According to police, Bickle was in the habit of going to the Hess store during the noon hour while Mrs. Hess was alone in the establishment. He would order an item which he knew was kept in the back room, and when Mrs. Hess went back to fill the order, Bickle, it is claimed, would open the register and help himself.

Police report that they have received numerous complaints about Bickle's conduct in the past, and that on several occasions he has had minor scrapes with the law.

In Business Here 40 Years

then 19 years old) opened their studio in the right sign of the moon or something, for shortly after they began business the penny photo craze swept the United States in the same manner that Mah Jong, Tom Thumb golf courses, Monopoly, jigsaw puzzles and Repeal have stormed through the United States since.

Penny photos, selling at fifteen cents for fifteen photos, sold like wildfire and the two young photographers kept the "birdie" pecking steadily in their studio. The snaps were about one inch square and practically all the blushing maidens and dashing swains in the early years of this century raised high jinx stealing and trading pictures among themselves. It was good clean fun and everyone enjoyed it. When the penny photo craze died out—as all fads do—the Mallory studio records showed that they had turned out just 350,000 of the pictures, which was an astounding achievement for an infant business enterprise.

In 1902 Mr. Taylor, brother of Miss May Taylor of Bellefonte, and now affiliated with the Green Five and Ten Cent stores in New York, withdrew from the business and Mr. Mallory became sole owner. He moved to the present quarters of the studio in Crider's Exchange building and has been located there ever since.

The year 1902 is an important one to Mr. Mallory for other reasons, for it marked the date of his marriage to Miss Mary A. Murphy, of Philadelphia. From his earnings in the penny photo boom, he not only established his studio on a sound financial basis, but also established a home. There are three children in the family. Mrs. Marvin Rothrock and Edgar Mallory, of Bellefonte, and Mrs. L. M. Oil, of Philadelphia. From his earnings in the penny photo boom, he not only established his studio on a sound financial basis, but also established a home. There are three children in the family. Mrs. Marvin Rothrock and Edgar Mallory, of Bellefonte, and Mrs. L. M. Oil, of Philadelphia. From his earnings in the penny photo boom, he not only established his studio on a sound financial basis, but also established a home. There are three children in the family. Mrs. Marvin Rothrock and Edgar Mallory, of Bellefonte, and Mrs. L. M. Oil, of Philadelphia.

Commenting upon the advances that have been made in photography during his forty years of work in that profession, Mr. Mallory declared that probably the greatest change in recent years has been the vast increase in the use of commercial and industrial photography. In the early days, he said, the work of a photographer was principally taking pictures of persons and groups. Now pictures are used in almost every type of advertising, and industrial uses of pictures are increasing steadily.

Then, too, he said, there has been tremendous growth in amateur photography, caused largely by the development of better equipment at prices nearly as low as the prices of the early days. He said he had to pay an almost endless variety of cameras at prices from less than a dollar to as high as hundreds of dollars, affords the amateur photographer a wide selection. Faster films bring better pictures under poor lighting conditions. Instantaneous photography and scores of gadgets for making and finishing photos give the camera man plenty of diversion, Mr. Mallory said.

The recent craze for taking pictures at night, the veteran photographer added, came through the development of high candlepower flash-lighting devices. Innumerable taking at night is no new accomplishment, he said, for as early as 1900 he was taking night photos in his studio with the aid of an electric arc light. Of course the light required almost constant adjustment and nursing, but it made pictures.

Mr. Mallory is a native of Bellefonte, having been born in the stone house on Howard street at the rear of the present home of Burgess Hardman P. Harris. His parents were Mr. and Mrs. George Mallory, and other members of the family include two brothers and two sisters: Russell, of Bellefonte; Paul, East Aurora, N. Y.; and Mrs. Blaine Hahn and Mrs. C. J. Newcomb, both of Bellefonte.

Because he has always kept abreast of the latest discoveries in the world of photography, and because he is recognized as a skillful artisan, Mr. Mallory 23 years ago was chosen to operate the x-ray apparatus at the Centre County Hospital. Since then the original x-ray machine at the institution has been replaced with modern and complete equipment, and Mr. Mallory has remained continuously in charge as x-ray technician.

Although Mr. Mallory observed his 59th birthday last July 31, he retains the same youthful zest for his work and for photography in general that made his business a success from the start.

Despite the fact that by helping amateur camera fans to improve their pictures he automatically helps his own business, many Bellefonte camera addicts who've taken instructions from Mr. Mallory have the impression he'd be just as eager to explain the fine points of picture taking if he were running a peanut stand instead of a studio. In other words, his work is his hobby.

In his years as a photographer, Mallory has taken the pictures of thousands of residents of Bellefonte and Centre county. He's taken group photos of wedding parties, graduating classes, family reunions, infants and oldsters alike have posed before his lenses. He's taken pictures in mines and from airplanes, from mountains and from automobiles. Snapshots, portraits, moving pictures—all these are his daily life. With the secrets of his craft he can make a poor picture a good one, and can tint photographs in their natural colors. And yet, when a Centre Democrat reporter asked Mr. Mallory for a photo of himself to use in illustrating this story, he replied: "Why-uh, I don't have any!"

Long Named President of Bank

clusive of one of Bellefonte's outstanding 1931 he has been serving as assistant to the president, and during Mr. McCurdy's absence from the bank because of illness, acted in his stead.

Well grounded in business and finance through education and experience, Mr. Long in becoming president of the First National Bank reaches a new peak in his steady rise from his first obscure position with the Dairy Husbandry Department at the Pennsylvania State College.

A native of Clearfield County, Mr. Long was born at Burnside, October 4, 1891. He received his early education in the Clearfield County public schools and at the Indiana State Normal School, and also studied at the Williamsport Business College.

His first position was with the clerical division of the Penn State Dairy Husbandry Department where he remained until June, 1912, when he was employed by the First National Bank of State College. After six years of service at that institution he obtained leave to enter the Federal Reserve Bank in Philadelphia in order to study special work in the accounting department.

When the United States entered the World War, Mr. Long entered the service and was sent to Central Officers' Training School, at Camp Lee, Virginia. After the war he was recalled to the First National Bank at State College, where he remained until the organization of the Karthaus State Bank, at Karthaus. He served as cashier there until he was called to serve as cashier of the Snow Shoe Bank, at Snow Shoe. After a seven-year period of service in that bank, he was elected vice president and cashier of the First National Bank of Emporium.

Mr. Long's service in the First National Bank, Bellefonte, dates from February 1, 1931, when he was called here from Emporium to take the position of assistant to the president, Charles McCurdy. In January 1936 he was elected a vice president, continuing in that capacity as well as assistant to Mr. McCurdy until yesterday's promotion.

Mr. Long was united in marriage with Helen S. Livengood, and there are two daughters in the family; Betty, a member of the sophomore class at Penn State, and Joan, a freshman at the Bellefonte High School.

An Incendiary 'Bonfire'

ple. It is only natural to assume that the citizens in general will resent any effort to take from them the benefits they have achieved.

We believe that Judge James made a serious blunder when he frankly announced his attitude toward Pennsylvania's beneficial legislation. It will require more explanation than his millionaire backers are capable of quenching the "bonfire" of resentment his inflammatory remarks have started.

Why doesn't Judge James resign from his court position if he wishes to go about criticizing from the stump?

Can it be that this political Judge, who wants to make a bonfire of poor people's pensions, is hanging onto his office so that his own pension will not diminish—when the people of Pennsylvania turn thumbs down on him in November.

B. H. S. LOSES TO SOUTH WILLIAMSPORT IN UPSET In one of the most surprising upsets of the early season in high school football, South Williamsport High school defeated Bellefonte High school, 19 to 0, at South Williamsport, Saturday afternoon.

It was the first defeat suffered by Coach Miller's charges in nine games, and was the first major victory South Williamsport has scored in two years.

NAMED HEAD OF COUNTY'S FIRST VOTERS' LEAGUE

Edward Tekeley, former Phillipsburg High school star basketball player, has been named chairman of the Centre County First Voters' League, by Joseph Barr, president of the Pennsylvania Young Democratic Clubs.

In a statement issued at Harrisburg, President Barr congratulated Mr. Tekeley on his appointment and predicted outstanding success for the League.

Chairman Tekeley is a graduate of Phillipsburg High school in the class of 1935, manager of the 1934 varsity football team, and a member of the 1934, 1935 varsity basketball squads. For ten years Mr. Tekeley caddied at the Phillipsburg Country Club, and in 1935 he represented Phillipsburg High school at the Interscholastic Golf Tournament held at Pennsylvania State College. A member of the Merchants Basketball team, League champions of 1938, and of the Episcopalians Mush Ball team, League champions of 1938, chairman Tekeley has taken an active part in the development of local athletic teams composed of men past high school age.

In accepting the chairmanship of the Centre County First Voters' League, Mr. Tekeley invited all young men who will be 21 on or before November 8, 1938, and all men over 21 who have never voted before to join the League. The ideals of the First Voters' League, Mr. Tekeley explained are to "support the warm-hearted, liberal policies of President Roosevelt, and to fight for the continuation of the New Deal in Pennsylvania."
