Omlets are in high favor for the homemaker who is interested in adventure and they offer many possi bilities for variety, according to Miss Butler. Omelets make a pleasing background for left-over foods. Chopped bacon or ham gives additional flavor. Variety as well as color may be secured by adding chopped hooked vegetables, such as carrots, string beans, or asparagus. Some homemakers produce new flavors in their omelets through the use of fresh herbs, such as chives, basil, marjoram or thyme, or a generous pinch of dried herbs.

To secure greater variety, add fruit juices or vegetable juices instead of

Timely Reminders from The Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture

Discontinuing Lights on Layers-With the increase in the number of daylight hours, many poultrymen will discontinue the use of lights on their laying flocks. Poultry extension specialists at the Pennsylvania State College suggest that the use of lights be lessened gradually.

Preparing the Home Garden-Uness the home garden is extremely small, the cheapest and quickest way of getting it in shape is with a team. a plow, and a harrow, say Penn State extension specialists in vegeable gardening. The garden should be prepared for planting as soon as the condition of the soil permits.

Seedlings Improved by Transplanting-Seedlings give the best results if transplanted when 11/2 to 2 inches tall, according to Penn State specialists. Because the seed is own thickly, plants will become spindly and undesirable unless given fore space in which to grow.

Prune Raspberry Canes Now-A better crop of raspberries will be produced if weak canes are removed and the remainder headed back, say pomology extension specialists at Penn State. Early spring is the best ime to prune.

Keep Cemetery Turfs Green-A of home lawn, say extension agronomists at Penn State. Lime and fertilizer are particularly important.

For several years students at Penn State have been manufacturing telescopes for their own use under Dr. Yeagley's direction. During the physics and natural sciences in high schools throughout the state have made telescopes at the College for use in their classes. At the present time 20 students in Dr. Yeagley's classes are making telescopes. As projected by Dr. Yeagley, the multiple observatory at Penn State will be the first of its kind. Instead of concentrating on one large observatory, the plan is to construct out of door, on coat hangers, they several small ones in which will be placed eight or ten-inch instruments, ample for star atudy.
