Highlights

Yesterday afternoon Judge Theodore M. Rosen, of Philadelphia spoke briefly at flag raising ceremonies held at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Home on West Bishop Street. The speaker was introduced by John G. Love, and the flag was presented by George Sunday, Spanish American War Veteran. William Hampton, commander of the post, presided at the ceremonies.

Because the American Legion carnival on the Undine lot on East Bishop Street was rained out two nights, an announcement was made this morning that the carnival will be held again this Saturday night. A number of free acts will be presented and there will be fun and refreshments for all. The public is invited.

The Titan Metal Company's two ace photographers, Mickey Adams and Charlie Garbrick should have a complete record of yesterday's parade, for the pair spent their entire time yesterday afternoon taking movie and "still" shots from a platform erected for them in front of the First National Bank building. The public is to have a chance to look at the films, it is understood.

J. Frank McCormick, Jr., chief of the Lock Haven Fire Department, was in charge of the department's new LaFrance fire truck, which was publicly shown for the first time in the Flag Day celebration. The new truck is a perfect match for Chief McCormick's hair, both being a brilliant, fiery red.

Every available window in Crider's Exchange building as well as of other buildings along the route of parade were filled with spectators yesterday afternoon as persons fought for vantage points to watch the parade. Four boys were perched upon the false front wall atop the Murphy five to a dollar store.

After looking over the drum majors of most of the drum and bugle corps and bands of neighboring towns and cities, this writer has come to the inescapable conclusion that the Bellefonte High School Band has three of the best-looking and most talented drum majors that you'll find anywhere. This belief is strengthened by the opinions of Harrisburg residents who have seen practically all the drum majors in the state. They don't make them any better-looking, it seems.

We just can't get over that Clearfield band. They really have something there. Take any band that has a bassoon player, and its a little out of the ordinary, but when the band also has 99.9 per cent of real musicians in addition, it's bound to be good. And when anything is good, you HAVE to like it.

Whatever we can say about the State College Junior Drum and Bugle Corps would be an anti-climax, but this is just a line to let the members know that if they are awarded the national championship it is only because they deserve it. During the competitive drill, one of the girl drummers lost her drumstick. Did she fall in a faint, or let the unused arm hang woodenly by her side? No! The hand continued through every beat and every routine, just as though the stick had not been lost. To us, that simple act was a sermon on why the State College outfit has won the laurels it has. Members are ready for any emergency.

When affairs like yesterday's celebration are staged, it is usually one man who does most of the work. In this case it was Samuel D. Rhine-Smith, Commander of Brooks-Doll Post. Although he had plenty of assistance, his part was still a major one, and he handled it in admirable fashion.

Judges who awarded prizes in the seriously section took their work seriously. After the parade they retired to the Bellefonte Council chambers where they deliberated for nearly two hours before announcing their decision. Members of the board of judges were: M. M. Tawney, former fire chief of Harrisburg; J. William Morgan, former State Fire Marshal; L. E. Elmer, W. Faber, of the Pennsylvania State Police, Harrisburg and Howard Frey, of Collingdale, who claimed to be representing the "The Visiting Firemen."

The weather was ideal for the occasion. Clear skies and comparatively cool temperatures made things pleasant for archers and spectators alike. As the parade ended the air became too cool for comfort and shivering spectators swarmed restaurants and the many temporary eating stands for refreshments.

Numerous State and District officers of the American Legion and Auxiliary attended the District convention in the Court House yesterday afternoon. District Commander William Reese, of Port Allegheny presided, and numerous reports were heard. J. Mitchell Chase, of Clearfield, read by-laws proposed for the district group.

The town was well policed. There were 18 traffic officers and 2 mounted officers from the State Motor Police, in addition to the town police. No arrests were reported and order, generally, was good. Not one Legionnaire accepted the invitation Sheriff Harry V. Keeler extended to Legion members when he hung over the front door of the jail a sign reading, "Welcome Buddies."

Late yesterday afternoon while Rufus Korman, of Bellefonte, R. D. 3, was enroute to Bellefonte to see the parade, and Homer E. Senior, of Bellefonte, R. D. 2, was on his way home to change his clothes preparatory to coming here to see the parade, their cars met head-on in the Curtin Narrows, and neither man got here. Mrs. Korman, thrown against the windshield, was bruised about the chest, and Mr. Senior suffered a sprained back. Both cars were considerably damaged.

Zion Man First Centre County Son to Die in World War Service was of powerful physique, surgeons were unable to check the course of the disease.

After his death on February 25, the entire camp joined in a military funeral in his honor, and as the flag-draped casket was moved from a caisson to the train to begin its journey home, a band played "Nearer My God to Thee." Arthur Beezer accompanied the remains home on the train.

More than 50 automobiles containing upwards of 600 persons from all parts of the county were in the cortege that moved from the deceased's parental home in Zion to the Bush Hollow Methodist church for the last rites, and when the funeral procession arrived at the church, the small building was already crowded to capacity.

Many were forced to remain outdoors during the services, which were conducted by the Rev. M. C. Piper, of Milesburg, assisted by Rev. C. C. Shuey, of Bellefonte and the Rev. Mr. Cook, of Julian.

Palbearers were: Arthur Beezer, Edward Sunday and William Lambert, from Augusta, Georgia; Harry Whiting; Earl Kline and Howard Casper, of Bellefonte, all members of former Troop L. Other members of the troop who attended the services were: Captain H. Laird Curtin, Major S. M. Huff, Jeff Tierney, Paul Stover, Roy Groves, William Cox and Donald Snyder. The firing squad was composed of the following members: George W. Sunday, R. C. Daley, Milton Reed, Stuart Hampton, Willis Williams, and Wilbur Saxton, members of the Spanish-American War Veterans. Other members of that organization present were H. S. Taylor and S. D. Oertig, Esq. The funeral tributes were numerous and beautiful, bearing testimony as to the high regard in which Breen was held.

The young soldier was survived by his father, John Breen, and the following brothers and sisters: Alma, Luella, Walter, Blanche, Earl and Howard, all at home. He was born in Union township on September 2, 1896, making his age at time of death 21 years, 5 months and 21 days. After receiving his education at the Julian schools he studied telegraphy and was employed in that capacity by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. In the summer of 1917 he enlisted in Troop L and accompanied that organization to Camp Hancock. When the Cavalry was abolished he was placed in the 108th Artillery Supply Company.

Shift Courses At High School

Woodworking is Now Elective Subject; Architects Discuss Building

Abandonment of woodworking as a required course for all boys at the Bellefonte High School, and establishment of an elective three-year course in mechanical drawing featured a regular meeting in the Bellefonte School Board, Monday night.

A representative of Hunter & Caldwell, Altoona architects, appeared at the meeting to report on progress being made with preliminary plans and sketches of a proposed new building on the site of the fire-razed high school.

Decision to make woodworking an elective course was made upon the recommendation of Supervising Principal E. K. Stock who declared the teaching facilities are not adequate to give every boy in high school a year's instruction in that course, and that it is otherwise not desirable to compel all students to take the course. On the other hand, Mr. Stock, said, many students have expressed a desire for a third-year course in mechanical drawing.

In discontinuing woodworking as a required course, Mr. Stock, said, the faculty will urge as many students as possible to take the subject for one year. The new ruling will be of great aid in expediting matters in cases where it is to the best advantage of students to omit woodworking.

The board unanimously elected Miss Mary Welka as physical education teacher in the high school next fall. For the past eight years she has been teaching in the grade schools here, and will complete the required studies this summer for high school work.

A unanimous vote was recorded by the board to create the position of principal at the Bishop Street School, to supervise activities at that building. Mrs. Elinor C. McDowell was the only applicant for the position, and no action in the matter of electing a principal was taken until others have had an opportunity to submit applications.

A special meeting for the adoption of the budget for the ensuing year will be held in the near future. In the meantime, a copy of the proposed budget is on file in the offices of the school secretary at the Academy building, where it may be inspected at any time during regular business hours.

Montgomery and Reynolds First to Enlist for Service

The first young men from Bellefonte to answer the call of President Wilson for recruits to increase the war strength of the navy from 74,500 to 87,000 were Philip Reynolds and Gordon Montgomery. These two well known Bellefonte men enlisted in the Navy Coast Defense Reserve, and on March 27, 1917 left Bellefonte for Newport to report for duty. Their work was to be in connection with a proposed "Mosquito Fleet," to be used as submarine chasers. Reynolds was the youngest son of Col. and Mrs. W. Fred Reynolds and was a student at Princeton University. Montgomery was a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Montgomery, was studying in preparation for entering Annapolis. Both young men came from two of the oldest and best families in Bellefonte, and their enlistment was expected to serve to encourage others to follow their example. During the following month many other boys from Bellefonte and vicinity joined the navy in response to President Wilson's appeal for recruits. They were: James McCulley, Robert Taylor, Joseph Soubek, John Smith, A. Linn McGinley, Alton Cruise, Malcolm Wetzel, Elmer Long, Willard Apt, Frederick Schad, Harry Wetzel, Donald Gettig, James M. McGarvey, James Marshall, Boyd Kelley and Fred Noll.

Cited for Bravery Under Fire

The story of a Bellefonte man's citation for bravery under fire was told in a letter written by Colonel Asher Miner, of Wilkes Barre, commander of the 108th Field Artillery (formerly the Third Artillery, Pennsylvania National Guard). The man referred to was William Lambert, son of Contractor and Mrs. John S. Lambert, of Bellefonte. The Colonel's letter set forth that the duties of the regimental battalion and battery telephone and signal details were most hazardous. On September 7, at 7 p. m., he continued, a line was run from Villetto to connect with the first battalion at Courlandon. Private Lambert and three other took the wire across a bridge over the Vesle river, south of Courlandon, where they were met by three other men with the wire from Villetto. At that time the Germans began to shell the railroads on both sides of the road between Magnex and Courlandon, concentrating on a company of engineers building a bridge across the river. The seven men remained in an exposed position under heavy shell fire until the work was completed, the Colonel wrote.

10,000 See Flag Day Parade

blue crepe paper, the boat was realistic, attractive, and patriotic. Second prize in this division went to the City Bakery, whose float represented a gigantic basket filled with Old Tyme Bread.

In the Commercial division, the first prize was awarded to the County Chevrolet Company. This float was in the nature of a gigantic advertisement for Bellefonte's fame as a center of fishing and fish culture, for on the float was a gigantic trout harnessed to reins held in the hands of Miss Gerladine Casper, of Bellefonte, who was dressed to represent Miss Bellefonte. Second prize in this division went to the O. A. Kline Hardware store for a float on which Betsy Ross was shown spinning material for making the first American flag.

The parade was headed by a mounted group consisting of members of the Pennsylvania Motor Police; Captain Herbert M. Beezer, chief marshal of the parade, and his aides, and the massed colors. Then came cars bearing Gold Star mothers, followed by the State College Legion and Auxiliary Junior Drum and Bugle Corps.

Following the drum and bugle corps was the State College American Legion. Next in order came the Bellefonte Elks No. 1, bearing a large crepe paper insignia of that lodge; the Fame Fire Company of Lewisburg with that organization's manager and ambulance; the Citizens' Hose Company and Auxiliary of Tyrone and the Legion Post and Drum and Bugle Corps of Philipsburg. The Titan Metal Company's float and the Neptune Fire Company, of Tyrone, with the Auxiliary, band, and drum and bugle corps of that organization, were next in line. The Philipsburg High School Band and the Hope and Reliance Fire Companies of Philipsburg; the Veterans of Foreign Wars, State College; the Hand-in-Hand Fire Company and that group's drum and bugle corps with a drum major who could do anything, set play Yankee Doodle with his baton, concluded the first division of the three-section parade.

"Bun" Beaver astride a fine horse, led the second division. Behind him in order were: the Houtzdale Legion with drum and bugle corps; a float by the Houtz Lumber Company, State College; the Milesburg Fire Company; the Alpha Fire Company with band; the Bellefonte Kiwanis float, consisting of a pyramid illustrating the club's slogan, "We Build"; the Pleasant Gap Fire Company, and a unit entitled "Future Sportsmen"; the O. A. Kline "Betsy Ross" float; the Millheim Fire Company with band; Fortiety's Fire Company, No. 7, with Mayor Andrew Kautz in charge of the nondescript outfit whose slogan is "You Light 'em—We Fight 'em!"

Then came the County Chevrolet Company's prize-winning float; and next the Clearfield American Legion Band. And there, folks, is a band. You could tell as soon as you heard the first note on the bassoon that there was a band worth hearing, and the more you heard the more you wanted to hear. The outfit has won the State championship nine times, and from the comment this writer has heard, the Clearfield outfit can come here anytime and be assured of an eager audience.

Next in line came the Howard Fire Company, the Blazing Arrow Company, of Tyrone, which was escorted by the Altoona Macabees drum and bugle corps composed entirely of girls, and garbed in striking green uniforms. Then came the Blazing Arrow Auxiliary and drum corps; the Undine Firemen of Bellefonte, with the Spring Mills Band, and the float of the Decker Motor Company, Bellefonte.

Milton Draws Attention

Heading the third division was the American Legion of Milton, with that post's drum and bugle corps which somehow never moved but what the crowd gave it a big hand; then came the float of the Bellefonte Rotary Club bearing the club's insignia; the Hastings Fire Company, of Hastings; the Osceola Mills American Legion with the High School band; the Brooklyn Hose Company, drum and bugle corps, Auxiliary and apparatus from Lewisport; the American Legion of Millheim with the East Centre County Band; the Bellefonte Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary; Brooks-Doll Post, Legion, Bellefonte, and band; and floats by the Wolf Furniture Company and the Harman Dairy.

The final float in the parade was that of the Bellefonte Chamber of Commerce, which was entitled "Queen of the Zither," with Mrs. Alberta Krader of Bellefonte, seated upon a throne. During an interval while the float was being pulled on the State American Legion, acting in the absence of Department Commander Gwynne, presented to the Titan Metal Company of Bellefonte a certificate for distinguished service to the community. The award was received on behalf of the company by W. W. Sieg, president who gave credit to those whose co-operation made the advancement of the industry a possibility.

Meeting at Court House

Judge Theodore M. Rosen, Judge of Common Pleas Court No. 2, Philadelphia, was the speaker at a public meeting in the Court House after the parade last night. A forceful and interesting speaker, Judge Rosen, a veteran of the World War who was severely wounded in service, spoke of the flag and its relation to democracy. He urged that "Democracy be taught affirmatively in the schools of the nation," and appealed to the younger generation to remember the work being carried on by the American Legion to further the principles of democratic government.

Samuel D. Rhine-Smith, commander of Brooks-Doll Post, presided at the meeting, while Aaron D. Letzell, bi-county commander, assisted. John G. Love, Bellefonte attorney, introduced Judge Rosen, and Guy J. Williams, vice chairman of the State American Legion, acting in the absence of Department Commander Gwynne, presented to the Titan Metal Company of Bellefonte a certificate for distinguished service to the community. The award was received on behalf of the company by W. W. Sieg, president who gave credit to those whose co-operation made the advancement of the industry a possibility.

3,000 See Drum and Bugle Corps Competition

The bleachers at the Community Athletic field were jammed to capacity, and many spectators were forced to stand while the drum and bugle corps competition for prizes totaling $225 was being held. Three organizations took part: the State College Legion and Auxiliary Junior Drum and Bugle Corps, of State College, which won first prize of $100, the Milton Junior Drum Corps, of Milton, which won second prize of $75, and the Philipsburg Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, which won third prize of $50. Of the State College outfit's performance, one of the judges J. Floyd Kuhns, of Greensburg, commented as follows: "A splendid corps—a pride to any Legion Post." In their natty blue and orange uniforms the 35 members of the corps staged a perfectly executed and well timed drill. With the perfection they have displayed in winning several state championships, the College outfit scored a total of 83.40 points out of a possible 100 to win first place.

The performance of the Milton outfit yesterday, brought applause not only at the athletic field, but also along the entire route of the parade. This corps was judged to be only slightly less perfect than the State College group. In the competition the black and orange outfitted group scored 76.35 out of a possible 100 points. Philipsburg's natty blue and gold corps made a striking appearance on the drill field, and with a total of 73.10 points out of a possible 100 they finished in nearly as good a score as Milton. Philipsburg lost several points through failure to stay on the drill field the required ten minutes. Judges of the drum and bugle corps competition and parade music were: K. R. Dever, Nazareth; J. Floyd Kuhns, of Greensburg; Don M. Kimmel, of Berlin; Ralph T. Smith, of Harrisburg and Hall P. Achenbach, of Lock Haven. Prize winners in the various events held here yesterday in conjunction with the American Legion District Convention and Flag Day celebration were as follows:

long period of years. James C. Furst, attorney for the Pittsburgh bank which owns the Academy property, in a letter to the School Board, gave permission to the Board to rent the garage building on the Academy property. The band for the school treasurer was reduced from $10,000 to $5,000 and the board secretary was bonded for $10,000, in compliance with State laws. The application of Clyde Davis for the position of janitor in the local schools was placed on file until such time as a vacancy occurs.

Bellefonte Legion Post Name Honors Well Known War Victims

Above are photos of the two local men in whose memory Brooks-Doll Post, American Legion, Bellefonte, is named.

Brooks and Doll, Russell D. Confer and another man were sleeping on top of the ground near the front lines in France on September 22, 1918, when a shrapnel shell landed nearby. Brooks and Doll were fatally injured; Confer and the other man escaped with wounds.

Brooks, a son of Orlin E. Brooks, of Milesburg, was a native of Leidy, Pa., and was aged 20 years, 7 months, and 11 days. He was survived by his father, five brothers and a sister, namely: Private Leonard S. Brooks, Camp Lee, Va.; Raymond N. Frank, A. Kenneth J. Luther W. and Dale, all of Milesburg, and Mrs. Viola F. Dunkelberger, of Pleasant Gap.

Doll was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Doll, of Bellefonte, and was aged 21 years, 3 months and 3 days. He was survived by his parents and one sister, Miss Marie, at home. Doll was graduated from the Bellefonte High school, and was employed at the C. D. Casebeer jewelry store. He was a member of St. John's Catholic church and of the Knights of Columbus. A member of Troop L, Bellefonte, he left here September 11, 1917, for Camp Hancock, where he received his overseas training. He arrived in France on May 30, 1918.
