There is a letter and a library card on which was printed, "Tate, Lawrence." There were also four rifle shells.

The body of Tate was discovered by Hugh Hanley, who had been working in his spare time over a period of three weeks cutting brush and weeds from the same plot on which the body was found.

It is said that police of White Plains, N. Y., had been seeking Tate on a charge of surety of the peace. He is also reported as having been creating a disturbance at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. John L. Temple, on Friday, September 9, who resides about a half block from where the body was found.

College Student Takes Own Life

According to Dr. Heaton, the student went partly up the stairway, and the fatal noise about the door, and then stepped down, his body swinging clear of the lower steps.

Friends of the student reported that Mavers, a graduate of the "Church Farm School, near Philadelphia, arrived in State College last week to participate in the freshman week program before beginning the regular school year, in which he was enrolled as a student of agriculture.

He left no notes, and none of his friends could advance any reason for the act. He is reported to have been of a happy, cheerful disposition, although some friends declared he seemed to be "confused" since his arrival in State College. He did not mingle to any great extent among fellow students at the rooming house, it was said.

Mayers was born on March 18, 1921 and is survived by his mother, Mrs. H. M. Mayers. For the past 12 years the student and his mother resided with Mrs. A. H. Black, at 705 W. Carpenter Lane, Mt. Airy, Philadelphia.

The remains were prepared for burial and were sent to Philadelphia where funeral services will be followed by cremation.

was stolen or slain by unknown persons, became so tame that it would follow Mr. Spangler about like a dog. It would jump into his car and go for long rides with him. He often took it on a leash on walks to the post office. The deer thought nothing of entering the Spangler home and making itself comfortable.

In commenting upon his hobby, Mr. Spangler declared that under the State laws he is permitted to sell live deer to anyone, but he would not be permitted to sell deer meat, although he is at liberty to give it away. These laws don't bother him, though, for he is interested only in live deer.

The Spangler game preserve is open to public inspection and under proper conditions Mr. Spangler has no difficulty in getting his charges to "pose" for photographs.

SPORTSMEN'S CLUB HELD ANNIVERSARY MEETING

On Sept. 18th, the Pleasant Gap Sportsmen Association held their first anniversary meeting. After a short business session, motion pictures of Game Life and Conservatism were shown by Mr. Thompson, of State College, which was followed by refreshments enjoyed by all. During the course of the meeting the activities and achievements for the past year were listed. It was shown that the club was to be complimented on their fine work.

With a membership of only fifty members, the following activities were undertaken and accomplished. Besides holding eleven regular and one special meeting the club held three out-door shooting matches and about 15 indoor matches. They sponsored a Junior Sportsmen's Club known as "The Future Sportsmen of Pleasant Gap." They also sponsored the construction of a new camp in Green Valley for this Junior Club.

During the winter and spring months the Junior Club with the cooperation of the Senior Club made shelters for game and distributed 42 bushels of corn. They also stocked 39 rabbits, 11 pheasants, 600 large sized trout and 2000 fingerling trout. The Senior Club also sponsored a planting of 12000 trees in this locality. At the end of the year the club in a financial way is perfectly sound.

Plans for the future call for a permanent rifle and archery team. The next meeting which will be held in the Pleasant Gap Grange Hall on Oct. 2nd, will be in the form of a booster meeting. Everyone welcome.

RECENTLY WEDDED COUPLE ENTERTAINED AT DINNER

Family members planned a delightful roast chicken dinner at Pleasner's service station, Julian, last Sunday, in honor of their youngest daughter, Anna, and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miller, who were married in early June. Famous and widely known for its home-cooked dinners, the Pleasner culinary department served an excellent meal to the sixteen guests present.

The family gathering also marked the occasion of the 35th wedding anniversary of the bride's parents, and the 15th anniversary of their oldest daughter, Jane, and husband, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Chandler, of the Crider Exchange Apts., Bellefonte. Due to Mr. Miller's close application to his work, it was the first afforded opportunity for the family gathering.

Guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. James Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Flack and Mrs. E. C. Miller, all of Phillipsburg; Mr. and Mrs. John M. Andrews, Port Matilda; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Chandler, Bellefonte; the grandchildren included: Kenneth Chandler, Nelson E. Flack, John, Jr., J. Ronald and Judith Kathryn Andrews.

THIRD VICTIM OF AVIS FOOTBALL, BREAKS BACK

There is a third victim of Avis football field accidents in the Private Hospital at Lock Haven. He is Reed Marks, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coyne Marks of Avis, who broke his spine in a practice game Friday. The young man's injuries have been formally diagnosed as a fracture of the 12th cervical vertebrae. His condition is serious.

Young Marks joins two other Avis football field accident victims in the Private Hospital. They are: Robert Yearick, faculty member, fractured skull; Bryan Peterman, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Peterman, broken shoulder and clavicle. Mr. Yearick suffered his injuries early last week when a goal post which he was helping to erect, fell on his head. Peterman was injured later in the week in a practice game.

The people who dislike hot weather will soon have an opportunity of enjoying cold weather.

Gigantic Air Map of Centre County

and practical activity of the Federal government. Last year, unknown to most Centre countians, an airplane flew back and forth across the county at an altitude of three miles. At regular intervals a photographer in the plane took "shots" of the terrain below. These individual shots were enlarged to the size of 22 by 27 inches, and it required 200 of them to picture the entire county.

Filed in the office of the Agricultural Conservation office, which is in charge of Mrs. John Smith, of Bellefonte, the photographs have a most valuable purpose.

In the government's crop control program, in soil conservation work and in other agricultural pursuits, it is necessary to know the exact location and acreage of every field in the county. For this reason, the photographic air map was made. Similar maps have been completed for a number of other counties of the state.

With the aid of a simple device, the area of every field shown on the photograph is easily ascertained with greater accuracy than is possible even with a chain survey on the ground, it is claimed.

Maybe some of you mathematicians think that it is impossible to ascertain an accurate acreage measurement on a mountain field, or one on a hillside, because the photos are flat and consequently distortion would result. Not at all. Federal experts have devised a system whereby every change of elevation on the ground can be detected by comparing photos. Contour lines are drawn by hand on the photographs after these comparisons have been completed, and corrections are made accordingly in computing acreages.

Copies of the individual photos may be purchased by any Centre county farmer at a cost of $1.90 each. With such a picture in his possession the farmer has a permanent record of his own and adjacent farms, fields, and buildings. There is some question at this time as to whether the photos can be purchased by others than those who own parts of the land shown in each individual picture.

To appreciate the picture it is necessary to see them. Towns and communities are shown with astounding fidelity. The vast forested areas of the county, the fertile lands, quarries, sports parks, swimming pools, dams, streams, ponds, and in fact every detail of the county topography is shown.

Interested persons may inspect the pictures at the Agricultural Conservation office, but the photos are not permitted to be taken from the office.

FARMER KILLED BY BURSTING FLY WHEEL

Penrose Beck, 62, was instantly killed Saturday in what Dr. L. U. Zech described as about the most freakish accident in his sixteen years as coroner.

Beck was standing alongside a home-made, power-driven wood saw when the fifty-pound fly wheel suddenly broke in three pieces. A small piece disintegrated Beck.

A twenty-pound piece flew a block through the air and landed in a hedge fence. The third and largest section dug a hole in a mushball diamond a block away, bounced another block dug a hole in the street, ricocheted against a truck, slashing through the metal side, and rolled to the end of the block.

The coroner said Beck's son, who was sawing the wood, told his father to cut down on the power from the old automobile turning the blade, as it was dangerous, and his father replied there was but one more piece and he wouldn't bother when the wheel broke where it had been previously welded.

The widow and twelve children survive.

PRISON BREAK FOILED; 48 CONVICTS PUNISHED

Forty-eight convicts were held in solitary confinement at Joplet, Ill., Penitentiary, while Warden Joseph E. Ragen investigated a bizarre plot to escape by scaling walls manned by 11 drugged, unconscious guards.

Three convicted murderers made a futile dash for liberty, after it was charged, prison trustees, according to daily routine, delivered lunch baskets to the 12 watch towers surrounding the walls, containing poisoned coffee, which was drunk by 11 towermen. The other gave his share to a trusty, and broke up the convicts' dash for freedom.

NONE INJURED, DAMAGE $800 IN CRASH NEAR BOALSBURG

In a collision on Route 322 three miles east of Boalsburg shortly before midnight, Saturday, eight persons escaped injury, but total damage to the cars and property was placed at $800.

One of the machines, operated by Walter Dippity, of Push street, State College, ran wild for about 300 feet after the accident and came to rest against a garage on the Mary Stuart farm after knocking over several fence posts. The other car, driven by Kenneth Houz, of State College, R. D. 1, continued on for about 75 feet, and was damaged to the extent of about $150. Property damage was about $150. Private John Amick, of the Pleasant Gap sub-station State Motor Police, investigated the accident.

Poets' Corner

LET US SEEK ETERNITY.
Teach us, Lord, Thy way of life. Resisting envy, hate, and strife! Fill our hearts with love divine, Stay ever present, Savior mine.

Sound Thy voice to all the world. Let Thy banner be unfurled—Send Thy spirit now, most High. Let all repent, so soon we die.

When the kings of nations rise—Lead them, Lord, to compromise. Guard the humble souls at stake. And may Thy peace within them wake.

Teach us, Lord, from day to day—To live Thy straight and narrow way. Heads lifted upward—thus we stand. Shielded by Thy mighty hand.

Unafraid we look to Thee. Knowing Thou dost hear our plea. Our call to Thee from earthly shores. Re-echoes, and we love Thee more.

A world of turmoil dim the light. And shadows fade from day to night. Faith lost, hearts crushed, souls sore—Drums beat the hellish plague of war.

But on we tread, with Christ our guide—Our captain of the cross, our pride. A world of beauty yet is ours—The wealth of life, of love and flowers.

Prayers of Christians fills the sky. Our hope in Christ can never die. And thus we pray on bended knee, God, let us seek eternity.

Local Tailor Ends Life by Inhaling Gas

pany and former member of the American Legion social club, was last seen about 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon when he met and conversed with Jacob Bartlett, caretaker at the Elks Club, on South Spring street. Bartlett claimed that at that time Heffelfinger gave no indication that he was in a desperate frame of mind.

The discovery of the tragedy was made by Mr. Bartlett at about 5:30 o'clock the same afternoon when, while he was on his way to his rooms on the third floor of the Elks Home, he noticed a strong odor of gas on the second floor. Upon investigating the source of the gas he opened a door leading to a kitchen porch where artificial respiration at the club on special occasion.

He found Mr. Heffelfinger slumped on an overturned metal tub with his head resting on his hands over the open jets of the burners. Bartlett immediately notified the club steward, Leslie Shultz and other members, and they rushed outside, up an outside stairway to a second floor porch, and from there through a door opening on the kitchen. Heffelfinger was carried to the stretcher where artificial respiration was given until the arrival of Dr. J. C. Rogers and the rescue squad of the West Penn Power Company. An inhalator was used for an hour before Dr. Rogers declared that further effort to revive the man was useless.

Mr. Heffelfinger was not seen entering the club at any time on Tuesday, and it is generally believed that he approached the home from the rear entrance, and used the outside stairway in reaching the kitchen, the door of which was not locked.

Garret W. Heffelfinger came to Bellefonte in June 1933 to take over the tailor shop on West High street which had been conducted until the spring of that year by the late Mrs. Greenberg. Prior to coming to Bellefonte he had worked in a State College tailor shop for several years, and had learned the trade in his father's shop in Milton. During the World War he was employed as a munitions maker.

The deceased, a son of John A. and Daisy C. Miller Heffelfinger, was born in Selinsgrove on May 30, 1898, making his age at time of death 41 years, 3 months and 19 days. He is survived by his mother, who resides at Milton; his wife, the former Jean Bauer, of Bellefonte, with whom he was united in marriage on March 7, 1936, and two children: John G., aged about 3, and Mary Ann, aged 5 months. Also surviving are two sisters, Miss Feba Heffelfinger, and Mrs. E. C. Rupp, both of Milton.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon from the home on West Logan street, with the Rev. Clarence E. Arnold, pastor of the Bellefonte Lutheran church, officiating. The remains will be taken to Milton for interment at the Harmony cemetery. Members of the Bellefonte Elks Club are expected to participate in the services.

Mr. Heffelfinger was a member of Kennedy Lutheran church, Milton.

Truck Burns at Drifting

Phillipsburg firemen were called to Hartle's Garage at Drifting Tuesday afternoon when a three-ton truck, owned by E. J. Corson, Jersey Shore, and operated by LeRoy Brown, of Drifting, had caught fire. The rear end of the vehicle was badly damaged. Brown was eating in the garage when the fire, believed to have been caused by a loose battery connection, broke out. The truck is used to haul coal from the Drifting area to Bellefonte and Jersey Shore.

HEALTH THE LAYMAN PRESCRIBES

The glibility of human beings is amazing. I have seen useful and intelligent people who were ill, wasting precious time, being treated by quacks, cranks and ignorant cultists, when highly educated physicians were ignored. The medical men spend four years in a medical college, studying the human body in health and disease. Then for two years they serve the sick as interns in hospitals. All this and more in preparations to help humanity. The doctors work for the public night and day, in season and out, yet many people will even take the advice of a radio hawker who is advocating some cure-all "for what ever ails you or your family."

Recently I heard a speller yelling through a loud speaker, extolling the merits of a nostrum. He said that it cured many diseases for only a dollar. He was doing a rushing business.

This speaks badly for the intelligence of the average human being. It is the same sort of superstition that sends the African to the witch doctor.

A highly educated Caucasian is often as foolish. The writer was acquainted with a brilliant lawyer. He was forty-five years of age with a splendid legal practice. He developed a severe pain in his abdomen. Instead of sending for his doctor he took the advice of a farm hand and swallowed a large tablespoonful of castor oil. The next morning, strange to say, he listened to a friend and followed the salts by a tablespoon of castor oil. The next day he was rushed to the hospital for an appendectomy. The appendix had burst, pus filled the cavity and peritonitis had set in. He was only another victim of the advice of the ignorant. His helpful family were left to struggle along the best they could. It is very certain that the laymen who do did nothing but criticize the mistakes that his inexperienced wife made in trying to straighten out her husband's tangled frame.

Nearly every one of these days is ready with a remedy for a friend in physical distress. It is really quite diverting to the average layman to prescribe for his neighbor's ailments. It might be amusing if it were not often so tragic. For example, a lovely woman discovered a lump in her breast. Instead of going to her doctor, she confided in her neighbor who gave her a jar of magic salve, on which was a flamboyant label stating that the contents would dissolve any lump.

For three months this poor dupe rubbed the grease into her delicate tissues. All this time the lump grew. At first could have been removed by the skillful surgeon's knife, was growing and sending tentacles deep into flesh and glands. By and by the poor woman consulted a physician. He looked very grave and asked quietly, "When did you first find this lump?" "Only three months ago, doctor."

A neighbor gave me some salve and told me that it would dissolve it. "Poor fool," thought the doctor, so kind and courteous to tell her the crushing truth. By acting on the advice of a person who was totally ignorant, the woman's condition she had condemned herself to long and agonizing death from cancer.

A popular sport among certain people seems to be that of irresponsible prescribing for the ailments of others, and criticizing physicians for practically not relieving the sick from their ailments. They are after they have allowed their disease to progress beyond the point of cure, while being experimented upon by ignorant charlatans, or when taking this or that remedy prescribed by neighbors or the radio.

TWO LEAF TO SAFETY AS DINKY JUMPS TRACK

OH, BOY! ALL LIGHTED UP TO WELCOME ME HOME!

Weary travelers look at them wistfully, and the man coming home from work at night feels a leap in his heart because of them. Poets sing about them, but this is going to more practical and tell you one of the ways you can make the lights in your home more attractive.

Use flexible lights. There have been so many developments in lighting in recent years, and one of these provide a new kind of flexibility.

Now we can change the lights in our living room from mellow to clear, scintillating and gay. In the flash of a second, to suit the activities of guests. A hostess may work out these different moods of lighting, and one of the easiest ways to do it is with the lamps that are equipped with three-life bulbs. These give three different amounts of light at the turn of a single switch.

You can have our low lighting for intimate conversations and our soft necessary higher lighting for reading or work. All from the same bulb.

PROPERLY PLACED CURLS MAY LAND YOU A JOB

Your hair, though not your fortune, can mean the difference between success and failure in your office career," declared Emile of Rockefeller Center to the girls of the School of Business Practice and Speech at the RKO Building recently. Emile, who has made thousands of successful changes in hair styling for women, says that it is not quantity or striking arrangement of hair that is beautiful, but rather the careful training of fresh, clean curls into the lines most enhancing each woman's beauty.

"It is important in a business career," said Emile, "and a few properly placed curls can impress any employer with a girl's personality."

Howard Man Mangled Under Train Wheels

at the Mt. Eagle water tank for water, and when it passed the Leathers home this side of Howard it was regaining momentum. It is believed that Leathers fell under the wheels while attempting to board the freight.

Other reports have it that Leathers had left his home about midnight to go across the tracks to Bud Reigel's home to borrow corn for his hogs. This report has it that he might have become confused in the darkness and fell across the rails in front of the train.

After the train had roared over the victim, he managed to crawl from between the rails and was not found until about 2 a. m. when his cries attracted attention of residents nearby. He was still conscious when Dr. Howard Ishler, of Howard, and others arrived at the scene, and while being prepared for the trip to the local hospital in an ambulance, talked with the men about the election and smoked a cigarette.

He is reported to have suffered considerably from shock and loss of blood in addition to his serious injuries.

Leathers, until recently employed on the WPA, resides with his wife and three small children along the Pennsylvania Railroad right-of-way a short distance west of Howard.

Stolen Coupe Is Recovered

ven sub-station discovered the machine Tuesday night while on a patrol of the Renovo road, and recognized it as the missing car from teletype descriptions, which had been sent out through this and neighboring states.

Billet and a companion motored to the scene yesterday morning, and Billet started to drive toward Lock Haven but had proceeded only about five miles when one of the bearings in the motor burned out, presumably from mistreatment while it was in the possession of the thief. The car was towed to Lock Haven for repairs. Taken from the coupe by the thief were the owner's card and the ignition key. The owner was unable to tell how far the car had been driven while it was out of his possession.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"I wish to address this note to my Bellefonte friends: "It is a matter of sincere gratification to learn that my return as the School Board, to fill out my own unexpired term, meets with pleasing approval and I very cordially thank all who supported me on September 12, 1939.

"It is due to my friends to say that my resignation last April was not due to lack of appreciation of the complimentary vote I received in November 1935 as to any single incident, but to prevailing conditions that had gradually developed.

"I subscribe most heartily to the ten-plank platform submitted recently by Messrs. Moore, Brouse and Schad. If elected, I shall continue to labor in the interests of parents, teachers, pupils and taxpayers generally, as I did for three years and four months.

Respectfully,
JAMES R. HUGHES."
