Mother and Twins Die Snow-bound in their rural home between Galeton and Ulysses, Clarence Robinson and his 6-year-old daughter saw Mrs. Robinson and her newly-born twins die Thursday as a physician battled snow drifts to reach them. Mrs. Robinson had been under the care of a Coudersport doctor who urged her to remain at the hospital at that place but she said she preferred to be at home, and reached there just in advance of the storm. She became seriously ill while a high wind was blowing the snow into 10-foot drifts on the road to the farm, and died before her husband could summon help.
