John C. Herr of Howard was bitten on the right knee by a dog owned by a member of the Schechter family on North Water street, Bellefonte, recently, while he was walking past the Schechter home. Herr had been to Beezer's garage and was on his way up town when the dog, on a leash held by its owner, sank its teeth into the young man's knee. Herr immediately went to a doctor to have the wound cauterized and received anti-toxin. The dog is being kept under the supervision of Dr. S. M. Nussey, veterinarian, for a ten-day period to determine whether the animal might have rabies.

The street light question at Coburn, which has been the cause of much discussion during the past two weeks is as follows, according to F. J. Malone, who is president of the Penn Township Civic Club. The street light tax duplicate for six years was around $17, while the street light bill was over $200. Two years ago, the duplicate was raised to $212, which if all were collected was enough to pay most of the bill. But—it was not all collected and therefore each year the town was in arrears with West Penn Power Co. Drastic action was indicated, so some of the men of town held a meeting and authorized the road supervisors to sign a new contract with West Penn and eliminate two lights—the one at the intersection in town, and the other at the extreme end of Penna Creek Road. The rumor that the people of town will have a chance to vote on the new lighting arrangement is only a rumor, according to Mr. Malone.

A SMALL BOY'S WAIL

Oh! gee, Oh! goah, what a 4th of July.
With not a thing to shoot; If it never came around again, We wouldn't give a hoot.
No skyrocket or roman candles. Nor things that make a big noise; Nothing but caps and pistols.
Why, they are baby's toys.
We used to have five-inch crackers, Dynamite and so forth; But now we have to sedate and have a safe and sane 4th. I bet when I grow to be a man, I'll make laws to suit the boys, So when the 4th of July comes around, They can make plenty of noise.
