them useful in musical instruments such as the piano and the violin. We are greatly dependent upon the use of wood and the human race has found much interest, inspiration, comfort and satisfaction in trees.

Trees are the largest and oldest living thing in the world. Dr. Green stated. There are Sequoias 4,000 years old, rising to over 300 feet in height. The blue gum attains a height of from 400 to 450 feet in height. There are over 500 species of trees, not including shrubs, in the United States. We are especially blessed in temperate zones. There are 211 trees and shrubs in Pennsylvania, 100 of these being trees. Only one native tree is extinct, the white cedar. In Europe, the speaker said, you can count the species of trees on the fingers of your hands. Canada has but a few species. In an ordinary Pennsylvania lumber yard you can buy fifty kinds of lumber, in a larger yard 100 kinds.

Trees, Dr. Green said, have various ages. Some as the willow last but 30 or 40 years. Others native to Pennsylvania grow quite old. There are white oaks between Bellefonte and State College, which are from 500 to 700 years old. In the Allen Seegar Forest there are hemlocks which it would take two and a half men to girdle. This forest was set aside to preserve the old virgin timber and made into a state park, which is deforesting the purpose, inasmuch as the tramping of the visitors over the roots of the trees is causing the gradual death of these trees. There is one tree in this forest, which is considered the finest formed and most beautiful tree in America or Europe.

There are white pines in Pennsylvania six to eight feet in diameter; white oaks nine feet in diameter. Sequoias have attained a diameter of 30 feet. The largest oak known in Mexico and is 42 feet in diameter, though not very tall. A sycamore tree four miles south of Lancaster has a 27 1/2 feet circumference, is 102 feet high and has a spread of 138 feet. One of its branches is 84 feet long.

There are several historical trees in Pennsylvania such as the Penn Treaty Elm near Philadelphia, the Witness Tree at Mt. Joy, and the Lafayette Sycamore at Chadds Ford. The most unique tree is the prostrate juniper found on a Pennsylvania estate, which is but three feet high and has a spread of 45 feet. This tree is 165 years old.

Balsa wood is the lightest known. One cubic foot dries weighs less than a half pound. It is lighter than cork and has come to a large usage in life rafts. It was known in the Canal Zone and was unknown until the opening of the canal. It grows up almost like a weed, attaining a three or four-inch diameter inside of two years.

Joyce Kilmer's poem, "Trees," was sung as a solo by Jack H. Yeager. Clarence A. Moore, Assistant Operating Superintendent of the West Penn Power Company for this district, was received into the membership of the club, Armstrong L. Francis making the address of introduction.

Kiwanians "Pop" Garrison and Michael Baker, of the State College club, were guests. Other guests were John Cleland, Pittsburgh; J. Vandewort, State College, and C. W. Smith, Bellefonte.

Next Tuesday the club will celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of the presentation of the charter. The charter members, with J. Kennedy Johnston as chairman, will be in charge of the celebration.

School Board Explains Position

This would mean that the $55,000 realized from the bond issue could secure $45,000 of Federal money which would not need to be repaid and would cost nothing for interest.

"Without P. W. A. or similar aid but with the approval of the bond issue, it is uncertain that any building program could be attempted and if so only the most meagre. Available funds would not be sufficient to replace the structure along the lines of its existence before the fire.

"Without approval of the bond issue and with no P. W. A. assistance there can be no prospect of building on any scale. There would be no alternative but to continue in rented and makeshift quarters indefinitely.

"To date the Board has taken no action official or unofficial to change the site of the proposed building. The attitude of the Board is that its decision must be guided by the conditions which arise. Circumstances may dictate the securing of a new site or determine that the present location be used.

"The present site, with a drop of approximately 24 feet from the front to the rear of the lot and with high embankments on the sides may make new construction prohibitively costly or architecturally impracticable.

"Pressure from State authorities may also make a change of site necessary though Department officials have generally been willing to compromise in their requirements to meet local conditions.

"Play areas for pupils and adults will have to receive consideration. Present-day school construction is usually of the temporary type in the interests of safety, convenience, and economy of construction. Hence a new building may virtually eliminate the existing play areas which are of constantly increasing importance. Future expansion or change of program must also be borne in mind.

"The school law specifically permits school boards to acquire land and construct buildings outside its own limits and without the necessity of annexation.

"The recommendation of the State Department for a site of ten acres is not a hard and fast regulation and would certainly not apply to the Bellefonte district where a large athletic field is already available.

"All these conditions must be faced by the Board and may influence its decisions. The Board is anxious to receive the unbiased judgments of citizens and will carefully weigh any suggestions made. Various questions relative to non-resident pupils are of particular interest to many citizens, but discussion of these problems will be left to the next article which will deal fully with this matter. The possible effects on local taxation and indebtedness will also receive attention in a future article."

Missing Man's Body Found

er key case in which there was a Washington driver's license bearing Lyon's name. Lyon's sister, Mrs. J. E. Maginnis, of 413 Royal Palm way, Tampa, had tentatively identified her brother by the teeth in the skull.

Mote said the case, in which there were no keys, was found about 30 feet from the skeleton. The little mound of clothing and bones were in a woods near Frazier's Beach, west of Memorial Highway on Old Tampa Bay.

Authorities said that the spot where the skeleton was found, although not far from the road, is completely wild and isolated. There would be no reason for anyone to go into the woods, they said. An examination of the bones showed no marks of violence.

Lyon's car got stuck in a mud hole near Frazier's Beach on Old Tampa Bay around 9 o'clock the night of October 1, 1936. A resident of the neighborhood drove him to the Memorial Highway to call a wrecker. After the service car had pulled Lyon's car out of the hole, Lyon could not be found.

Police believe that he wandered down the road toward Memorial Highway, but turned off at a cow pasture. It was dark and he probably got lost in the woods and palmettos.

It is possible the man may have been bitten by a snake, or he might have suffered a heart attack, police pointed out. He was wounded and gassed during the World War. An inquest into the death was scheduled to have been held yesterday.

Lyon saw action in the battles of St. Mihiel, Chateau Thierry and Soissons. A piece of shrapnel was removed from his head the year before he disappeared. Prior to October, 1936, he had been employed as a salesman and resided with his mother at Tampa.

Jack Burns Lyon was a son of the late William A. Lyon of Bellefonte, and Mrs. K. G. Lyon, now of Tampa. The father for years conducted a butcher shop in the room occupied until about a month ago by the Winner Market on South Allegheny street. During their residence in Bellefonte the Lyon family occupied the home on East High street now owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Mark W. Williams.

Leaving Bellefonte about 30 years ago the family located in Buffalo, formerly of Bellefonte, R. D. 3. He is charged with unlawfully receiving $13.50 of relief funds.

Chiselers On Relief Held Under Bail

The three being held for court are charged with having unlawfully obtained a total of $124.30 from the relief.

The remaining three of the seven arrested, have made restitution of a total of $138.30 which they obtained from relief in an unlawful manner, and the cases against them have been dropped.

All the defendants were arrested by State Motor Police from Pleasant Gap and Phillipsburg, and their cases were prosecuted by Robert R. Lutz, of Clearfield, claim adjuster for the department of public assistance.

All were charged with intent to cheat the Commonwealth, in that they are said to have continued to receive aid while earning money from private sources. All had been given an opportunity to make restitution before being given a hearing, the prosecutor said.

The drive being conducted by the State Motor Police is a part of an intensive campaign throughout this section against persons who are not eligible for relief but who are receiving relief grants. This applies to persons who are receiving compensation from other sources while receiving relief grants.

The public assistance board, while determined to stamp out chiseling in so far as possible, is interested primarily in recovering funds unlawfully taken by relief recipients. It is reported that the three who are being held for court still have an opportunity to settle the case by paying in a lump sum the amount of relief they are charged with receiving illegally, together with the costs of prosecution to date.

Prior to their hearing, they were given an opportunity to pay back the amounts almost on their own terms—even to making payments out of their regular relief checks.

Few Spring Flittin's Listed for Bellefonte

spring housecleaning. Houses were available and you had a choice in selecting your new home.

Today there is practically no choice. You determine first what you can afford to pay, then try to find a place that will fit your means. Usually you have one or two houses or apartments to choose from.

Renting is becoming a precarious business in Bellefonte. One landlord who has apartments and business places to rent, has notified his tenants that because Bellefonte will have to build a new school, the rents on all properties he controls will be increased. Another landlord of low-price homes has scaled up his rents substantially, on the excuse that the sewage disposal plant taxes make such action necessary.

Among the few changes reported locally are the following: Fred J. Vogt and family last Thursday vacated their residence on East Curtin street and moved to their former home city, Lock Haven. Their home here, which recently was sold to G. Elmer "Charles" Way, of Willowbank street, was occupied by the Way family on Tuesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Beardsley and two children will move about April 1 from one of the White brothers apartments at the corner of Spring and High streets into the Mrs. Rishel home on Willowbank street which has been vacated by the Way family. Mr. Beardsley is a clerk in the State Liquor Store at Snow Shoe.

The apartment being vacated by the Beardsleys has not been definitely leased at this time.

The Samuel Wittmyer family, for the past year tenants of the R. R. Blair property on East Linn street, have vacated that home and have left Bellefonte. Their furniture has been stored in Selingsgrove and although their plans for the future are indefinite, they are contemplating locating in Maine.

John G. Love, well known Bellefonte attorney, on Monday moved his law offices from the second floor of the Temple Court building to the first floor rooms in the Keystone Gazette building, East High street, vacated some months ago by Dr. Paul M. Corman. The offices Mr. Love vacated have not been rented at this time. It is reported.

George DeLoan and family of Howard, will move early in the month into the Mrs. Eva Simpson property at 124 Ridge street, which until recently was occupied by Lewis Wetzel and family. Mrs. Simpson has vacated her home on Burrows street, and has gone to make her home with her brother, S. W. Eilers, well known Benner township truck farmer. Her house in town has been leased to Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Wright, who since their marriage have been living with Mr. Wright's parents on Bishop street.

Mrs. James Schofield, who has been spending the winter at the home of Mrs. Mary Parker, on West Howard street, is planning to reopen her home on South Thomas street as soon as the weather has moderated.

Dr. Richards Hoffman will move his offices today from the Masonic building on North Allegheny street to the first floor of his home further north on the same street. Dr. Hoffman has been located in the Masonic building for approximately five years. He expects to resume office practice in his new location on Saturday of this week.

History is repeating itself in Mr. Love's move to the rooms on East High street, for when his father, the late Judge J. G. Love retired from the Centre County Bench, he opened law offices in the same rooms his son is now moving into. Judge Love remained at that location until his death in 1910.

and expenses incurred in restoring her to health. He was not in the car at the time of the crash.

Garnet Williams, 14, $15,000 for injuries and permanent disfigurement and impairment. An additional $5,000 is asked on behalf of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Williams, for expenses of medical and other treatment.

Mrs. Kathryn Hale, 36, of Castanea, seeks $30,000 for injuries to herself and for expenses incurred by reason of the injuries. For Robert Hale, aged 5, the sum of $3,000 is asked in addition to $1,000 for Mrs. Kathryn Hale for loss of services, and expense of treatment.

For David Hale, aged 12, the claim is for $1,000, with an additional sum of $500 for his mother, Mrs. Kathryn Hale.

The statements of claim, contained in the five actions, contend that Mr. Bush was negligent in these three respects: that he was driving at high speed under the circumstances; that his car was not under proper control, and that he was not exercising due regard for other users of the highway.

Fleming & Latke, of Bellefonte, are representing the claimants.

In the head-on crash from which the lawsuits originate, nine persons, including Mr. and Mrs. Bush, were severely injured. The other seven persons were occupants of the Williams car, driven by Mrs. Willis Williams. All occupants of both machines were taken to the Lock Haven Hospital for treatment.

According to the statements of claim, Garnet Williams has a curvature of the spine and must wear a special shoe because one leg is shorter than the other. Mrs. Williams is disfigured and her sight is impaired. Robert Hale is permanently disfigured.

UNIONVILLE

Mrs. Nannie Williams attended the funeral of an aunt at Warriors Mark last Saturday, returning to her home here on Tuesday morning.

Miss Grace Clark is still ill at the home of her nephew and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Williams, being confined to her bed most of the time. Her many friends and relatives hope her complete recovery may be speedy.

The young folks are getting the Tennis Fever and planning to get the court in readiness to play. They are hoping to have it ready much earlier this season to play than last Summer. They are planning to enlarge the court which will make it much better.

in the burning of several other cars within the past year or two. Corporal Gray said that Thomas admitted to him that he burned three previous cars.

They were arrested after police began a routine investigation of the burning of a car in the Seven Mountains. They connected it with the car of Brown, who had reported to police that his was stolen.

When they questioned Brown, the latter was tripped up in several stories and finally admitted, that he aided in the burning. He said that he purchased the car last October from Thomas, but was unable to make payments, and that Thomas had made them to the insurance company and on three occasions suggested to Brown that he burn it to get the money.

Surgeons decided Joe wasn't suffering nearly so much from the water he had fallen into as from whatever he'd had to drink before his plunge. Rest, a tapering-off program and sedatives were prescribed and the man is responding nicely to the treatment.
