings may be sent to any or all rooms in which patients are confined to their beds.

The chapel is so wired that talking or motion pictures may be shown in the day rooms. Additional equipment. An approved portable projection booth will be necessary in order to use certain type films. The chapel is further planned so that the bed patients may be wheeled onto a balcony to listen to programs from a wheel chair without the necessity of taking them down stairs.

A green house is provided at the rear of the building in which flowers and early plants may be grown by the patients who are able and interested in planting small gardens. The Commissioners have provided ample ground for encouraging gardening activities among the patients. Every effort has been made to make the building easy to operate, keep sanitary and free from unnecessary upkeep. As unnecessary moldings have been eliminated, floor and wall coverings have been selected with the idea of long wear without costly replacements and repairs. The central office of the County Home is to keep patients happy, contented, and interested in some activity, such as some small task, listening to radio programs, or playing games. The more content the inmates of the home are, the less the county will have to spend for attendants, and the less difficulty there will be in managing the affairs of the institution.

Undine Member Burned By Rope

rope which passes through a safety belt fastened about his waist. He controls the speed of the descent by squeezing with his gloved right hand a rope which passes through the back of the safety belt. In his left hand he carries a life belt.

DeLallo stated that as he began the act Monday at Ridgway, he hurriedly picked up the protective glove and placed it on his left hand instead of his right. He didn't discover the mistake until he had started to hurtle down to the sidewalk. It was then a case of grasping the slinging control rope in his bare hand, or crashing at full speed on the sidewalk.

As he attempted to control his speed on the drop DeLallo said he felt his hand burning as the rope passed rapidly through it. Trying to prevent too serious a burn, he allowed himself to drop faster than usual, and shortly before reaching the sidewalk, applied full force with his hand to prevent serious injuries when he struck bottom.

Members of the ladder team noted that when he struck the sidewalk with more speed than he'd ever used in the act before, he "bounced" a little, but regardless of his injury he insisted in continuing with the rest of the schedule before seeking treatment.

After the show he went to a Ridgway drugist who applied first aid remedies. Upon arriving in Bellefonte DeLallo had the burns treated at the offices of a physician. The hand was placed in a splint, and the physician declared that it will be ten days or two weeks before DeLallo can resume his duties at the Federal Match Company plant.

The demonstration by the Undine team at Ridgway was witnessed by a huge throng of people attracted to the scene by much publicity given the event. Other members of the team who participated in the events were: Albert Kniesly, Frank Morrison, Joseph Kane, Steve Rodavich, John O'Leary, Morris Morrison, Vince Bauer, Clair Miller, Luther Smith, Sam Conifer, Merrill Waite, Carl Moerschbacher, Harry McCartney and Earl Rocky. The team is captained by Charles Saxton. John Gillen is the Undine chief.

Disposal Plant Is Assured

will function separately, with separate management, accounts, and duties. The Authority's sole purpose will be to administer all matters pertaining to the disposal plant. The plant revenues will be received from the taxpayers, in the form of assessments or charges—the exact manner of levying taxes for sewage disposal not having been determined at this time. Preliminary surveys by Council on the probable cost to taxpayers indicate that the operation and maintenance of the plant, together with sufficient income to retire the bonds over a period of years, will cost each user of the plant's facilities not less than $12 annually. This, however, is only the roughest kind of estimate and is not to be taken as a definite figure. It is believed that $12 will be closer to the minimum rate than the maximum.

Plans prepared for the disposal plant here include both primary and secondary stages of treatment, or in other words, a complete plant. At first only a primary treatment plant was considered, but the State Department of Health insisted upon a complete treatment of all borough sewage, so the original plans had to be changed to conform with that mandate.

'Mournful Sound' From Corn Field

Intention To Wrest Large Number of Congressional Seats from Party in Power

One of the most amusing mid-summer antics of the season happened the other day at the Republican free lunch counter in the Indiana corn field.

Either under the influence of mellowed "corn," or under the inspiration of the prairie breezes, the Republican High Command reached the prediction stage. After screwing courage to the sticking point the astute and usually rational keynote speaker, who is prominently mentioned as a serious contender for the Republican Presidential nomination in 1940, hoped for a net gain of 40 seats in the House. Apparently realizing that this claim, even if it should come true, would still leave the Republican minority as a helpless little band of futile objectors doubled his bid, but no one redoubled. To evaluate these claims it is more than worthwhile to refer back to their July and August predictions in 1936 when a net gain of 100 was conservative. November frosts, as well as November election returns, are pretty hard on corn fields and August predictions.

The Congressional campaign of 1938 has reached the point where it is possible with reasonable accuracy to estimate the probable trends. The Democratic National Congressional Committee has completed its survey of conditions in each Congressional District in the United States. As a result, we find that in at least 132 districts the Republicans will either have no candidate or will receive less than 15 per cent of the Democratic-Republican vote. As a matter of fact, the Democratic Party is the only party having an active existence in every Congressional District in every State.

There are but 5 sitting Republicans from the entire half of the United States west of the Oklahoma, Kansas, Dakota line. Four of these Republicans come from heavily Democratic Districts and support many Democratic policies. The fifth is an active Townsended. There are but 3 Republicans now in Congress from south of the Ohio River-Pennsylvania line.

In these entire areas representing 161 seats, our party will suffer no net loss. In fact, two seats now held by Republicans will probably be won by our candidates. As for the remainder of the country our surveys show that we will not lose a single seat on National issues. Our total loss will, under no condition now existing, exceed 25, and we believe that it will be the smallest net loss in the history of mid-term elections in the second administration of any President of any party.

In every State in which registration is required, the Democratic registration has materially increased over 1936, and that increase is continuing. With two or three minor exceptions the Republicans have suffered losses, both numerical and relative in their registration. In primaries held to date 205 Democratic members of the 75th Congress have been renominated, and only 12 have been unelected. This indicates that the party members are almost universally well pleased with the records made by our Democratic Congressmen. Records of past primary elections definitely indicate that any major overturn of Congressional majorities first shows itself in primary defeats of sitting members.

There is every reason to believe that in the House of Representatives the 76th Congress will open with an extremely high percentage of its present members answering the first roll call.

16 New Members In School Band

John's Lutheran Sunday school, a gift of $25 which has been applied to the uniform fund.

Miss Stella Confer, one of the band's three drum majors, is recovering from a fractured ankle received in a motor accident during the summer, and will soon be able to take her place in the band. The other two drum majors, Miss Dorothy Kline and Miss Jean Bloomquist, also will be in their accustomed places during the coming year.

Regular practices and frequent appearances during the vacation have worked wonders for the band's musical and marching abilities, and the organization shows promise of enlarging its reputation as one of the best all-round high school outfits in the State.
