

To Open New School Bids

(Continued from page one) portion of the building which was to have housed four classrooms. This part of the building is to be included in the plans for another building, which is to be financed through the Thompson plan.

At its regular meeting Monday night, the school board granted Miss Mary Wolka, physical education instructor, a leave of absence for nine weeks, beginning November 14, in order that she may study at the Pennsylvania State College in preparation for her bachelor of science degree. Named as a substitute during Miss Wolka's absence is Miss Ann Boss, a graduate of the Philadelphia Normal, and member of the senior class at Penn State this year, who by accepting foregoes the opportunity of graduating from college in February. Miss Boss explains she is eager for the practical experience offered.

Mr. Stock was authorized by the Board to establish a card index system of recording all persons in the borough who are assessed per capita or property taxes for school purposes. In this way, Mr. Stock declared, the board at all times will have a definite check on information pertaining to taxes and taxable persons.

Joseph Picarro, aged 26, a graduate of the Bellefonte High school, presented a written application for a position as janitor in the Bellefonte schools. Since no vacancy exists, the application was placed on file for future reference.

Acting upon a letter submitted by Mrs. R. M. Beach, of the Library and Historical Corporation, the board unanimously agreed to have the secretary write to the County Commissioners expressing the earnest desire of the board to have the library opened and in operation at the earliest possible time. Full and hearty endorsement of the library plan is to be included in the letter to the Commissioners.

Possibility that the school district of Walker township may be haled into court for failure to pay $47 in tuition for one student sent to the Bellefonte High school last year, loomed when the board decided to consult the solicitor in regard to bringing suit against Walker township to recover the amount due.

There is one Walker township student in the B. H. S. this year, but the student's parents are paying the tuition charges, it was reported.

The Board discussed the matter of choosing a solicitor to take the place made vacant by the recent death of John J. Bower, Esq., and decided to interview Musser W. Gettig, recently named acting solicitor during Mr. Bower's illness, before taking definite action in the matter.

Other matters brought before the meeting included reports by the dental hygienist, the school nurse and the agricultural supervisor.

Report Few Bear Killed

(Continued from page one) in the Snow Shoe-Renovo area. Some complaints of illegal kills have reached Bellefonte, but none of them could be confirmed last night. One was that a Game Protector from a neighboring county came across the bodies of four cubs, killed and left in the woods by hunters.

Ralph Noel, of Warrior's Mark, was fortunate in bringing down a fine black bear weighing 160 pounds while hunting in Clinton county, back of Renovo, on the first day. The bear is hanging at the front of Glenn Grove's store, West Tenth street.

Eugene O'Connell and George Nearhoff were in the party with Noel when he shot the bear, and almost got another one. There were two bears sighted, the one rearing up on its hind legs, and Noel brought it down with one shot. The other bear got away before they could get a bead on it.

O. C. Spikeman, of Port Matilda, and Joe Gussallus, of Warrior's Mark, R. D., are reported as having shot a bear Monday.

In Clinton county Irvin G. Peck and Robert McAllister each shot a bear. They hunted north of Whetnam with a party including ten others.

Mr. McAllister's bear weighed 350 pounds, and that felled by Mr. Peck topped the beam at 200.

McAllister's bear is on exhibition in front of the Ritter Sporting Goods store, Lock Haven.

Fred B. Miller of Woolrich, hunting alone, got the most unusual prize, a 365-pound brown bear, a species seldom seen in this section. Miller felt an itch in his trigger finger along about noon Monday.

He put in the morning at his regular job at the Woolrich Woolen Mills and was out only 47 minutes of the afternoon in the forests of Big Spring Hollow, about five miles from Woolrich, where he encountered the large and lusty cinnamon bear.

Hunters report that it was only the second brown bear reported in this area in several years.

Several CCC camp boys are reported to have shot a bear near Orviston but their names were not obtainable.

The high wind was undesirable to the bear hunters. However, in Lycoming and Sullivan counties the kill was fairly heavy. At least six were killed near Williamsport and approximately a dozen were dropped in Sullivan county, early reports said.

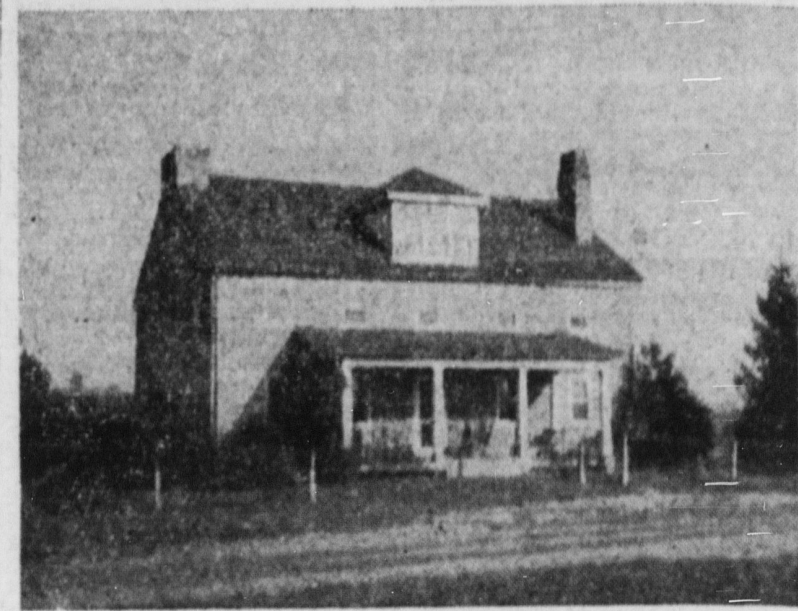

A small group of Lycoming county hunters in the Grays Run area saw four or five bears, but were not close enough to get good shots at them.

Cleaning Soiled Wood. Badly soiled wood can be cleaned by using a mixture of a quart of hot water, three tablespoons of balled linsed oil, and a tablespoon of turpentine. Warm this mixture, and use while warm.

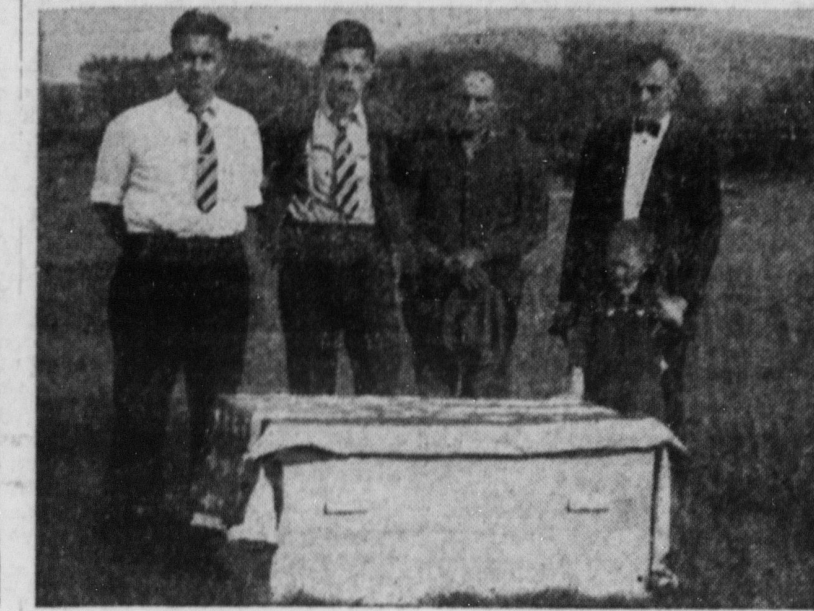

Broiled Quail. Wrap thin slices of bacon around the quail and boil under hot fire 8 to 10 minutes. Remove bacon strips. Serve on toast with broiled bacon. Use a sauce of melted butter, lemon juice and chopped parsley.

Most people can make up most attractive excuses for not doing what they really don't want to do.

Scenes Surrounding Controversy Over Revolutionary Soldier Buried in Centre County

All Photos Courtesy of Huntingdon Daily News. Showing the old stone house on the farm of Gen. John Patton, now occupied by Samuel B. Wasson, near which the Revolutionary War soldier and early settler of Centre county, was buried at the time of his death in 1820. The house is located near State College at the intersection of the Branch and Boalsburg-Pine Grove Mills roads.

rebury General Patton, are charges filed against them by Attorney James C. Purst, of Bellefonte, in behalf of Hilda Patton Thompson and her sister, Alice Thompson, of Centre Furnace; Mrs. Thomas-Stahle, of State College, and Joseph Patton, of Chester County, all descendants of the warrior, who claim the body was removed from the grave without permission.

Then, too, an injunction issued by Judge Charles D. Pettehof, of Huntingdon county, is still in force to restrain the Pattons from in any way interfering with the Armistice Day ceremony, or from reclaiming the remains of their ancestor. This injunction will remain active until the regular January term of Huntingdon County, when it will either be made permanent, or set aside. In the event the injunction should be set aside, there would be nothing to prevent the Patton family from disintering the remains at the Riverside cemetery and bringing them back to their original grave for burial.

The ceremonies at Huntingdon on Armistice Day left little to be desired in the way of pomp and circumstance. General Patton's bones and cavalry sword, buried with him in 1804-134 years ago—on the farm now owned by Samuel B. Wasson at the intersection of the Branch and the Boalsburg-Pine Grove Mills roads, last Thursday night were transferred from the box in which they were placed when the grave was opened into a new metallic casket provided by the V. F. W. a group of prominent Huntingdon citizens witnessed the transfer and saw the casket sealed at the Huntingdon armory.

From sundown Thursday until 10 o'clock Friday morning the remains lay in state with a guard of honor provided by the Huntingdon National Guard. Scores of relatives and friends viewed the casket at the armory during this time.

At 11 a. m. the funeral cortege left the armory and proceeded to the court house, where the casket remained with a guard until 2 o'clock. At that time a brief funeral service was held, with Major Harry Nelson Bassler, D. D., of Harrisburg, as the speaker.

The casket was then placed on a horse-drawn caisson for the procession to the cemetery. Following the caisson was a large cavalry horse, blanketed in mourning, the saddle empty and with boots reversed in the stirrups, traditional indication of the rider's death. Following the horse was a parade of many civic, patriotic and service organizations.

At the grave a complete ritualistic ceremony was carried out, and the remains of the old soldier were laid beside the body of his second wife. General Patton's remains were disinterred on Sunday, October 2, and since that time a legal controversy over the procedure has been waged.

This picture shows the grave from which the remains of the long-dead General were taken October 23 by members of the Huntingdon Veterans of Foreign Wars reburied at Huntingdon. The grave, at present in a cornfield, was decorated by the V. F. W. members with flags and marker shown after the body was removed.

Another view of the site in which the General's bones lay for the past 134 years. Centre county descendants revealed at a hearing that they were planning to decorate the spot suitably, but had been prevented by financial reasons from doing so up to this time.

The final outcome will not be known until Judge Pettehof has passed upon the injunction—and even with that angle settled there is no way of telling whether some new action might not develop to further disturb the crumbling bones of the founder of the First City Troop of Philadelphia and member of George Washington's personal bodyguard.

The best bleaching process for silk, wool, linen, or cotton is to use one teaspoon of peroxide of hydrogen to 1/2 tub of cold water. Let clothes soak in this overnight, then rinse and wash as usual. This cannot injure the fabric and imports a pure white.

He is survived by his parents, residing in State College; his wife, the former Sarah Stevens; the twin children, and two brothers and two sisters, namely: Oliver and John Rudy and Mrs. Clyde Parker, all of State College, and Mrs. Anna Casper.

Funeral services will be held at the late home in Lytle's Addition, State College, at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, with the Rev. F. J. Harsh, pastor of the State College Lutheran church officiating. Interment will be made in the Mooresville cemetery, in Stone Valley.

PENN STATE OFFERS INSTRUCTION BY MAIL

Approximately 4,800 persons availed themselves of the opportunity for taking correspondence courses in agriculture and home economics from the Pennsylvania State College during the last year, according to Thomas L. Mairs, director of correspondence courses in agriculture and home economics.

"Correspondence courses in agriculture were first offered in 1899 after it had been decided that it would be advisable to furnish systematic study at home for those unable to attend college," he said. "Up to the present time more than 50,000 students have availed themselves of this type of study."

Time is no factor in correspondence students. They may enroll at any time and work as hard or as little as they desire. Many find long winter evenings an excellent time to carry on their studies.

"Students receive personal instruction," Mr. Mairs explained. "They are not pushed along nor are held back by classes. All subjects are elective and an effort is made to adapt the course to the needs of the individual student. The division of the course into lessons sets definite tasks for the student. The tasks are not so difficult as to discourage them, yet they furnish a means of testing his knowledge."

The student in a correspondence course is in a position to apply immediately the knowledge or information which he gains. He can take the work without leaving home or allowing it to interfere with his regular occupation.

Poets' Corner. A VACANCY. A mourning wife, a vacant seat. Tell me that one I love to meet. Will join me no more.

Until the last great change appears. No more that voice I love to hear. Shall fill my listening ear; No more its tone shall swell To tell of the Saviour's great love. That smiling face, those blue eyes. And sweet form must buried lie. Deep in the cold and silent earth. The sunless days that fill the tomb. And I live on, but none can say. How near or distant is the day. When death's unwelcome hand shall come. To lay me in my narrow home. God tells me by his mournful death. How vain and fleeting is our breath. And bids my soul prepare to meet. The trail at the judgment seat.

—Mrs. Eleanor St. Clair Shirk, Aaronsburg, Pa.

ATTENDS FASHION SCHOOL. Miss Henrietta McDowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. McDowell, 112 W. Beaver avenue, State College, is in New York City attending Traphagen School of Fashion, according to word received from the director of the school.

Since the founding of the school in 1923 by Ethel Traphagen, it has expanded steadily to include training for new specialties as the demand for experts in the fashion field has grown. In addition to courses in costume designing, draping, dressmaking, millinery, textile design, the school provides training as well in fashion advertising and layout, interior decoration, window and interior display, theatrical design, men's fashions and fashion illustration and journalism.

How to Darken Furniture. If it is desired to darken the color of the furniture, try the following: One pint linseed oil, one ounce rose pink, one ounce alkanet root, beaten up in a metal mortar; let this mixture stand for a day or two; then pour off the oil, which will be of a rich color. Apply with a soft brush.

Alleged Slayer To Go On Trial

to accept a government position as secretary to the United States Admiral. Mrs. Winters, who for two years attended the local Academy, conducted by her uncle, James H. Hughes, was the wife of Command-er T. Hugh Winters, of the Bremerton Navy Yard, near Seattle.

Mrs. Winters advised her brother to advertise his car for sale, and to purchase a less costly one for use on the rough roads of the Philippine Islands. He did so and in a day or two Mayer visited him and agreed to buy the roadster if Bassett would take it the next morning to his "aunt's house," later known as "the little brown house," by the sea.

Bassett started off with his car the next morning and has never been seen since. A few days later Mayer and his mother were arrested at the square in Oakland, California, by an alert officer who spotted Bassett's car from the description furnished all police on the west coast.

In the car were found Bassett's wallet and a prized wrist watch still running. It developed that before allegedly murdering Bassett they had him sign a bill of sale.

Larceny of the possessions of Bassett was the only charge that could be brought against the pair, but since it was Mayer's fifth felony he drew a life sentence, and his mother, as accomplice, got ten years.

Readers of The Centre Democrat will recall the sensational trial; the introduction of a lie detector invented by a professor at the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, and other features brought out by the testimony. Bassett's body could not be found, and no confession had been made by either Mayer or his mother at that time.

Last spring the mother made a detailed confession outlining incidents of the most brutal and revolting crime on the west coast for many years. The prosecuting attorney will use her confession as the basis for the second trial, on a charge of murder in the first degree. It is this trial which opens on the 28th of this month.
