Mr. Rogers and Mr. Derr were called upon to advise the board durng discussions upon delegation of authority. Raiston Derr, asked how the pusiness of schools was conducted n other communities where he'e taught, said that usually one of the school authorities, such as the supervising principal, was general overseer of schools and that under this system the work usually pro-ceeded smoothly. He declared that in his brief stay in Bellfeonte he's ome to have a sincere and deep egard for Mr. Stock's ability as head of the schools, and that he's never worked under more satisfac-tory conditions than he found under Mr .Stock's regime.
