THE TEMPTATION OF JESUS

International Sunday School Lesson
For October 15, 1939.

GOLDEN TEXT: "For we have... an high priest which... was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin."—Hebrew 4:15.

Lesson Text: Matthew 4:1-11

Following his baptism, Jesus went into the wilderness for meditation and spiritual strengthening. Other great religious leaders have done the same. Realizing now his destined task in life as an immediate and present duty before him, Jesus had to determine the means by which he would seek the accomplishment of his mission and at the same time build up that superhuman faith in the triumph of goodness and love which was to carry him through the terrific trials of his ministry.

Several years afterwards Jesus advised his disciples to count the cost before undertaking their important work, and we may be sure that during the forty days of fasting and prayer in the wilderness Jesus prepared himself for the supreme sacrifice of life itself, which he was going to be called upon to make in testimony of his own faith and fidelity. While in the wilderness Jesus faced three great temptations and successfully repudiated each one.

It is immaterial to us what was the form and appearance of the tempter, but as he faced his great mission to uplift a world Jesus met, and conquered, temptations and allurement which wrong and evil used to betray and mislead men. The three temptations to which Jesus was subjected in the wilderness represented wealth without work, a social recognition without merit, and unlimited power and authority without struggle—it is not strange that many a mortal man has fallen down and worshipped evil for even one of these three great promises.

Hungry and famished by his long abstinence, Jesus was told to use his divine power to transform the stones into bread, which process means unlimited wealth in that it furnished all that the body needed without labor. Secondly, he was advised to secure recognition by miraculously floating down into the midst of the people and by this sign demonstrate his divine authority. This was far easier than setting a perfect example during three years of trial and effort of love and humble service, with general recognition postponed for centuries. Then, at last, Jesus was offered all power and authority without struggle or waiting if he would only consent in advance to misuse it for evil, his own selfish pleasure and aggrandizement. Jesus rejected all three enticing temptations, preferring to set out on the road which led to Cavalry.

Do we wonder why Jesus was tempted. Dr. Broadus' Commentary on Matthew, gives the following reasons: "It gave proof of his true humanity, proof that he possessed a real human soul; (2) It was part of his example to us; (3) It formed part of his personal discipline (Hebrew 3:7-9); and (4) of his preparation to be a sympathizing intercessor (Heb. 2:18, 4:15). It formed a part of that great conflict in which the seed of the woman was to bruise the serpent's head" (Genesis 3:15). In this first great struggle of the conflict, the destined conqueror came off completely victorious.

The temptations of Jesus are types of temptations that we have to meet every day. A summary of the temptations of Jesus is given by Dr. W. O. Carver, in "The Self-Interpretation of Jesus," as follows: (1) He was tempted to doubt God; to use God for plans that would be his own and not God's; and finally to ignore God. (2) There was first the temptation to satisfy a need—he was really hungry and his body must be nourished; to display a possession—he would come down from the temple through the air safely and it would deceive no man concerning his powers; and lastly to gratify an ambition—he wanted the world and for good purposes of blessing and helpfulness; why not use the devil to get it? (3) Self-played a part in every temptation, as of necessity it always must. First, he was asked to serve himself with a power given for service and for the glory of God; then, to relieve himself of toil and trouble, making his way easier when the true way was hard; lastly, to make the kingdom of God a means for his own aggrandizement."

Modern Etiquette

1. Is it possible for a girl to determine a young man's character by the perfect way in which he wears his clothes and his suave manner?
2. Isn't it poor taste for a man to come to the table in his shirt sleeves?
3. How should the forks be arranged at the plate, when setting the table?
4. When a wedding engagement is broken, what should the girl return to the man?
5. What should a young married woman call her parents-in-law when addressing them, when she calls her own parents, "Father" and "Mother"?
6. Is it the responsibility of the host and the hostess to draw all guests into conversation?

7. Should the main dining room or a private room be used for a restaurant dinner?
8. Is it good etiquette for two women to kiss in public, when meeting or taking leave?
9. Which is the correct form, "Mrs. White, this is my husband," or "Mrs. White, this is Mr. Walker."
10. How many persons should a host invite to a theatre party?
11. What would be a good toast for a man guest to offer to his hostess?
12. What is the most popular hour for a luncheon, whether formal or informal?

Health and Beauty

HASHISH OR MARIHUANA

When I was a youngster, "The Hashish Eater," a book by Dr. Quincy, fell into my hands. I read it far into the night though my childish mind could not comprehend it. The author described its victims. Hashish has had a bloody and deplorable history. It has many names. It is called "hashish," "Indian hemp," "cannabis indica," and "marihuana." Its baleful effects go back as far as history. Some of the ancient Greeks used it. Homer wrote that it made men forget their homes and turned them into swine. A thousand years ago there was a band of men known as assassins, who were addicted to its use. They were distinguished for their cruelty and wickedness. The leader of the group lived in pomp, and terrorized the country. If a prince displeased him he had him murdered by members of the company. Thus they kept the country in subjection.

It is said that many of the soldiers of Pancho Villa's army were addicts of marihuana. It is used extensively in Mexico and from there has spread to the United States. Peddlers are inducing high school boys and girls to buy the marihuana cigarettes from them, by telling them that the smokes are delightful and harmless. This country has awakened to the fact that murders, suicides and sex crimes are increasing among the youth of the land. Many of them have been directly traced to this drug. Others can only be suspected.

When a girl jumped from a high building in New York and was crushed to the sidewalk, but evidence directly pointed to marihuana as the killer. Many crimes are perpetrated by addicts who have no recollection of their criminal deeds. A boy when under the influence, butchered his father, mother and sisters. When questioned by the authorities, he admitted that he was a marihuana fiend and could not remember committing the crime.

Marihuana destroys the brain. At first it stimulates. There are illusions and hallucinations. The mind becomes over excited often to the point of madness. This deadly drug disintegrates character and ruins the intellect. When under its influence the vilest forces of evil take possession of and control the work.

Answers to Modern Etiquette

1. Not always. Remember that "The ass is still an ass, even though he wears a lion's hide." Appearances are sometimes deceiving.
2. Yes. Of course a man is entitled to be comfortable at home, with his family, but when there are guests he should wear his coat.
3. The fork to be used first is placed at the extreme left of the plate; this is usually for fish or entree. Second, towards the plate, place the meat fork; third, nearest the plate, the salad fork.
4. All gifts of jewelry, including the engagement ring, all photographs and letters.
5. Address them as "Father Harris" and "Mother Harris."
6. Yes. An experienced host or hostess will see that this is done.
7. If the party is to dine and dance the dinner should be given in the main dining room; if the dinner is given before a wedding, engage a private room.
8. No; such warm affection should not be displayed in public.
9. The correct form is, "Mrs. White, this is my husband."
10. This depends entirely upon the extent of the host's generosity and his pocketbook. The usual number is six or eight persons.
11. "Ladies and gentlemen, I give you our hostess, the wife of the luckiest man in the world."
12. One o'clock.

PRESIDENT'S FIRESIDE CHATS NOTHING NEW

"Fireside chats," President Roosevelt's term for his radio messages to the people of the United States, are neither new nor is F. D. R. the first president to employ the phrase. Back in 1818 President Woodrow Wilson used this term to describe a recorded message which he sent to every Indian reservation in the country.

A copy of this recording is now in the files of the National Vocational in Rockefeller Center, New York. The recording sent throughout the land by horse and mule trains was a message from the Great White Father to his Indian people.

The function of the National Vocational is the preservation through phonographic recordings, of the voices of the great people in this country's history.

INDUSTRY HAS VITAL PART IN RESEARCH

The close cooperation between industry and the technical research staffs of the Pennsylvania State College was illustrated again last week when representatives of two basic industries met on the campus to hear reports on current research. The Bradford District Research Group, representing natural gas and petroleum interests in northwestern Pennsylvania, met on October 6 and 7. This group has sponsored research in the College's School of Mineral Industries for several years.

At the same time, agents of several large steel companies and one nickel concern were on the campus receiving reports on the progress of experiments in metallurgy being sponsored by these companies. Another recent example of the close relation between the College and the people of the state was a conference of truck fleet supervisors at which Professor Amos E. Neyhart, administrative head of the Institute of Public Safety of the College, outlined a safety program for truck drivers.

TWO HELD FOR U. S. COURT ON COUNTERFEIT CHARGE

Charged with possessing counterfeit money, Merrill M. Musser, 30, and David C. Kittinger, 35, both of Lewisport, were arrested by secret service agents and State Motor Police. When they were unable to furnish bail the men were committed to Dauphin county jail to await the action of court at Scranton on Monday, October 16. Commissioner Friedman reported that more than $30 worth of twenty-five and fifty-cent pieces were found in possession of the pair. He said that it is believed that the molds with which the money was made had been destroyed.

COLLEGE CENTERS REPORT INCREASE

Opening of a new undergraduate center of the Pennsylvania State College, Altoona, accounts for part of the gain of nearly 180 in total enrollment of the centers this fall. The total rose from 429 last year to 607 this year. The Altoona center, established like the four older centers in response to local demand, had an opening enrollment of 118. David B. Pugh, supervisor of the undergraduate centers, stated, "It is offering courses equivalent to the freshman year of college. The four older centers, giving both freshman and sophomore work, reported the following enrollment: DuBois, 144; Hazleton, 120; Pottsville, 125, and Uniontown, 80. All of the centers are maintained on a year-to-year basis.

THE COUNTRY DOCTOR

Years ago the country doctor cured people of their ills. Giving them just what they needed—Pink or white, sometimes brown pills.

In his horse and buggy He surely got about. Curing sore throat, rheumatism Sometimes a case of gout.

In those days sore throat Was never tonsillitis, And rheumatism was rheumatiz 'Twas never called arthritis, Appendicitis was unknown 'Twas called plain inflammation. The doctor never used big words Like conglomeration.

Today if you get the headache You must have your tonsils out. And if you get a stomach ache 'Tis the other way about.

Today everything is science. And sometimes we often wonder. If man is not the same As he was in the days back yonder. L. S.

HEALTH

One-half of the diseases of mankind are in the respiratory tract.

That includes the nose, throat and chest. Because the common cold is the most prevalent of all diseases, health messages on this subject are often repeated. Three-fourths of the population have at least two colds a year. Sex has no bearing on colds. They are just as common among males as among females.

Occupation, however, is a factor. Contrary to popular opinion, the person who works in an office has nine times as many colds as the cab driver or policeman who works outdoors in the rain and snow.

What causes a cold? Nobody knows. It is caused by some unknown virus, classified as filterable because it has the ability to go through the finest filter that can be devised.

Yet the virus is powerful enough to produce a cold and incapacitate the strongest of men. When the resistance of the individual has been sufficiently lowered, the invisible virus paralyzes the defense mechanism of the nasal membrane.

Then the bacteria which are present in the nose attack and produce the inflammatory reaction known as the common cold. There is a certain amount of hair and moisture in the normal nose to catch dust and germs and keep them from entering the more delicate air passages below.

In offices and homes, there is often very little moisture in the atmosphere, with the result that the nose becomes dry, the nasal membrane loses its efficiency and germs enter.

This is one of the reasons why colds are more prevalent among office workers than among those who work outdoors. Colds are contagious. Keep away from sneezers, coughers and sniffers.

The Eskimos never heard of the common cold until the white man brought it up to the North—and then the Eskimos caught it and died like flies. Keep in good physical condition and away from colds.

DO YOU KNOW

Most people spend from a third to a half of their time at home, which accounts to a large extent, for the fact that a far greater number of non-fatal accidents occur in homes than on the streets or elsewhere.

YOCUM GRAMMAR SCHOOL NEWS

The percentage of attendance for the month of September for the school averaged 99%. Mr. Dolan was very much pleased with the cooperation shown by the parents in respecting the attendance law. The following are dismissed early on Friday as a reward for being present every session: Elmer Cain, Sara Catherine Fetters, Sara Jesse Fetters, Reida Robinson, James McClellan, William Pettigill, Leroy Runkle, Clair Young, Maurice Young, Betty Cain, Anna Gordon, June Martin, Clara Fess, Myra Schlegel, Shirley Tresler, Donald Bloom, Archie Irvin, Phillip Irvin, Lucretia Cain, Geraldine Emel, David Kuhn, Marsha Bachman, Jane Gordon, Virginia Gummo, Kathleen Miller, Gloria Schlegel, Laura Young, Margie Zell, Mahlon Bloom, James Baldwin, James Schlegel, Gerald Miller, Fred Bouchack, Fred Cain.

Mr. Dolan added four more books to the library including "Penrod," "Boomba," "Danny's Country Store," and "Education of a Burro."

Other books borrowed from the Lock Haven Library for a limited time are: "The Happy Outcast," "Mitz and Fritz of Germany," "Little Tony of Italy," "Little Jean of France," "Story of Ling," "The River," "Robinhood," "Carmen of the Golden West," "Just Around the Corner," "Parnassus on Wheels," "Hoolier School Boy," and "Children of America."

Any one interested in reading any of the mentioned or any in Mr. Dolan's personal collection, please see Anna Gordon.

For use in an occasional assembly program each pupil is making a song book as a correlated music, art and penmanship project. As a selection is chosen or requested Mr. Dolan copies the words on the board, regardless of what song it is— hymn, folk or popular. The best writing ability is utilized. Metal rings were purchased to make paging more easy. A few selections so far are: "The Star Spangled Banner," "Old Folks at Home," "Sweet and Low," "Juanita," "God Bless America," "America," "Over the Rainbow," "My Old Kentucky Home," "My Blue Heaven," "Little Sir Echo," "Beer Barrel Polka," "America, the Beautiful," "Little Skipper," "A Merry Life."

The purchase of an inexpensive football rather pleased several of the pigskin fans. Although the ball is light, a few of the games plays and techniques are being worked out. There is, however, no proper facility for planning the actual game.

The boys have used six softballs this year and Mr. Dolan says that if we show the cooperation that has been shown already six more will be gotten if necessary. Maybe this thing called cooperation is worthwhile after all.

In our lower grade mathematics class, the class so understands addition of fractions and getting good complete answers (answers that reserve two lines underneath) that the teacher promised to teach us something new on Monday. In addition we first look if the fractions are the same, if they are we add, if they aren't, we try using the biggest number given, if that doesn't work we do what Mr. Dolan calls "getting the number at the top by inspection or factoring." We hope our new response will be as interesting as addition was.

Percentage still seems to be difficult for the upper grade. Mr. Dolan still tells us "that of will mean x or multiply as long as 'x' means hundredths."

Eighth grade, for English review has about writing a sentence using the noun "goose" in plural possessive? What is its gender?

Lower grade English, how many nouns are there in the National Anthem, that you just learned?

Eighth grade Geography have learned that the life of a shepherd in Central and Western Asia have changed very little since earlier days in human history. The final conclusion is that we more or less depend upon the climate and geography of our environment.

Ask the pupils in lower grade geography why New England isn't a farming country?

In September, 29 after three-thirty quite a few of the nature lovers hiked again, this time in particular to study rocks. After the hike a lunch was enjoyed in the school room. Everyone supplied his own sandwiches. Someone brought potato salad, another beer, pickles, soft drink, six kinds of cake, cookies, peaches. After the lunch, since no one wanted to go home for more supper, a very enjoyable softball game was played until dusk. The boys are continually asking Mr. Dolan to camp out some Friday night.

The school is still acting as salesman, trying to sell itself. It is still taking orders. It is still soliciting for applicants. Who can qualify for the order, for the job? What is the charge? Anyone can apply, the task physically is not so

In fourteen hundred ninety-two, Columbus sailed the ocean blue. If he drove a car in thirty-nine, He'd always stop at this big sign!

Seriously, motorists, try stopping at the big red Atlantic sign — Columbus Day, and every day! Atlantic Stations are plainly marked so that you'll have no trouble getting quick, intelligent service. Remember, too, that Atlantic's Famous Three — Atlantic White Flash, Motor Oil and Lubrication Service — are designed to help you save money. Stop in today.
