The Haines township school board will offer the school house located at Woodward, and the Leese school house located two miles to the west of Woodward, on March 25. The disposition of these structures is due to the building of a school house for grade pupils at Woodward, made available by PWA.

Wendell Royer, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Royer of Centre Hall, while riding a child's bicycle guided it into the side of a car operated by George Breen of Georgia Valley, resulting in a cut on the side of the head. The accident occurred at the main crossing to the Kerlin Poultry Farm, on Saturday afternoon.

On Sunday night, a few minutes before eleven o'clock, an electric, rain and hail storm visited the Centre Hall section. For a two-or-three minute period the rain fell in considerable quantity. It was driven by a high wind and struck objects with much force. The ice balls were found to conform in size with rice, peas and beans.

A large number of persons claiming to be heirs of the mythical millions of dollars thought to have been left by Astor and Emerick, fur dealers, more than a hundred years ago in New York City, met in the I. O. O. F. lodge rooms in Centre Hall on Saturday evening. These formed one of a large number of groups of expectants in all parts of the U. S. A. and other countries who continue to meet and contribute to a fund for expenses to recover the "legacy."

Bobby Keen, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Nestor Keen, of Millheim, was taken to the Lewistown Hospital last Thursday for treatment of a complication of diseases arising from an attack of pneumonia. The little fellow had a hard time pulling through the pneumonia siege, in fact was not recovered from it, when ear trouble developed. The latter was an ailment with which he was afflicted for some months past, and with the congestion on his lungs was in a precarious condition.

F. M. Fisher, vice-president of the Farmers National Bank and Trust Company, Millheim, resigned from the board of directors of that financial institution a few days ago. He was a member of the first board of directors elected at the time of the organization of the bank in 1909 and served continuously since. Mr. Fisher is one of three, the others being Dr. S. G. Frank and L. E. Stover, of the original board of directors to be living at this time. His resignation was entirely voluntary, he having been re-elected for the ensuing year at the January meeting. His place was filled by the election of J. Randall Miller.

Glenn Hargrave, of Millheim, a graduate of the Schoenbach Annapolis, went to New York last Thursday with a view to getting a position on a ship which would be in line with his training. On Friday he connected with the Merchant Vessel "Santa Rita," a boat of the Grace Lines, and went aboard as a cadet. Walker directed the deposed overseer of the poor, in Bellefonte, to turn the money in his possession over to Bellefonte borough. If it were only Bellefonte that is making claim to the poor fund they might pass it up, but a number of poor districts in the county have already turned their cash on hand over to the Commissioners, and if Judge Walker's decision should stand as to Bellefonte the other districts would most likely demand a refund.

At a meeting of the West Susquehanna and Juniata Classes of the Evangelical and Reformed church, held at State College last Tuesday, it was voted to unite in forming the Central Pennsylvania Synod. Officers chosen were the Rev. Charles D. Rockel, pastor of Christ Reformed church, Altoona, president; the Rev. Henry M. Strub, pastor of Emanuel church, Williamsport, vice president; the Rev. H. G. Snyder, Middleburg, secretary; the Rev. Oliver H. Senning, pastor of Salem St. Paul's church, Altoona, treasurer; and elder Howard T. Struble, Zion, lay member. They will hold office two years.

Mrs. Warren F. Stover, of Penn street, Millheim, in attempting to make the stairs at her home last Wednesday morning, fell practically the entire distance and landed on her left shoulder. Examination revealed that the shoulder was broken in two places—the ball and socket each being fractured. She was taken to the Centre County Hospital that afternoon to have the fractures reduced. Mrs. Stover's sister, Mrs. Rose Diehl, who visited in Millheim for several months past, had just returned to her home in Toledo, Ohio, and it became necessary for her to return to be of assistance in the Stover home.

PENN STATE TO HOLD SAFETY PROBLEM SURVEY A comprehensive survey of the problems of traffic control and traffic safety will be given during the third annual Traffic Officers Training School at the Pennsylvania State College April 17 to 28. The various steps in accident investigation will be stressed during the course in lectures and demonstrations conducted by Sergeant John Knecht of the accident investigation unit, Philadelphia bureau of police.

The relation of alcohol to accidents will be described by Dr. S. Palmer Carter, chemist and bacteriologist for the city of Altoona. Lieutenant Ray Hoover of the Pennsylvania Motor Police will lecture on the Pennsylvania Motor Vehicle Code. Fifteen outstanding lecturers in traffic problems and safety education will be presented during the two-week course, according to H. C. Rountree, acting executive secretary of the Institute of Local Government at Penn State.

Cooperating with the Institute in sponsoring the school are the Institute of Public Safety and the Extension Services at Penn State; the American Automobile Association; the safety division of the International Chiefs of Police Association; National Conservation Bureau; National Safety Council; Pennsylvania Chiefs of Police Association; Pennsylvania Motor Federation; Pennsylvania Motor Police; and the Institute of Local and State Government at the University of Pennsylvania.

Professor is Injured C. A. Burge, of State College, assistant professor of animal husbandry at Penn State, was taken to Mt. Pleasant Hospital, Westmoreland county, last Monday morning for treatment of injuries received about 6:15 a. m. when his car struck a parked truck about 14 miles south of Greensburg. Burge, thrown on the highway by the impact, suffered severe cuts of the face and head and had one rib fractured.

To hear Mussolini tell it you would think that freedom had made a great stride forward in Spain, thanks to Italian troops. Every community has a small group of people, ready and able to tell everybody else how to manage their own business.

The prognosticators are already trying to tell us who will be elected President in 1940. When business gets bigger than government it is time to get another government.

The Limber, Lumber-Yard Ghost

They waited until midnight, when graves are supposed to yawn and spirits of the dead come forth for a little earthly exercise. To start with, they stood opposite the lumber yard, the intrepid pair saw something like a misty, indistinct human being, which glided toward them with a swaying motion, but without noise.

The nearer it approached the more distinct the object became until it developed into a man holding one hand to his head. Determined to stand their ground, the men drew their revolvers and called to the spirit to halt, but the filmy form continued to glide toward him. Five shots from his trusty old .38-calibre were fired into the object, but they failed to stop its advance.

The other fellow then took a swing at it with the baseball bat, but the bat went through the body without meeting any resistance—not even checking the advance of the object. That spoke never seemed to mind the bodily punishment being inflicted upon it. In fact it appeared to enjoy the chagrin of its would-be destroyers, and gave them the merry ha-ha. After it passed them it stopped, and turning faced them with such a demonic, horrid grin that their hair stood straight up, and lifting their hats off their heads. The apparition then disappeared, and turning faced them.

This was the story the men told after their ghost-hunting experience. They declared they were fully convinced that an unearthly spirit was inhabiting the lumber yard. Some of the residents wanted to send for a "paw-wow" doctor to come and "lay the ghost" but he one day two strangers dropped into town, and having heard of the haunted area, decided to do a little investigating of their own.

During the day they viewed the locality and that night after all good folks were in bed, they took their positions on the railroad track back of the lumber yard. It was not long until they saw a luminous misty shape of light arise out of the swampy ground near the creek and float towards and pass them and then disappear. It was spooky, they admitted, but they knew at once that they had solved the ghost story.

What they had witnessed was a body of inflammable gas which arises from swamps. It is commonly known as Will-o-the-wisp, or Jack-with-lantern. Its form being in the shape of a person is entirely imaginary by those who believe in ghosts. After the men had known their discovery, the limber ghost of the lumber yard no longer hid from those who traveled this section of the town. It had, modernly speaking, gone with the wind.

dios, automobiles, telephones and life insurance. As a nation we live better, receive better wages, and enjoy more of the comforts and luxuries of life than do the people of any other country under the sun. What is happening to Hitler? He is reported to be dead, and four or five stooges are supposed to be taking his place. He is quoted as predicting that "his time is now short." Der Fueher, who has never shown any characteristics of a ladies' man, has been displaying a rouse's interest in at least two American dancers who have appeared before him. (This department doesn't blame him for that, but Hitler, they say, has never before been that way inclined.) In short, Adolf seems to be on the verge of slipping over the low fence that marks the dividing line between a stern, aggressive, militant leader and someone taken from the stage of a comic opera. Maybe the change is due to skillful press-agency, maybe it's a pose, maybe he's trying to get a little sympathy among the peoples of hostile nations. Remember how long the Prince of Wales and Wally Simpson were seen together in public life before anyone suspected that the Prince was about to boot the throne of England into the sea? Maybe something of similar proportions is brewing in Adolph's Germany.

SNOW SHOE

Parents-Teachers Association held their monthly meeting in the high school building. Mr. and Mrs. Lemoyne Lucas of Moshannon entertained in honor of Mrs. Lucas' brother Bobby's 20th birthday. Cards were the entertainment of the evening at a late hour, lunch was served. McGloster, Gray Heaton, James Garrison, Bobby Oswald and Mr. and Mrs. Lucas. Miss Maxine Thompson and Miss Ruth, Lock Haven, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Thompson.

Melvin and Cordice Gillette, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Gillette, are patients in the Phillipsburg State Hospital with double pneumonia, both in a serious condition. Miss Lucille Thompson, of Indiana State Normal, spent the week at her parental home. Those who visited through the week at the home of Mrs. Bert Gillette's home were: Mr. and Mrs. August Suresal, Rev. Miss Labell Gotwald, Mrs. William Gotwald, Punksatwey, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Alkey, and Mrs. Earl Midlam, Millersburg.

The trouble with the book publishing business is that there are too many people in the United States who "have a book." Nobody gets mad with a parent who thinks that his offspring is a wonderful specimen; why get mad with people who think their race is the greatest in the world? Well, it might be a good idea for the Congress to give us an idea of what the foreign policy of the United States ought to be.

Tussey-Markle On Wednesday afternoon, March 8th, at the Methodist parsonage, Mr. Allen W. Tussey and Miss Mary Louise Markle, both of McLeary Ford, were united in marriage by Rev. H. Willis Hartsock. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Markle, with whom they will reside for the present.

Miller-Kern

Miss Frances Louise Kern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Kern, of W. Fairmount avenue, State College, became the bride of Harold J. Miller at a ceremony in St. Andrew's Episcopal church, State College, at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning, with Canon Rev. E. M. Frear officiating. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Boalsburg Tavern for the bridal party. Mrs. Miller is a graduate of the College and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity. Mr. Miller was graduated from Ohio State University and is instructor in plant pathology at the Ardenville laboratory of the College. After the first of April Mr. and Mrs. Miller will be at home in Ardenville.

CORN BORER DAMAGE CAN BE CONTROLLED

Damage from European corn borer has been reduced to a minimum in counties where farmers have followed control methods advocated by county agricultural extension representatives of the Pennsylvania State College. J. O. Pepper, extension entomologist, reports. The original infestation of European corn borers was discovered in Erie county about 20 years ago. At one time the damage to the corn crop in Erie county was considerable, but recently only a comparatively small amount of damage has been reported. Many other counties have had serious infestations at one time or another.

Field observations made in Centre county last fall indicate the advisability of cutting stalks low. Standing stalks show a 45.3 per cent infestation of corn borers compared with only 5.75 per cent for stalks cut one to seven inches above the ground. Control of corn borers calls for cooperation between neighbors, Pepper said. If one man fails to follow control practices, he can undo all the work of his neighbors. Pepper explains that much can be done between now and May 1 to reduce the corn borer population. In the field standing stalks and those that are too high to be turned under cleanly in plowing can be broken down so that all refuse will be covered completely.

Another suggestion is to clean and burn scattered stalks, cobs, or corn refuse around the buildings and in the barnyard. The shredding of all stalks that are fed or are used for bedding is recommended. Nobody gets mad with a parent who thinks that his offspring is a wonderful specimen; why get mad with people who think their race is the greatest in the world? Well, it might be a good idea for the Congress to give us an idea of what the foreign policy of the United States ought to be.

Review General Benner's Life

Philip Benner. For nearly twenty years he worked day after night to win success from the soil of his adopted county, and in the meantime eight children were born to him. The first home he built was destroyed by fire, he complains in his letters of many personal ills but, with it all, he kept on with his attempts to make "Rock" as he called his home, the center of every form of iron making then known.

Finally, he erected the beautiful mansion long known as the "Benner House." Giving his wife full credit for her share in his success, he placed in the east wall of the native limestone a stone upon which was carved the date of its erection, "1832," the letters "R. B." for "Ruth Benner," "P. B." for "Philip Benner" and "R. I. W." for "Rock Iron Works." The residence was modeled after one of the well known colonial mansions in Fairmount Park, with beautiful marble paring in all the rooms and a half a dozen exquisite formed circular staircase and iron ballustrade from the basement to the attic at the northern end of the paneled hall.

"From the time of the erection of this mansion Benner allowed his well trained men to do the hard work of the business. He began to take more of an interest in the affairs of the county of which he had become a citizen. Shortly after the completion of his own home he built the stone house on Allegheny street in Bellefonte now occupied by the Linn family, who are his grandchildren. He was one of the organizers of the Centre and Kishacoquillas Turpentine Company, the route to Legistown, of which he was the first president in 1821.

"A member of the then dominant political party, he was an active supporter of Andrew Jackson, and was twice chosen as a presidential elector. He established 'The Centre Democrat' in 1827, and became interested in the movement to finance the construction of the canal through Bald Eagle Valley. His name appears continually on petitions to the courts for more and better roads, and the roads built by his own efforts near his works are models of the day in grade and construction.

"An early governor appointed Philip Benner as Major-General of the Pennsylvania Militia, from which appointment he derived his title. That he was looked upon with respect and admiration by his contemporaries is shown by the fact that the surviving files of the news sheets of his day, such as the 'Patriot' and 'Whig' and the 'Democrat,' name him either as the presiding officer of every public meeting reported or held in the county between 1810 and 1830, or as the chairman of its most important committee.

"The home at 'Rock' was well known to all the notables of the Commonwealth of the early days of the nineteenth century. Visited by governors, senators, judges, members of the General Assembly and prominent citizens, particularly of central Pennsylvania, it was the scene of many a gay assembly, and the place where decisions were made affecting the interests of all of our citizens. Notwithstanding the fact that in later years Centre County has seen three resident governors of the commonwealth, it is likely that more persons of relative importance visited the home at Rock than the accumulated travel to the homes of those who nominally held greater titles.

"General Benner's death in 1832, one hundred and seven years ago, the failure of his sons in business ability and acumen, and the further fact that within twenty years after his death his iron plants were sold abandoned, caused the retirement of his name from the business affairs of the county. Probably his smallest investment, 'The Centre Democrat,' is the greatest memorial of his famous career."

Personally, it is our idea that young people today are more promising than the young people of a generation ago, regardless of the criticism heaped upon them by the sour pussers.
