During the 38 years he lived on his farm near Ross church he followed farming and lumbering. He cleared part of the land and erected the buildings on the farm now owned by Alfred Albright near Penna. VEGETABLES REQUIRE FREQUENT CULTIVATION

The time for cultivation of the vegetable garden is here again. It opened the moment the seedlings were visible. According to County Agent R. C. Blaney, such crops as corn, cabbage, tomatoes, peppers, peas and beans that are planted in wide rows may be cultivated rather deeply the first time, particularly if a heavy rain has hardened the soil. However, shallow cultivation is best later to avoid damage to the root systems. Under ordinary conditions, repeating cultivation at approximately two-week intervals is sufficient. Because radishes, onions, lettuce, beets and carrots are planted more closely, shallow cultivation about one inch deep at more frequent intervals is best. Modern hand wheel hoes do a thorough job if equipped with blades rather than cultivator teeth. The most popular hand tool to kill young weeds and produce a shallow mulch is a hoe rather than a rake. The same principle holds true with the use of wheel hoe attachments—blades are better than teeth. Germinating weed seeds and small weeds are easily destroyed, but more mature weeds grow rapidly and are harder to destroy. They rob the vegetables of moisture, fertility and space. Therefore, it is important to keep ahead of the weeds.

EQUIP YOURSELF WITH GAY RAINY DAY TOGS

Are you one of those people who say "I just won't wear rubbers" or "I don't own an umbrella"? Then you are a person who is willing to have your best hat wilted in a spring rain and your shoes soaked and shapeless. Leather when soaked with water becomes shapeless, reminds Miss Helen S. Butler, home economics extension representative of Centre county. When dry it becomes stiff and hard and requires considerable care to bring it back to normal. Leather deteriorates with repeated soakings and once comfortable shoes pinch and squeak. No one can afford to overlook the economy plan for shoes not taken care of soon wear out. Half rubbers are inexpensive in comparison to a pair of shoes. The rubbers can be folded into a small package and produced in the nick of time. For a hard driving rain, a pair of galoshes are necessary to protect the feet and ankles. Nowadays rain clothes are made to fold into the minimum of bulk. Also they are bright and gay. Celophane, pliofilm, and oil are used for coats or capes. These will fold into a package small enough to put into a purse. These garments are inexpensive and convenient. Although not so durable as the regular raincoat, they are cooler and lighter in weight. Buy them in bright colors. If an umbrella seems to be "excess baggage" in traveling, get a short one which will go into your suitcase. It will save your best hat and a pressing bill. And, as important as anything, no one wants to arrive at her destination bedraggled and dripping.

Council Favors Street Closing

for removal of surface water from the affected portion of Lamb street. The motion, made by Councilman W. W. Stutz and seconded by Councilman Melvin Cherry after a lengthy discussion of the problem involved, was passed unanimously by the following Councilmen present: Sig. Cherry, W. J. Emerick, H. A. Broeckerhoff, Harry Badger, E. J. Teaman and Leslie Thomas. Councilman W. H. Doll was absent and Thomas Beaver, president, did not vote.

The discussion began with Mr. Emerick going on record as not being in favor of closing the street unless the ground made available by such action was to be part of the site of the new building. In other words, he did not favor closing the street for playground or other similar purposes.

George Hasel, president of the School Board, and spokesman for the group, declared that if the Board has the entire tract to present as one section, rather than as two pieces separated by a public street, the State Department of Public Instruction might look more favorably upon the present school site as the location for any new building.

Board members present, in addition to Mr. Hasel were: Charles Cook, William B. Troupe, Bossart DeHass and Horace J. Hartranft.

Mr. Beaver, president of Council, declared that with Lamb street closed, High street would be the only thoroughfare extending from the east to the western parts of town. He declared that this might result in additional traffic congestion, and that in winter time the steep grades of Spring street often cannot be negotiated without chains.

Councilman Cherry expressed the belief that a public hearing in the matter should be held to determine public sentiment. However, the absence of any petition against the proposed move, or any other expression of feeling against closing the street was taken to indicate that there are few or no objections to the proposal.

It was generally conceded that if the School Board provides ready access to water and sewer lines and takes care of removing surface water from the closed part of the street, there is no sound reason for refusing the request; provided, of course, that the closing of the street is a significant factor in having any new building erected on the present grounds. In other words if it should come to pass that some other site must be chosen for a new school, the closing of Lamb street will not be approved by Council.
