John S. McCloskey, supervisor of nurseries at Rockview penitentiary, took several loads of shrubbery, trees, etc., to Harrisburg to be entered at the Farm Show. Being rather cold for the load, they placed a barrel of hot water in the truck to radiate sufficient heat to prevent the foliage from freezing.

Mrs. Curtis Walker, of Monument, who recently underwent an operation which was seized with convulsions while washing dishes at her home, and fell, breaking her glasses and a dish she had in her hand, and lacerating her face and left leg one day last week.

A garb snake, probably disturbed from its hole, was seen crawling slowly over the snow in the alley next to the Journal building, Millheim, last Tuesday afternoon. Ralph Rote pulled him out to the sidewalk for all to see—and somebody came along and kicked the reptile into the mill race.

John T. Marks, a native of Bellefonte, observed his 92nd birthday on Sunday at his home at Jersey Shore. He was born in Bellefonte but lived in Snow Shoe from the time of his marriage in 1872 until 1895 when he went to Jersey Shore, with his family. His wife died two years ago. Mr. Marks is in good health.

Daniel Daup, well on in the eighties and president of the First National Bank of Centre Hall, had the misfortune to receive a hard fall on a concrete walk at the Earl Frazier home along Sinking Creek. Mr. Daup struck his face, receiving a black eye and body bruises, but was not laid up from his injuries.

Ernest Ike, 17, of Tyrone, was stung Saturday when he was visiting his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ingram, at Mackeyville, and attempted to ride a two-year-old colt. After throwing the youth, the colt ran into a wire fence and was so badly lacerated that a veterinarian had to put in 24 stitches to close the gashes.

Mrs. M. M. Smith has been confined to her home in Millheim, since early last week, due to a recurrence of a nervous disorder with which she has been afflicted for some time past. She is improved some at this writing. Mrs. Ollie Auman, who suffered a light stroke several months ago, is still confined to her bed but has improved considerably. She is cheerful and apparently her former self.

A chimney fire at the Charles O. Musser home on North street, Millheim, shortly before noon last Tuesday, threatened for a time to cause serious damage to the home. The pipe leading into the chimney at the kitchen became red hot, causing the soot in the flue to ignite. A bucket brigade soon had the blaze under control.

John Homan, Millheim trucker, while plowing snow in Georges Valley, was obliged to pass a car that was parked at the Jerry Zettie home. A highway that was narrow and a telephone pole proved his undoing. Turning aside for the parked car, his plow caught the edge of the pole, swinging his truck about as on ice, and the whole shebang went down over a steep embankment. Nobody was injured, but Johnny's truck had a front axle pushed back about a foot, shearing off a few spring bolts in the operation.

Joan Bender, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bender of State College, a victim of infantile paralysis since early life, will be married in the near future. She is now undergoing foot correction under Dr. Galbraith, the bone specialist in Altoona. Mr. and Mrs. Bender are hopeful of good results and anticipate further relief from the dread disease.

ANDREWS DIES ON THE GALLOWS

(Continued from page one) I am in heaven." The black cap was adjusted over his face and after a momentary pause the trap was sprung. Andrews body dropped 7 feet, and after a few convulsive struggles hung motionless. Andrews had died from a broken neck. The body was examined by Drs. Harris, Tobin and Christ, who certified to the extinction of life. It then was turned over to undertaker Solomon Confer, of Millersburg.

Scaffold Does Double Duty The scaffold upon which Andrews paid for his crime was the same one used for the Hopkins execution. It was built by Samuel Gault, one of the leading carpenters of that day.

After Andrews had been declared dead, the problem of what to do with the body became a matter of worry to the county commissioners. As Andrews had no friends in this section no one suggested a place of burial. The Bellefonte cemetery would not admit it. Next they applied to Millersburg, but were likewise refused. It was finally decided to inter the body on the ridge back of Millersburg. At least that is the supposed resting place of Andrews body, but there are many who believe that it went to a dissecting table.

ALFRED ANDREWS CRIME Now, all you honest people, Perchance I don't intrude, I'll tell you of the villain's life, And how his thirst for blood— That poor, innocent Clara Price, Which unto God, revenge does cry, While in the cold and silent grave Her poor remains now lie.

It was on the road to Karthaus, Upon that fateful morn, Never thinking for a moment, That she never would return; But cruel fate was sore against her, And there she had to die, Not even having an opportunity To bid her friends good-bye, Our officers are always on the guard For murderers such as he— Who come into our country From far across the sea. They had convincing evidence, And through a broken shoe, Which Andrews had upon his foot, They obtained the strongest clue. But now the deed's committed, Poor Clara's in her grave; She fought her battle nobly, Her virtue for to save; She fought her battle nobly And never did she yield, With making to protect her, But a basket for a shield. Now Andrews is convicted, His death warrant is now here, And he must die that fatal day, And his knees should quake with fear. On the 9th of April next, 'Tween the hours of 16 and 3, The friend will have to pay his debt Upon the gallows tree. Now, to say in conclusion, For I have encroached upon your time, I hope none are offended, With this, my horrid rhyme; But one request I'll ask of you, Pretty maidens, one and all, Pray think a moment of poor Clara's fate, And how she came to fall.

Old-Age Insurance Reaches New High (Continued from page one) vania brought the total number paid in this state since first payments were made in January, 1927 to 25,000 which amounted to $1,302,157.23, Mr. Farabaugh revealed. This record places Pennsylvania in second position among the states both in the number of claims paid and in their total value.

The December figures brought the national total of claims paid to 256,000 amounting to $11,565,271.98, of which 16,124 amounting to $1,058,164.15 were paid in December, Mr. Farabaugh said. "With each claim for $50 or more, proof of birth data is required and the Board has set up a list of acceptable types of evidence on which its officers will be glad to advise and, in some instances, assist claimants who are unable to furnish preferred evidence such as birth certificates, records of infant baptism, of family Bible records of birth," Mr. Farabaugh said.

RICE, LIME AND GLUE MAKE GOOD WHITENESS Nothing improves the appearance of farm buildings as much so cheaply as a good coat of whitewash. An excellent whitewash, says County Agent R. C. Blaney, can be made by slaking one-half bushel of unslacked lime with boiling water, keeping it covered during the process. Strain and add a peck of salt dissolved in warm water. Add three pounds of ground rice that has been placed in boiling water and boiled to a thin paste. Follow this with one-half pound of powdered Spanish whiting and a pound of clear glue dissolved in hot water. Mix these well and let stand for several days. Apply as hot as possible. It is quite probable that by using the best grade of hydrated lime, it can be substituted successfully for the slaked lime, thus saving considerable time and effort.

Another good exterior whitewash may be made by first slaking eight pounds of quick-lime in two gallons of hot water, or mixing ten pounds of commercial hydrated lime to a creamy consistency with water. Dissolve one pound of carbonate of soda in a quart of boiling water. Soak a pound of common glue and one pound of rice flour for at least eight hours in cold water and then thoroughly dissolve the glue mixture in three-fourths more water in a double boiler. Mix the first mixture with the second and add the third. Flour paste prevents whitewash from rubbing off. It may be made of wheat, rice, or even rye. A preservative like zinc sulphate is usually added when paste is used. Malasses is said to make a whitewash penetrate better, using about one pint to five gallons. Water glass in the proportion of one part to ten parts of whitewash makes a fireproof cement.

Common bar soap at the rate of one pound dissolved in each five gallons of whitewash gives a gloss for inside work. Whiting gives a gloss to the finish. It is possible to make considerable variation in the whitewash formula used and still obtain good results. Any scheme can give you a hundred ways of making a fortune.
