

Echoes From the Past

Fifty Years Ago

Rev. Father McArdie of the Catholic church entertained the members of the choir on Christmas with an elaborate Christmas dinner which was greatly enjoyed by those present.

Mrs. Sarah Keiser, who died in Philadelphia last week, was buried at the home on Sunday last. She had gone to Philadelphia for medical treatment and never recovered.

John I. Thompson has taken charge of the grain house, at Lemont, formerly operated by Mr. Armstrong, who has gone into the prop timber business with his brother.

At Stitzer's book store can be seen the design of the building the Lutheran congregation expects to erect at this place. The building will be of brick, with two towers in front, large windows, and is very nicely proportioned.

Twenty Years Ago

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel P. O'Leary, former residents of Bellefonte, who had been making their home in Hopewell, Va., had returned to this community to reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kellerman former Bellefonte residents, had moved from Coalport to Cresson, where Mr. Kellerman had secured an excellent position with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. Hille, of Pleasant Gap, received a telegram Christmas morning, announcing the death of their son, Donald T. Hille, who succumbed in France of wounds received on October 3. Donald was 18 years old and originally enlisted with the 88th Central Postal Directory.

Miss Betty Lockington returned to Juniata College after spending a month at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lockington, while recovering from a nervous breakdown following an attack of influenza.

Lt. Richard Taylor, of Bellefonte, was in a base hospital in France recuperating from a long siege in a German prison camp. Before being captured by the Huns, Lt. Taylor reduced their forces by eight and wounded another. In a letter home he expressed the hope that he would soon be sent back to the United States.

Those who spent Christmas day at the R. B. Williams home were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Markle and daughter Carol, also Mrs. Melvin Williams of Tyrone, Pa.

Mrs. Emma Krape Miller of Detroit, Mich., is spending a few days at the J. H. Turner home.

Mr. R. A. Beck now occupies the corner and best fitted tonorial parlors in the town. His rooms are at his former location under the new bank building and are supplied with all the modern conveniences along with elaborate mirrors and furniture.

Benner Armer was home on vacation during the holidays. Charles Rhone spent his vacation at the home of his parents in this place. Will Keller, attending college at Lancaster, and his brother, Harry, who is employed at Harrisburg, spent a part of the holidays at their home in this place.

Messrs Dick Garman and Ed. Richards, both of Philadelphia, formerly of Bellefonte, paid their home a short visit during the holidays. They are connected with one of the leading jewelry firms of Philadelphia, and hold responsible positions. Their stay was a brief one, long enough only to see friends.

A Mr. Houser, of Williamsport, who was visiting friends in Howard, this county, went to the creek yesterday morning, supposedly to perform customary ablutions, and being about 80 years of age grew dizzy and fell in. Before assistance could be rendered the man was dead, although every effort was made to resuscitate him. He was in the water approximately a half hour when discovered.

Mr. H. K. Hicks and family have become residents of Philadelphia. They left on Monday for their new home. Mr. Hicks while in Bellefonte was one of its leading business men and was for a time the proprietor of a large hardware house, now operated by McKee & Bros. We understand that Mr. Hicks has accepted a position of considerable responsibility in a wholesale hardware house in Philadelphia.

About a year ago every person wanted to see a band started in Bellefonte and had some suggestions to offer in that direction, but very few were ready to give the proper encouragement. After some delay arrangements were completed and a fine set of brass instruments were purchased. The new organization made rapid progress under their instructor and soon were able to compete with similar organizations in the county. In the past year they purchased new instruments, hired good instructors, purchased a full set of dress parade uniforms, are out of debt and have about a hundred dollars in the treasury—an unusual piece of good management and financing. Bellefonte can feel proud of its band and thankful to Mr. A. Garman, of the Garman House, for his generous support and interest shown in starting the new organization.

Centre County has over-purchased its quota of $976,200 in War Savings Stamps, it was announced.

Harold Alexander was declared champion hog grower of Centre County when a purebred Berkshire gilt fed by him gained 208 1/2 pounds in 130 days.

The local food administration offices on High Street were closed with the reduction in the volume of business since the close of the war. What little work remained was being handled from the office of Col. W. Fred Reynolds, local food administrator.

Charles R. Beatty, manager of the Beatty-Motor Company, Bellefonte, narrowly escaped injury when a gasoline tank exploded. The tank had become clogged and Mr. Beatty was using a blow in an effort to remove the obstruction when the fumes in the tank exploded. No damage resulted.

A buggy owned by Henry Knepp, of Millbrook, was reduced to kindling wood when it was struck by an automobile owned by James Hubler. Mr. Knepp was bruised about the head, and a companion, Jefferson Houtz, suffered cuts and bruises about the head and side, and confined to bed for nearly a week.

A valuable team horse owned by Lee and Wilbur Gonsalus, of near Blanchard, died suddenly while Lee was driving the team up a steep hill for a load of wood. The wagon train, which was in an effort to remove the animal as a young one and in apparent good health, the cause of its death was somewhat of a mystery.

With the junking of the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania, Bellefonte citizens were wondering what was to become of Hecla Park. There was some talk of taking a popular subscription to purchase the recreation grounds, and a companion, Jefferson Houtz, suffered cuts and bruises about the head and side, and confined to bed for nearly a week.

Sunday School Lesson

PETER COMMENDED AND REBUKED International Sunday School Lesson for January 8, 1939.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."—Matt. 16:16.

(Lesson Text—Matt. 16: 13-24)

There is a great lapse of time between this lesson and the last. After calling his disciples, Jesus had taken them everywhere with Him and they had witnessed the workings of His marvelous power on many occasions.

The scene of this lesson was in northern Galilee during the third year of Christ's active ministry. He was closing His public career and in about six months would meet His fate. The event was important enough to be reported by all three of the synoptic gospel writers, although Matthew alone contains the latter part of our lesson, the promise of the Savior to build His church upon the rock, about the interpretation of which there has raged a vast controversy.

Jesus, realizing the limited period of His earthly life, had been actively seeking to build up the faith and increase the understanding of His intimate followers. He fully knew that these men would have to carry on His great work and He alone realized the utmost importance of developing in them the great faith and vital truth which He had come to present to mankind. As a noted public character, Jesus had become a subject of much speculation among the people. He had become the center of great criticism and object of much antagonism, especially from the accepted religious leaders of the Jewish people at that time.

Opinions had been formed about Him by those who felt the influence of His presence. His select band of disciples from their close association with Him should be better able to understand His purpose and mission than anybody else, yet, at the same time, from their easy mixing with the various audiences they would be able to know what men thought of Him. So, in this lesson, the Christian church is the faith of mankind that Jesus was the son of God. His teachings were not only supreme philosophy but a reflection of a divine and only could give to humanity the pure model for all others to live by. A man can admire His teaching without believing Him to be divine, but only those who accept Him as their Savior can call upon Him for help in their times of spiritual trial and receive thereby renewed strength for the combat.
