

Echoes From the Past

Fifty Years Ago

The hunting season opened on Monday and every fellow who had a gun and the time to spare was out in the woods hunting game. The biggest haul was made by John Wagner, who returned with a string of fourteen squirrels.

Nittany Valley farmers report quite a shortage in the wheat crop in that locality. Threshermen in the biggest haul was made by John Wagner, who returned with a string of fourteen squirrels.

The Methodist congregation expects to occupy its audience room in a short time. The room, which has been undergoing repairs, has been frescoed in a most pleasing manner by the Philadelphia firm and is a fine specimen of workmanship.

Mr. Adolph Loeb, who had been ill for some time, is now quite well and frequently appears on the streets and at his place of business. Another series of entertainments is being arranged for by the ladies of winter to be given during the coming winter. Last year's course proved most successful.

The dilapidated appearance of the Court House yard and surroundings is a disgrace to Centre County. The citizens of Milesburg are becoming exceedingly impatient over the delay in the construction of the county bridge at that place.

On Monday of this week, a new departure was made at the opening of Court. Heretofore it was the custom of the Court not to call the Grand Jury until after the Court was called at 2 o'clock, and this caused considerable delay as the Court was often compelled to wait an hour and often more, before a bill could be found.

Among the recommendations made by the Grand Jury in regard to the condition of the County property, were the following: "In the jail we find the following objects which should be immediately removed as any of them will facilitate the escape of prisoners in affording conveniences for scaling the wall: 1. The focus; 2. The iron rods and poles found in the yard; 3. The clothes lines used in the yard should not be allowed to remain there at night and only on such days when used for drying clothes; 4. The roof of the north side of the yard on the half way up the wall, affords a ready means of escape over same."

We notice that Harry Tibbens, who was a member of the graduating class of the Bellefonte High School last year, has accepted a position as a reporter for the Altoona Mirror. One of the leading features at the Grangers Picnic at Centre Hall will be the exhibition given by C. K. Sober, the famous wing shot. He is a professional hunter and has been professional hunter for many years. Mr. Teller, the present proprietor of the Bush House, expects to quit the hotel business soon and may engage in some enterprise in town. Labor Day was not generally observed last Monday. The banks were closed but day the other business houses remained open as usual. Mrs. Dr. Frank of Philadelphia, had a horse run away at the Old Fort, this week, and she was seriously injured. The concrete pavements in front of the school building on Allegheny Street were reported this week. A new story has been opened in the Order Exchange building.

Twenty Years Ago

The Prince of Wales was scheduled to come to Bellefonte some time early in September. He was to be a passenger on one of the government airplanes flying between Chicago and New York.

A new Ford touring car driven by Dr. Franklin E. Power of Milesburg, struck a large stone and overturned. The accident happened on a lane leading to the Bowersox home. None of the occupants was injured.

Melvin Dry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dry, suffered severe lacerations about the left leg while playing near his home. It was his second accident within a short time, since he had the misfortune of cutting off the end of his left thumb the previous week.

With Councilman Fauble, Black, Richards, Cunningham, Brouse and Walker present, Bellefonte Borough Council voted to purchase the Phoenix Mill property, South Water Street, from Col. W. Fred Reynolds for the sum of $25,000. The purchase was to be financed through a mortgage and the interest rate was five-and-a-half percent.

The Harris Smith family, of Lewistown, had a hair-raising experience when the Cadillac sedan in which they were driving down Nittany Mountain left the road near the watering trough and rolled down the mountainside. Aside from a few minor lacerations and bruises, the occupants escaped injury. The accident was witnessed by William Katz and family of Bellefonte, who were driving up the mountain road at the time. They took the injured persons to the office of a Centre Hall physician. The Cadillac was not damaged to any extent.

Wearing a heavy belt to which was attached a large pair of pliers, L. C. Stabler, an inmate of Pottsville penitentiary, successfully passed himself off as a telephone lineman and made good his escape from the institution. Stabler walked to the main road passing the prison and flagged down a truck headed toward Bellefonte, telling the driver he was a telephone lineman and had to get to Bellefonte immediately. Arriving here he used the same "gag" to get taxi-man John Davy to take him to Tyrone. There he told Davy to wait while he went into the telephone office to get money to pay the fare. After waiting a reasonable time the taxi driver investigated and found he had been fooled.

country ever received at the Port Matilda plant.

The W. W. Bickett family moved from South Allegheny Street to the property on Pine Street recently vacated by Jose Derstine and family.

While S. G. Role was unloading a carload of lumber at Ceburn a switching engine bumped into the car with such force that the man was thrown from his feet. He suffered a severe laceration of the scalp falling to the floor of the car.

Carl Garbrick and John Robinson, of Unionville, had formed a partnership to manufacture toys. The firm was to be known as the Keystone Toy Company. They had installed machinery in the large vacant room above J. C. and J. B. Stere's shoe room and had a quantity of toys on hand ready for distribution to jobbers and wholesalers.

Marriage licenses were issued to the following couples: John B. Payne, of Fredonia, and Hester E. McKinley, of Bellefonte; Charles D. Ball, Jr., of Lansing, Mich., and Elizabeth O. Foster, State College; George D. Gummo, State College, and Helen V. Lykens, Benore; Russell D. Confer and Helen L. Lucas, both of Hozard; James J. Hoff, Tyrone, and Sallie Gilliland, State College.

Those from Bellefonte who attended a reunion of the Boal troop at Boalsburg included, Judge Henry C. Quigley and daughter, Capt. E. R. Taylor, Lt. Roy H. Grove, Major H. Laird Curtin, Col. and Mrs. W. Fred Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gehret, Miss Helen Love, Mr. and Mrs. D. Wagner Geiss and daughter, Martha, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Zerby, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Blanchard, Sheriff George Yanell, John Davey and daughter, J. Frank Smith, M. R. Johnson, A. A. Dale, Esq., and these members of the local machine gun troop: Paul Sunday, Walter Ray, Roy W. Grove, William Davy, Harry W. Martin, Frederick Corl and Charles Corl.

TURKEYS NEED MINERALS FOR GOOD BONE GROWTH

Most turkey mishes contain enough minerals for the first eight weeks of their life, but because of the increased requirements later for fast bone growth, it may be necessary to add more minerals.

Poult should have access to oyster shell or limestone grit after they are six to eight weeks old, says County Agent R. C. Blaney. Many turkey growers find that poult consume larger amounts of insoluble or non-calcium grit if they do not have calcium sources.

When given free access to calcium minerals and insoluble grit, they will consume a moderate amount of both.

Granite is one of the leading sources of insoluble grit. The minerals in granite are almost insoluble so that their chief function is the gizzard of a bird is an aid in grinding food. Calcium carbonate is the principal mineral in the soluble grits. It is readily broken down by the turkey's digestive system and assimilated by the body.

Common sources of calcium grit are oyster shell, limestone, marble or calcite. Although they are fed only to aid bone development, they may assist the gizzards in grinding feeds.

After turkeys are eight weeks old, it is a safe practice to keep both calcium and insoluble grits before them. It helps keep grit consumption at a moderate level.

If you manage to put off your work long enough, you won't have to bother about it.

Over The County News

A 34-inch carp was taken from Penns Creek by Howard Sechman of Millifurrow after more than an hour's battle. The carp weighed nineteen pounds, and was captured near Millmont.

Mrs. Harry Zerby, of Millheim, had a real thrill the other day. Going out to the smokehouse, she was about to step inside the building—and almost stepped on a skunk. Carried closed the door and ran—but not before she left the neighborhood know about the affair with a good, lusty scream.

Some outlaw entered the garden of Mrs. Clement Luse in Centre Hall and destroyed nearly all of the celery which was in the making, of a fine yield. The plants were broken off, but were not carried away. The foot prints left show a shoe twelve inches in length and four in width, which indicates the mischief was not done by a child.

James Poust, head mechanic in the Hagan Garage, had the misfortune to have a bone in the right arm broken between the wrist and elbow by being struck by a crank of a tractor on the John Snavey farm east of Centre Hall last Tuesday forenoon. The accident resulted from the tractor back-firing. The fracture was reduced at the Lewistown hospital.

The Robert Neff farm home at Tusseyville will be further improved. During the recent past the farm house was greatly modernized on the interior and repainted, and since last spring the spacious grounds surrounding the home were landscaped. The contemplated improvements now in mind include replacing weatherboarding and repairing the barn. Edward Durat will do the painting.

A well has been drilled to the depth of 293 feet on the Samuel Grove farm west of Old Fort where an ample supply of water was found to supply the farm needs. The well is located on a prominence of sufficient height to permit water to flow by gravity to the farm buildings. The Grove farm is one of the prettiest farm homes in Penna Valley and is equipped with all modern improvements. It is the former home of the late Prof. C. R. Neff.

Miss Betty Crabbe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester M. Crabbe, of Millheim had a narrow escape last Thursday afternoon. Swimming in the pool at Elk Creek, just below where the McMullin mill dam used to be, Miss Crabbe, who had been "floating" about in the water, was observed to be in an unnatural position in the water. Companions thought she was pulling off some stunt, but as she remained under the water about five minutes, others dragged her out and found she was floating. Entirely blue about the face, some boys, including Paul Richley, Jr., who is visiting there, went to work with resuscitation methods and within a few minutes had her breathing again taken home, after a medical examination, she was fully recovered by the next morning.

THE HOUSE FLY BEFORE THE COURT OF JUSTICE

Not a century ago the house fly was regarded as an innocent little nuisance. People paid very little attention to his habits, and saw no connection between disease and his presence in the home. Now he and his conduct have been thoroughly studied, with the result that he is regarded with loathing and disgust. Every effort is made by enlightened people to exterminate him and his breeding places.

The house fly eats with real joy the vilest refuse and smears it upon his feet and wings. He then lights upon your food and pours saliva upon it to soften it that he may eat it. He vomits again and again while engaged in this delectable task. He leaves upon your food together with the excretions from his bowels, the filth from his feet and body. Examine his leavings under the microscope, and you will find all sorts of filth and dangerous disease germs.

The fly breeds in fresh stable manure. He lays about 2,500 eggs and there are from ten to twelve generations in one season. The eggs hatch in twenty-four hours in warm weather. The maggots feed freely upon carrion, manure, or whatever suitable food in which it finds itself. In about ten days it crawls under stones or boards and turns into a barrel shaped object. If the weather is warm it flies away as a young fly, in from three to six days. If it is cold, it remains under its hiding places indefinitely, sometimes as long as five or six months after which it changes its shape and emerges as a fly. It is now free to start on its life as a disease disseminating pest.

The digestive system of the fly contains filth and infectious germs. Not being particular about its habits it voids and deposits fecal matter on whatever it happens to be feeding upon. It brings dysentery, cholera, typhoid fever, infantile summer bowel complaints, and many other death-dealing diseases.

Why chase them out of your house and allow them to go on breeding in the horse stable and cow lot? All manure should be cleaned from the stables each day. If it is kept in heaps, it should be sprinkled each day with enough cheap disinfectant to keep the flies from breeding. There are other ways of preventing the breeding of maggots in these heaps which are easier and quite as effective. The important thing is to prevent the breeding of these dangerous pests.

The E. R. Shreckengast & Son grocery and dry goods store in Millheim has been purchased by Marshall Miller of Mill Hall, who has taken charge of the business. Mr. Miller was formerly a Wells Store manager.

Earl Z. Campbell, of Bellefonte, has been appointed District Supervisor of Rural Sanitation under the State Department of Health effective last Tuesday. Mr. Campbell will have half the state as the territory under his supervision. His salary will be $1800.

Joseph Confer, son of Mrs. John Confer, of East Logan street, Bellefonte, received a fractured right arm when a car "kicked" while he was cranking it at Hecla Park. Joe, who is a former Bellefonte high school football star, is now carrying the injured arm in a sling.

Petitions were filed at the office of the Centre County Commissioner in Bellefonte Wednesday by two State College men who seek to have their names placed as independent candidates on the November ballot. The new candidates are W. G. Murtorf, a candidate for assessor, and Charles C. Wagner, seeking a position on the borough council.

An authentic account of the early settlement and romance of Bald Eagle Valley is now available. The book, published by William E. Marks, former Centre County resident now living in Florida, after considerable research and study of old warrants and deeds. Bellefonte, Snow Shoe, Milesburg, Curtin, Port Matilda, Power, Tyrone and Lock Haven are a few of the towns included in the story.

Harold G. Knapp, 97th observation squadron, A. C. Mitchell Field, N. Y., has informed his mother, Mrs. Minnie B. Knapp of Lemont, that he has been placed on detached service with the 2nd school squadron, Lowry Field, Denver, Colo., for the purpose of attending a four months' advanced course at the Lowry branch of the Air Corps technical school. Knapp is well known in this vicinity, especially to followers of baseball. He played with Lemont of the Tri-Valley League during the first half while visiting his home on furlough.

After serving in the capacity of a salesman for three years with the Automotive Supply Company, State College, J. Shannon Brozer of Centre Hall was advanced to the management of both the State College and Lock Haven stores, following Carl Snyder, who was made manager of the Harrisburg store, and will live in that city. Mr. Brozer will return his residence here. Mr. Brozer grew up in the automobile business and a number of years ago acquired through purchase the Brozer garage from his father, the late D. A. Brozer, conducting it until accepting the position with the Automotive Supply Co., when the garage and equipment was leased to R. Stanley Brooks, and later sold subject to the Brooks lease, to Georg K. Rimmey.
