TOTAL DEER KILL IS ESTIMATED AT 100,000

With all major hunting seasons finished, the Pennsylvania game commission has now plunged into the task of investigating accidents and game law violations reported this fall.

Seth Gordon, executive secretary of the commission, said between 400 and 500 infractions of the game laws have been listed for further investigation, and that between 200 and 225 cases of hunting accidents may be called for future hearings.

"When we get accident reports, we always send them back to the field for further inquiry," said Gordon. "If necessary, we then cite those involved for hearings."

Col. Nicholas Biddle, president of the game commission, in a statement asserted that the Pennsylvania deer herd has not been jeopardized, despite the heavy kill of antlerless deer.

He estimated the total kill at 100,000, higher than the all-time record kill of 95,000 in 1931, and agreed with Gordon that the number of fatal accidents, and sportsmen generally are commending the commission for not allowing the killing of antlerless bucks this year.

He predicted that with food conditions reported as being "very unfavorable," thousands of starved deer will perish by February or early March should the winter be severe.

HEALTH

Women and girls are usually very attentive to the condition of their eyes and rightly so. From time to time, they study their faces in the mirrors and view with alarm something the accumulations of dust, or large wrinkles on the forehead, around the eyes, and at the corners of the mouth.

With some, the appearance of a "double chin" is a terrific shock and immediate measures are taken to eliminate this betraying of age.

However, one of the most unightly blemishes which appears and goes oftentimes unnoticed is the enlarged pores. These should not be treated lightly because if they are allowed to go their natural course, the complexion will be completely ruined.

Take a few minutes off, right after reading this article, to examine your skin. If you find that you do have enlarged pores, already you should go to work immediately to remedy the situation. If you don't have a single enlarged pore now, it might be well to remember the old saying, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Here are a few suggestions, which, faithfully followed, will help the situation.

Select a good pore cream at your drugstore. Ask his advice if necessary and remember that it's best to pay a little more and get a better product. Well advertised products are usually safest in the long run.

When your face has been thoroughly cleaned with a mild soap and steamed by applying cloths wrung out of hot water or by holding hot water, press out all the blackheads which will come out very easily. Be sure that your fingernails are absolutely clean and the skin is not bruised. Use sterilized absorbent cotton for this process.

Then apply the pore cream. Try to plan so that you can leave it on your face at least two hours or better still, use it just before going to bed and leave it on all night.

For the woman whose pores are enlarged, pore cream may be used every night for a couple of months and then twice a week. The astringent quality of the cream will gradually shrink the pores if used faithfully.

If you haven't enlarged pores, as a preventive measure use pore cream once a week. It will remove dust and dirt, makeup and accumulations of oil that clog up the skin and cause blemishes and blackheads.
