Jacob is undergoing instruction in a Philadelphia school while Robert is a member of the engineering personnel of a manufacturing corporation there.

—Our good friend Daniel A. Grove, of East Linn Street, former Centre County Commissioner, quietly observed his 83rd birthday on Friday. Several years ago practically everyone, including himself, believed he wasn't long for this world. He was in extremely poor health. Today he is as robust as an old gentleman of 83 as can be found anywhere. He frankly states that although he's been a lifelong prohibitionist—even in the roaring old days when he traded spined horses with the best of them—that whiskey in medicinal doses is responsible for his new lease on life. As of last resort a physician prescribed small amounts of spirits several times daily, and Mr. Grove's health has improved to such an extent that he's suffered injuries several times lately while doing such an old-mannily chore as shingling sheds. We extend congratulations to our friend, and hope that some day when we near the century mark we can discover an equally effective rejuvenator.

—Residents of East Bishop Street suggest that the borough have that much-traveled thoroughfare cleared of some weeks' accumulation of ashes. Because of the dangerous hill that street has received a greater amount of ashes than any other in town, and with snow and ice now on the streets, the ground is ground to dust by traffic. Every passing breeze carries the dust with it, to the detriment of pedestrians and residents of the area. Several persons have suggested a cleaning with a fire hose as the best means of eliminating the powdered ashes.

Kingsley, of Bellefonte, is a member of the student publicity committee that is arranging for the annual Williamsport Dickinson Seminary and Junior College's Greater Dickinson Banquet to be held Friday evening, Feb. 24, in the Junior College gymnasium, Williamsport. —This is a follow story on "The Tragic Case of the Twisted Suitcases," the first installment of which appeared in these columns last week. You'll recall that J. Bertman, of Detroit, Mich., a hitch-hiker who had been given a ride from eastern Pennsylvania to Lewistown by a Bellefonte motorist whose name he didn't know, reported to Chief Dukeman of Bellefonte that in getting from the car at Lewistown, he grabbed the wrong suitcase. Chief Dukeman asked this newspaper to change in finding the driver of the car, and thereby effect a change of suitcases. During the weekend Robert Bloom, of Milesburg, reported to Duke that he was the man being sought, and he surrendered the hitch-hiker's traveling bag in exchange for his own. Yesterday the Chief got a letter from the hitch-hiker in Detroit, containing instructions for forwarding the bag to him, and telling the Chief to first open the case and "remove a pint of liquor" as a little gift of appreciation. Under questioning Chief Dukeman admitted that he had removed the pint and presented it to Mr. Bloom as a little gift of appreciation for his co-operation. The bag, otherwise intact, has been started on its way to Detroit, and everyone is happy again.

YOUNG HIGH SCHOOL PUPIL WINNING FIGHT FOR HEALTH

Indications are today that Lois Stere, 15-year-old Williamsport high school student, who lives with her mother, Nellie A. Taylor, 328 Susquehanna street, Williamsport, has been critically ill in the hospital during the last two months is going to be the winner in the battle between life and death.

Developing complications following a severe attack of appendicitis which resulted in peritonitis and obstruction of the bowels, the young student lay in a critical condition for weeks. Definite signs of improvement in her condition recently have renewed hope for her recovery. A second blood transfusion was given her Thursday, Feb. 9, which is expected to replenish her strength so that she can continue in the courageous fight to live.

Miss Stere is a niece of Mrs. C. F. Ripka, of South Water street, Bellefonte.

THREE FIRE DEPARTMENTS RESPOND TO SMALL BLAZE

Three Centre County fire companies answered an alarm at Coleville shortly after noon, Monday, when the cab of a truck owned by Samuel Capprelli, of Coleville, caught fire from a short circuit.

The Alpha Fire Company of State College, the Pleasant Gap fire company and the Milesburg Fire Company, all in Bellefonte to battle the High School blaze, answered the Coleville alarm when the Logan and Undine Companies were still pumping water into the smoldering ruins. Since the truck was on the road along a small stream, firemen did not press pumps into operation, but quickly extinguished the blaze with water taken from the creek in buckets. The damage was slight.
