

POINTS IN JUDGING HOME MANAGEMENT EXHIBITS

Homemakers have put the finishing touches to their exhibits for State Farm Show and perhaps have planned what to do with the premiums should they be fortunate to capture them.

Unfortunately this year, owing to limited space, home furnishing articles for open classes include only braided and hooked rugs, mats, and wall hangings made in 1938.

Standards for judging are high. Miss Helen S. Butler, home economics extension representative of Centre county, reminds us. Because some of us do not always understand why our exhibit was not among the winners, she explains some points in judging.

The worth of the article, its beauty, and its construction are the three main factors the judge considers.

Is the article useful enough to warrant the time and energy spent in making it? Are the materials used suitable for the purpose of the article? These are questions which the judge asks herself as she carefully appraises each article.

Woolens and cottons are more durable for the braided or hooked rug while silk and rayon materials are suitable for the hooked and braided chair seats, table mats, and wall hangings.

In color and design, simplicity ranks high. Miss Butler points out. Lines conforming to the shape of the rug, good spacing, and conventional design instead of naturalistic are preferred. Soft, harmonious colors are more pleasing and less fatiguing than intense, bright, too delicate colors for floor rugs.

Stitches should be close, permanent, and inconspicuous in the braided article so that it may be used on either side and will lie flat. Hooked articles with close loops on the right side and a smooth back with the edge of the burlap turned back and securely finished, rate high with the judge.

Since entries close at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, January 14, exhibitors are urged to send their articles so they reach Harrisburg for the morning delivery. There is no mail delivery on Saturday afternoon. Provisions also must be made for the return of exhibits after the show.

Check your exhibit to see that you have fulfilled all the requirements before packing and sending it to the show.

Charged With Drunken Driving

Ralph Huntington, of Snow Shoe, is being held under $500 bail on a charge of drunken driving. He was arrested early Sunday morning after his car and one owned by John S. Dimin, of Hathorn, were involved in an accident near Snow Shoe. No one was injured and the damage to Dimin's machine was placed at $10. Huntington's car was not damaged.

Democracy costs money—there is no doubt of that.

FARM CALENDAR

Pruning Grape Vines—Cane pruning is considered most satisfactory by most grape growers. The best buds are saved, according to fruit specialists at the Pennsylvania State College. Pruning insures the production of good clusters and helps maintain the vigor of the vines. Such systems as Kniffin, Chautauque and Umbrella have given about equal results, an undertaking that has earned wide approval.

Comfortable Quarters for Calves Clean, light, dry, sanitary quarters, as well as proper feed, are necessary if calves are to make the best growth. A few dairymen are using straw-covered, wire floors in their pens. They are proving to be warmer and drier than ordinary floors. Considerably less bedding is required than on concrete floors. Penn State dairymen have found, Poisoning Rats—Redsquill powder mixed with rolled oats, corn meal, ground meats, or fish provides an excellent poison for controlling rats. Use Penn State extension entomologists. Late afternoon is considered the best time for placing the freshly mixed bait in the runways.

4-H Garden Clubs—Low capital requirement has been one of the chief incentives for the rapid growth of 4-H garden clubs during the last few years, extension specialists in vegetable gardening at the Pennsylvania State College explain. The turnover is rapid and the project requires attention when most boys and girls are not in school.

Turkey Dressing Percentage—During the process of preparation for the oven, a turkey loses approximately 25 per cent of its live weight, poultry specialists at the Pennsylvania State College have found.

IODINE DEFICIENCY IS CAUSE OF GOITER

The occasional birth of a hairless calf is the result of an iodine deficiency in the ration of the parent, according to Professor A. A. Borland, head of the department of dairy husbandry at the Pennsylvania State College. "Young animals are most likely to be affected," Professor Borland explained. "They are born dead or weak, and frequently they are practically hairless. In the case of sows the pigs have a thick, gray skin, large necks, and seem unnaturally fat because of a bloated condition."

Goiters frequently result from an iodine deficiency. The thyroid gland in the neck is enlarged as it attempts to produce thyroxine, an iodine compound. Goiters are usually plainly visible in affected lambs and calves.

A deficiency of iodine is most likely to occur in regions near lakes or mountains where iodine has largely been bleached from the soil. Goiters in humans also result from lack of iodine. The prevalence of goiter in livestock is on a ratio comparable to that in humans. In Pennsylvania 1.5 to 4.5 cases of goiter occur for each 100 population. "Experimental results show that goiter in newly-born farm animals can be prevented by feeding pregnant animals iodized salt," Professor Borland said. "In areas where iodine is deficient in the soil, it may be wise to use iodized salt for all livestock."

Christmas Card Clue In Robbery

he had placed a carton of cigarettes. The carton was there, but the cigarettes were gone. Further search revealed the loss of the ring. There were no indications as to how the robber gained entrance to the building since all doors and windows were locked.

Tuesday Johnson, former Centre county District Attorney, received word from Bloomsburg police that a man being held in that town for a series of robberies was found to have in his possession a Christmas card from Mr. Bierly addressed to the Johnstons, leading to belief that the man in custody might be able to explain the local robbery. Since the George A. Beizer residence on East Curtin street, was robbed of about $150 in jewelry the same day, police believe the same man might be responsible for both crimes. Private W. C. Meyers, of the Lockview State Motor Police went to Bloomsburg yesterday to question the man.
