

THE WAR IN EUROPE

Five months of the war in Europe have been devoted to cautious spar- ing with the real fight still to come.

In the North Sea, and its adjacent waters, the main antagonists face each other in a grueling endurance contest.

Germany, flattered by the Versailles treaty, slowly rebuilt an army and began a navy. More speedily the Teutons took advantage of conditions to create the world's strongest aerial feet.

In Italy where there was great dissatisfaction with the results of the World War, democracy took an earlier descent.

Germany, flattered by the Versailles treaty, slowly rebuilt an army and began a navy.

After Munich the pacifist leaders of the democracies awoke but not until their nations were humiliated and imperiled by aggression that plunged them everywhere.

There seems to be little reason to believe that Hitler wanted a major war when he attacked Poland.

Hitler, it may be admitted, miscalculated. He failed to perceive the astonishing change in the temper of the people of Great Britain and France, which practically compelled their governments to go to war.

Germany Embraces Stalin

When Italy made it clear that she would not fight, at least at once, Hitler played his ace, embraced Communistic Stalin and attempted to secure his eastern front and a source of supplies.

Hitler's hope was that the spectre of Russo-German collaboration would frighten the democracies into peace.

with tears in her eyes, that he began to drive faster.

"Then they told him they were running away to get married, and as soon as the girl was missed her folks would be after her."

"Dusty went to say that he was young himself once, but everybody doubted it. However he just sent them horses for all they were worth, and when he pulled up at the preacher's house, they were white with foam. Dusty went inside the house with the couple and saw them hitched together, and just as he was coming out up comes the girl's mother and brother, but it was too late."

"As Dusty went to add when he told this yarn, he had a warm enemy in that household for years after."

Taproom Patron Is Found Guilty

Alfred Lupold, the victim in the manslaughter case, died in the Lock Haven Hospital on the morning of June 28, where he had been taken after, as had been testified, he was found unconscious in front of his home at 7 o'clock Sunday morning by his brother, John Lupold, of English Center, who was visiting at the Lupold home.

Members of the Lupold family asserted that the father had left the house about 7 o'clock Saturday evening to buy some groceries at the Robb store. They did not see him until his body was discovered Sunday morning on the front lawn, it was alleged.

Accidents happen to careful individuals but not as often.
