

Opening Day Catch Light

along the streams earlier in the evening began angling and many continued all through the night and all day Saturday. Fishing was generally conceded to be extremely poor, and the catch was light.

One phenomenon which seemed to predominate along all local streams was that trout "bit" only for a few minutes at some time during the first day—and then quit working entirely. Along Logan's Branch the "zero hour" occurred about 5:30 a. m., when many an angler caught his limit in a few minutes' time. Along Spring Creek there was a time in the early morning, and again in the late afternoon when trout were caught in numbers. For the rest of the time, fishermen flailed the water with indifferent success.

One Blair county angler paid a fine of $10 and costs Saturday morning when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Harold Cowher, West Bishop street, Bellefonte, for being over-anxious to begin the 1939 season. Fish Warden Carl West arrested him near Houserville Friday night after he found a trout in the Blair countian's creel less than two hours before the opening of the season.

James Hahn, of Gramplan, and Robert Eager, of Barnesboro, each paid fines of $20 and costs to Squire Cowher, Saturday, on charges of fishing in posted sections of Spring Creek.

Unconfirmed reports have it that nine other anglers were apprehended in Fishermen's Paradise, and were ousted from the premises. The season at the Paradise will not open until next month.

The serious business of fishing is almost a farce locally on the first day, for there are so many anglers most of the time is spent in finding an unoccupied hole in which to cast a line. It was estimated that 3000 fishermen were on Spring Creek between the Roopsburg Mill and the Fishermen's Paradise, and the Fishermen's Paradise. Logan's Branch was lined almost solidly with fishermen. As the day wore on, many anglers who had been up all night, but who would not give up on account of fatigue, were seen wrapped in blankets, quilts or auto robes, lying or sitting on the damp ground while casting into pools near the banks.

For the first time in piscatorial history, local Sunday school classes pitched tents along Logan's Branch and other streams and served hot dogs, coffee and sandwiches to fishermen. They did a thriving business.

The price of anglegear on local markets held firm at one cent each, and some sporting goods stores featured California red worms at the same price. Because of new laws limiting the number of live minnows a store may carry, there was some difficulty in keeping the supply of that popular lure up to the demand.

Fish were caught on almost every kind of lure, but live minnows accounted for most catches, with anglegear, a close second. Spinners, bucktails, dry flies and wet flies also proved effective the first ings early next week before Justice of the Peace E. R. Hancock, Phillipsburg, on charges of malicious mischief in connection with damage at the John Galbraith mine.

Motor Police at Rockview also are investigating damage early last week at the Fye mine near Moshannon. The tippie was destroyed and some props were removed, officers report.

The explosion at the Groe mine Saturday morning is by far the most serious evidence of violence occurring in this area since April 1, when the U. M. W. A. walked out until new agreements had been signed between mine operators and the Union.

The blast is reported to have taken place between 4 and 5 o'clock Saturday morning, completely destroying the gasoline motor driven generating plant which supplied current for lighting the mine as well as for running coal cutting machines and the mine motors which hauled loaded cars to the surface. The windows of the generator house were shattered and the roof blown off.

Members of the Groe family reported that the day previous to the explosion a load of coal had been hauled from the mine to a school at Yeagertown, but that the shipment was made with union consent and was entirely legal. The family also reported that small quantities of coal had been removed for the use of the family, but that no other coal had been moved from the mine.

The arrest of the four suspects, it is reported, came after tire tracks found near the mine were traced to one of the suspects. Police, tracing these clues, came upon other clues which they claim may link the four with the dynamiting.

Four Others Held Thursday night by state motor police upon a complaint by John Galbraith, Phillipsburg mine operator, pleaded not guilty to charges of malicious mischief and trespassing when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Hancock, at Phillipsburg.

They were held for a hearing tentatively scheduled for Monday morning at 10 o'clock on $1000 bail each. $700 for the malicious mischief charge and $300 for the trespassing charge.

The miners are Joseph Shiroke, George Hurtick and George Socl, all of Hawk Run, and Joseph Fetckenko, Jr., of Phillipsburg, R. D.

Charges Damage The operator contended that a group of miners came to his mine near Osceola Mills last Tuesday and ordered him to stop working. He said he agreed to quit if his property was not disturbed. No other work was done at the mine Wednesday, he contended.

Thursday, he stated in his charge, the first legal action to be taken since trouble between miners and truckers broke out, six carloads of men came to his mine and upset one loaded and eight empty mine cars, damaging several badly, and tore out pipe line from the drift mouth of the mine.

Privates H. D. Ream and Wayne C. Myers of the Rockview detail of the state motor police were the arresting officers.

Mine Caved In While coal continued to become a scarcity with cold spring weather nipping this entire area, another mine in this section was the scene of trouble when a drift mouth was caved in at Centre, near Osceola Mills.

Using the same methods which were employed at the Hill Bros. mine near Morrisdale, supporting props were smashed at the Ridge-way mine near Centre, a short distance from Osceola Mills. The extent of the damage was not estimated. The mine is under the supervision of Jack Ridgeway, of New Liberty, near here.

With coal orders piling up again because of the drop in temperature coal truckers reported coal was becoming more difficult to secure each day that the deadlock continued between miners and operators. The change in the policy of the miners to confine efforts more to mines than to picket lines was given as the cause of the present difficulty for truckers to obtain coal.

Tension Continues The incident was another in a series which have been prevalent all week in the Clearfield district. Tension is reported continuing around Osceola Mills.

"Enough coal is going through Osceola Mills to burn Altoona," one reliable observer asserted last night as a survey of the coal situation here was attempted. Most of it is from non-union mines.

Orders for emergency coal for churches and schools must come from their officials and be submitted to Joseph Feast, head of the UMW in this district, with headquarters at Johnstown, one source said.

At present a representative of the union accompanies any truck hauling "emergency" coal to the place of delivery to make certain authorized coal is not taken to any other bin, union men disclosed.

Most of the non-union mined coal is reported selling at higher prices because of the risk truckers say they take in running picket lines and of the longer hauls from small mines.

BLANCHARD $55,000 Bond Issue Approved

in the question as stated on the ballot. The question as stated on the ballot at Tuesday's election was: Shall the indebtedness of the School District of the Borough of Bellefonte be increased in the sum of $55,000 for the following purpose: As a portion of the cost of construction and equipment of a school building and the purchase of supplies therefore?

Some persons are reported to be attempting to interpret the approval of the bond issue as a vote to support the School Board authority and sanction to build on some other site than the present high school location.

Persons in close contact with School Board members report that in the past week or so there has been a definite swing of sentiment on the part of some board members who heretofore had favored a new site, toward the present site. George Hazel, president of the board, has gone on record to give the voters an opportunity to express their sentiments if at any time in the future the board considers a change of site.

The approval of the bond issue makes available to the school district approximately $155,000 for a new building; about $100,000 accruing from fire insurance carried on the destroyed school building. With the possibility of obtaining federal or state aid in the amount of 45 to 50 percent of the total cost of a new structure. It is expected that the way has been cleared for the erection of a $300,000 building. Such a structure will provide for all immediate needs, with some facilities to spare, it is believed.

School Board members yesterday declared that while the bond issue question is the way, immediate action can be taken to secure plans and estimates, and to launch a movement for government aid in financing the new building.

Several Hundred Reduces Work Most hundred men were thrown out of employment Monday after a drastic order was received to reduce the work in the shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Renovo. All departments are affected by the order which reduces the number to a minimum for only necessary work. The cause is contributed to the bituminous coal strike.
