

Visitor Is Impressed By Quiet Efficiency of Centre Co. Hospital

By WINIFRED B. SHALLCROSS

A visitor approaching the Centre County Hospital, seeing its tree shaded lawn, its brick buildings, its simplicity of outline, should be favorably disposed towards it before he enters its doors.

As he walks down its corridors, past its children's ward or maternity units, sees the rows of new born babies in the nursery or pauses at the door of the men's ward, he dimly realizes that life in the hospital has an intensity and continuity to be found nowhere else.

The hospital has a 24-hour working day. While happy, healthy people are sleeping in their homes, in the hospital emergency operations are being performed, babies are being born, and ambulances are bringing in accident cases.

In the employ of our hospital are 19 general nurses. While on duty they have sleeping quarters in the old wing of the hospital, but when off duty live in the nurses' home. Their payroll is met by the earnings of the hospital.

The annual statement for 1938 lists for the interested reader 11 desired improvements. Slowly, as funds have become available, those items are being attended to.

He is particularly impressed by the white beauty of the operating room. Here the former skylight has been closed and a new, high window has been cut. Through the help of the Women's Auxiliary there is a new ceiling lamp with its mirrors. That organization has also contributed a suction machine, used in tonsil and abdominal operations.

Before the doorway of the operating room are three old scrub basins. These are waiting to be displaced by one more modern and efficient, but this must wait until there is money to buy it.

Gradually, through the help of the Women's Auxiliary, asbestos ceilings are being installed where necessary to keep down sound. Already they are a part of the utility room, kitchen, and corridor of the private floor.

From the towns and outlying districts of the county the patients, well-to-do and poor, come to the hospital for the help that they know they will get.

Perhaps people forget, when they visit the hospital, that it is an institution to be proud of and deserving of loyal support.

5 Quarries Operating At Jacksonville

by erosion, and is covered by less than a foot of topsoil. By removing the topsoil, quarrying proceeds on a 70-foot front down through solid limestone.

Although none of the quarries have reached peak production, limestone for furnace purposes is being shipped at the rate of 10 railroad cars a day.

The siding is now being enlarged to take care of future production, and Whitebrook officials report that they have a steady demand for all the stone that can be produced.

Another quarry is being opened by a steam shovel at the foot of a steep hill which leads into the rich seam of stone.

While the container is being filled with stone, the truck lifts a filled container onto the chassis and transports it to the railroad siding, where stone is dumped directly into gondolas without further handling.

Still another quarry is being driven into the seam from the top of a sizeable hill. When this has reached the production stage, stone will be carried down over the hill in trucks and will be dumped into a large storage bin from which other trucks can be loading and will.

Even the uninitiated Jacksonville operations are of deep significance. It not only provides a practically inexhaustible new source of stone for Whitebrook, but it also is the first major industrial development in the Jacksonville area.

The great beauty of the whole project, however, is the purity of the seam. Practically every pound of material carried out of the quarries is usable without further treatment.

There is no dirt or mud to add to the unproductive cost of quarrying, and the seam is so close to the surface of the earth that it is obtained with a minimum of labor and expense.

History of the Church The Evangelical church cannot be limited to the time that it has used its present place of worship which was built on a lot purchased from Major Reynolds in 1889.

The original members worshipped at Valentine's Forge church, which consisted of a two-story building, the upper room of which was used as a lodge and social room.

While the church had a humble and, possibly at times, discouraging beginning, as people from Valentine's Forge and other nearby points moved into and close to Bellefonte, the work of the church had taken on definite form.

Early in 1889 Rev. E. W. Koontz began preaching in the Bush Addition school house. The lot on which the present church is built was purchased the same year from Major Reynolds.

In March 1893 Rev. G. E. Zahner was appointed pastor and served for four years, the membership during his pastorate having grown to fifty-six.

In March 1897 Rev. C. H. Goodling became the pastor. During his pastorate of two years a commodious parsonage was built, the church debt materially decreased, and the membership increased to seventy-two.

In March 1899 Rev. J. Wornelburg was appointed pastor and served for two years.

In March 1901 Rev. W. H. Brown became the pastor and served for three years. At the end of his pastorate the membership had grown to 141.

Rev. W. B. Cox was the pastor from March 1904 to 1908. During his pastorate the original indebtedness was cancelled and many improvements made; among which was the installation of a steam heat plant in the church and parsonage.

Rev. James F. Hower was the pastor from March 1908 to 1912.

Rev. A. F. Weaver was the pastor from March 1912 to 1914.

Rev. E. Fulcomer served the church for three years from March 1914 to 1917.
