

Boalsburg Garden Project Launched

Civic Club Launches Wide-spread Garden Development Program

Boalsburg gardens will be a center of local interest during the coming summer, according to plans launched yesterday. A garden development programme, believed to be the first of its kind conducted in this section, will include flower and vegetable gardens in three classes, one for adults, one for juniors, and one for public gardens sponsored by local organizations. Initial plans for this community-wide contest were perfected at a meeting of Harris township citizens, all members of the Civic Club of Boalsburg, which organization will sponsor the project.

Ralph Blaney, county agent of Centre County Agricultural Association, has agreed to serve as counsel and guide for the movement. According to initial plans a wide variety of substantial prizes and honors will be awarded in the several classes. Entry into the competition is open to all residents of Boalsburg and vicinity without entry fee. Competent judges who are specialists in the gardening field have been arranged for. The project will be carried forward under regulations similar to those used in contests of this kind throughout the country.

At the termination of the contest and on the occasion of awarding the prizes and honors, a Garden Mart will be conducted in which the products of the gardens will be on display to the general public. A general meeting to which all residents of the community are invited, will be held Tuesday, March 21, at a meeting place in Boalsburg to be announced later. At this meeting full details of the project will be presented and a pertinent talk will be given by County Agent Blaney and one or two other garden specialists.

Full details of the contest will appear later in these columns.

Logan Fire Company	212.50
Undine Fire Company	212.50
Milesburg Fire Company	53.12

Moral Re-Armament!
Who's ready to start
And let God go dragging
Way down in your heart,
Let's see: under Honesty,
A white lie or two;
Under Purity, pride,
And the fling I was due,
We come to Unselfishness,
It seems hard to find;
I agreed so much time
Improving my mind.
Now the one virtue left
That'll cover all trees,
It's absolute Love, but
From it I seem free.
This can't be "yours truly"
Whom I've always got,
Was the last one to add
To things being "up-so!"
It's a brand new idea,
So I guess I'll begin
To fix up my part
Of the mess the world's in.

will take up their residence at their new appointment. The new pastor will fill the local pulpit on Sunday at both the morning and evening services.

Since coming to Bellefonte the Rev. Mr. Mayes has had the privilege of seeing quite an advance in the church. Ninety-seven members have been added to the membership roll, which now numbers 322.

The Sunday school has had an unprecedented growth, the highest attendance being 398, which was 179 higher than the record attendance of previous pastorates. The average attendance of the school for the five-year period was 197, or 28 higher than the average for the school in any previous one-year period. The other organizations of the church have maintained a fine record.

The financial interests have kept pace with the other records. $2,377 has been paid on the church debt, missions and other offerings have been well supported by the congregation. During their five years' residence in Bellefonte, Mrs. Mayes served as

The church was crowded to capacity with relatives and friends of the deceased, and the more than fifty floral tributes were another indication of the high regard in which he was universally held.

In speaking of Midshipman Noll at the church service, Chaplain Thomas spoke of his marked athletic ability; his musical talents, and the exemplary life he lived. Even during his illness at the Academy hospital last Christmas, the Chaplain declared, Noll was deeply interested in the music pro-ed present and past judges and heads of various bar associations. At the close of the meeting Judge Fleming suggested that an organization embracing the bar associations in the central part of the state be formed. John T. Taylor, State College attorney, pronounced the invocation at the beginning of the dinner.

The first speaker, President McCracken, pointed to the need of a continuance of the "real service" of the attorneys of Pennsylvania are so ably fitted to render in maintaining a sound and honest government, and urged bar members to continue their watchfulness that "no vast wrongs are wrought to public welfare." He declared that it is the duty of the legal profession to see that unauthorized practice of law does not jeopardize public interest, and cited the importance of lawyers functioning as a group against agencies practicing law with inadequate knowledge and equipment.

Chief Justice Kephart, who will retire this year after 21 years of service in the Supreme Court, paid a glowing tribute to Centre County Bar Members of former days who gave the early county bar a statewide reputation as being one of the foremost in Pennsylvania. He declared that the young men stand ready to carry on the outstanding work of those who have gone before, and expressed his hope that those in the legal profession will continue to deserve the power and prestige they have properly merited in the past.

Justice Kephart referred briefly to his coming retirement from the bench and mentioned his mixed feelings of pleasure and sorrow in regard to his retirement.

Friday's meeting was one of a series of similar ones being held from time to time by the local Bar Association since the adoption of its policy of having outstanding speakers present for the meetings. Officers of the Association are: Judge Fleming, president; J. T. Taylor, vice president; J. Thomas Mitchell, secretary, and Phillip H. Johnston, treasurer.

league teams. This invitation means that the Titan Club during the season may contain a larger number of purely Bellefonte faces than has been the case in the past, and that younger material will have its chance to secure permanent berths on the team.

Arrangements are being made to publish a program similar to the one issued last year, and negotiations have been launched to determine what the set-up of the County Leagues will be this spring.
