Echoes From the Past

Fifty Years Ago

Charles Shaffer, a young man about twenty years af age, was killed cn the railroad near Tyrone, being struck by the top of a bridge while standing on a moving freight train.

Louis Vinch, a Russian, who makes his living by peddling stationery about the country, while walking on the railroad tracks near Osceola, was struck by an engine and had his foot crushed under the wheels.

The residence of Mr. Isaac Miller, near Axe Mann, was destroyed by fire last Monday. All household items were lost. Mr. and Mrs. Miller were away from home at the time and it is supposed that the fire originated from a defective flue. There was no insurance on the building or household goods.

The front has been improved with the addition of large windows and new doors; the interfor has been remodeled, papered and painted in a most tasteful style.

There is a cannibal in town and few people are aware of the fact. For over a year this fellow has been living upon the flesh and blood of his brothers and sisters and since his atrocious crimes have been discovered it has been decided by the authorities to put an end to his existence. The cannibal for a number of years has been living in the large spring from which Bellefonte draws its water supply and has grown large and sleek and his sides are covered with a wealth of gold spots. Mr. Samuel Ryan, superintendent of the water works, is on the lookout for him and will wind up the old codger's career the first time he makes his appearance along the banks. .The value of crude petroleum for generating heat under boilers and in all kinds of furnaces is well known to the scientific world. But one of the more recent inventions is the transformation of crude oil into gas resembling natural gas and a very useful product for manufacturing industries. The gas, it is claimed, can be manufactured from the crude oil at little expense and is cheaper than coal, and in some instances, is cheaper than natural gas. The system has been adopted several nail works and other manufacturing establishment in this ing this season with the Philadelstate and has proved to be a success. Gov. An alarm of fire was given on Wednesday morning and called out the different fire departments. The roof of Mrs. M. S. Graham's residence on jail hill was afire but the application of several buckets of water put an end to all trouble. The companies are certainly deserving of much credit for the manner in which they respond to the many alarms Last Friday a serious accident occurred down at McCalmont's stone quarries near this place. The great est precautions are always taken to prevent anyone from being injured but owing to the rain which had fallen some rocks along the side of the quarry became detached and dropped to the floor of the quarry. Theodore McNichol, George Zimmerman, and Terrance Murray, all workmen were struck by some of the falling stones, and were felled to ground. Mr. Zimmerman had the his skull fractured and is lying in critical condition at his home.

A real estate transaction in Centre Hall was another link in a chain of sales in which the changing val-ue of the same piece of real estate through the years was well demonstrated. The following transactions involved what was knowyn as the Geiss property in Centre Hall. On April 9, 1856, the lot was sold by Uriah D. Osman to Francis Harpster, the consideration being $100. The house was built a short time later by George Harpster, and on April 2, 1870 was sold to Simon S. Wolf, of Miles township, for $2,600. On July 21, 1870 Wolf sold the place to Israel J.
