

THE WAR IN EUROPE

Will a large-scale German offensive, perhaps involving invasion of Belgium and Holland, change the course of the six-month-old war which has been marked heretofore by the vicious struggle on the sea and the less spectacular economic pressure applied by the Allied blockade?

The great surprise of the war, in its early days, was the failure of Germany to attack on land, sea and in the air. German military strategy invariably adopts the offensive in line with the Frederickian theory that victory is to be secured by seeking and crushing the enemy. As the first month of the war dragged along, there were repeated verbal threats as to the severe fate awaiting the enemies of Germany, but the German Army did not move forward.

Will Spring Bring an Offensive?
Now that Spring has arrived, will Hitler order his generals to seek a decision in a smashing offensive gamble that will either win or lose the present struggle?

Some weeks ago, in this column, we suggested that the failure of Germany to take the offensive against the French and British land indicated a lack of materials for a large-scale, long drawn-out war. Whether the present flurry of talk represents another German "warning" to impress neutrals or actually forecasts an attempt to secure a decision will remain unknown until time passes or the Germans begin their offensive.

Allies Prepare; Germany Hesitates
Certainly, the French and British are better prepared today to withstand a combined aerial and military offensive than they were when the war began. The failure of Hitler's airplanes to bomb British manufacturing and industrial centers has given the Allies six months' time in which to build up enormous reserves of materials. More important, British soldiers have been trained for battle and the Allied nations have had time to make preparations to meet the German thrust.

If Germany attacks the French this Spring, it will be evidence of serious economic difficulties in Germany, induced by the stringencies of the Allied blockade. If Hitler's plan to hold off his foes in the West, while Germany exploits its conquered territory and develops a source of supply in Russia, is working out successfully, there is no reason for an offensive now.

Intense Warfare at Sea
Naval warfare continues to be a bitter struggle between Germany and Great Britain with most of the evidence indicating that the British fleet continues to control the waves and that the supply of goods, upon which England depends, continues to reach her, despite the efforts of German submarines and planes to "reverse the blockade."

In a recent speech Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, admitted the loss of 69,000 tons of warships in the first six months of the war, saying this represents one-half of the losses suffered in the similar period of the World War. He admitted the loss of 200,000 tons of merchant shipping, which means that captured ships and new construction offset other losses since the war began.

Hundreds of Ships Lost
While Germany claims that 495 Allied and neutral ships, totalling 1,810,215 tons, were destroyed in the first five months of the war, the estimate of neutral observers places the loss at around 400 ships of less than 1,500,000 tons for the first six months. These figures compare with 3,856,800 tons of shipping sunk in the first six months of the unrestricted submarine campaign of 1917.

It is the secret of youth that makes you feel years younger. It is the secret of youth that makes you feel years younger. It is the secret of youth that makes you feel years younger.

Allies Extend Naval Control
That the Allied fleets are extending the scope of their operations is seen from the presence of warships at Pegasus, where something like an Arctic patrol has been instituted to prevent Germany from using Scandinavian waters to thwart the blockade.

The position of neutral nations becomes more precarious as German submarines and planes continue to attack and sink neutral ships with impunity and the Allied nations threaten to extend their blockade operations into neutral waters. The severity of German attacks upon neutral shipping as shown by the loss of nearly 170 neutral vessels.

Tension Grows in the Balkans
The situation in the Balkan area continues to be threatening, with Germany and the Allies putting pressure upon Rumania in regards to oil. There are also ominous signs in Turkey that grave events may occur in the Near East. The entire area is smoldering and a spark can set off a flame of hostility which will envelop the Balkan nations and extend eastward to the Caspian Sea, involving a battle between Turkey and Soviet Russia for the control of the valuable oil fields of the Caucasus.

Finland's Defense Weakens
Continued pressure of the Russian Armies invading Finland appears to be having its inevitable effect, with some signs that the Finnish forces are being hard-pressed to continue their valiant defense. Last week, after the fall of the Kolibato forts, the Finns slowly gave ground on the eastern side of the Karelian Isthmus and there were reports of Finnish retreat from the Petsamo area. The question "How long can the Finns last?" may soon be "Can the Finns hold out until help arrives?"

WOODWARD
The Woodward Township Club held their first meeting in the new Consolidated School building last Tuesday evening, (Feb. 27). A club of some fifty members was organized. Their meetings are scheduled to be held on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month.

A number of our young people enjoyed the basketball game at Snow Shoe on Tuesday night of last week.
On last Thursday night Harold Ard took the dangerously sick baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Dress, Vera Mae, to the Bellefonte hospital. His mother and grandmother accompanied Mr. Ard to the hospital. The nurses immediately put the sick child under an oxygen tent. At this date the little one has improved somewhat.

Bear in mind the Woodward Union Cemetery business meeting which was scheduled for February could not be held on account of the inclement weather and the impassable roads, but will now be held on March 14. New officers will be elected at that meeting as well as transaction of other necessary business.

Mrs. George (Clara) Bechtel, who was taken to the Bellefonte hospital last week one day for a surgical operation is as well as can be expected. Mrs. Bechtel is suffering from diabetes.
Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Kuhlman of Wellsville, Ohio, sojourned over the weekend with relatives in town principally at the J. B. Ard residence.

C. E. Kremer accompanied Rev. H. A. Housal and family to the annual Central Penna. Conference of the Evangelical church at York, Pa. on Monday. Mr. Kremer is the official elected delegate to said conference.

Lively Old Pumper.
Even if the "old gray mare ain't what she used to be" the 40-year-old steam pumper of the Hope Fire Company at Philipsburg is still in good working order, a test workout and boiler inspection last week showed.

The last time the pumper saw actual service was in a fire in 1935, when the Sixth Ward School was burned. Its work at that time was effective in helping to fight the fire.

doors and at the same time have regular hours for recreation and education which are not available to boys in their homes.

Activities in camp are run on schedule. The police arise at 6 o'clock, eat at 6:30, police their barracks and camp and get to their work at eight. At 4 o'clock the eight hour day is over. From that time until the retreat ceremony at the close of the day, the time of the men is their own. After supper the boys are at liberty to study, read or engage in other activities of their own choosing until bedtime at 10 o'clock. No field work is done on Saturday unless it is necessary to make up lost time.

Each camp has separate school buildings and work shops where enrollees may receive academic and vocational training when the day's work is done. Training on the job is given to enrollees while they are at work. All CCC camp officials including the supervisory and technical personnel assist in carrying out the educational program. An educational advisor in each camp, under the direction of the Camp Commander supervises a program of study for interested enrollees. Although class work, which is held during leisure hours, is voluntary, a majority of the enrollees take advantage of class work offered in camp. Academic instruction includes classes for the elimination of illiteracy and elementary, high school and college subjects. Health, first aid safety and citizenship training are taught all enrollees. Training on the job is stressed in all camps during work hours on the various conservation projects. Vocational training classes are arranged to supplement job training.

CCC enrollees receive training in auto mechanics, bridge construction, bulldozer operation, steam shovel operation, stone masonry, telephone line construction, carpentry, concrete construction, Diesel engine operation, office work, road and trail construction, road-grader operation, drafting, jackhammer operation, landscaping, large scale cooking, tractor operation, tree nursery work, truck driving and welding.

Each boy has the advantage of recreational as well as educational opportunities. Each camp is provided with equipment for games and sports, library books and magazines.

Boys who are enrolled are assisted, directly and indirectly, to obtain employment when they leave the camp. The camp officials have raised the educational level of the average enrollee, taught him the proper work methods and have also instructed him how to apply for a job. They have written letters of recommendation, assisted the boys in making contacts, and have granted leaves of absence to boys so that they may search for a job. Civilian Conservation Corps officials cooperate with public employment agencies upon request, by supplying complete information on each enrollee so as to facilitate the placement of these men in permanent jobs.

The principal benefits received by young men who have been enrolled in the CCC are improved physical condition, better morale and increased employability. These boys return to their homes better equipped to live and make a living. These improvements are brought about by outdoor life, regular hours, plentiful and wholesome food, proper medical and dental attention, regular but not excessive manual labor and opportunities for study and vocational training will result in improved health for CCC enrollees, make the boys better citizens and improve their chances for economic independence.

It is urged that boys who are interested and eligible contact the Department of Public Assistance with-out delay. Applications received now will facilitate the work of the Department and will place a boy's name well up on the list for selection.

Driver Rans Into Truck
Skidding on the icy roads a car operated by John Minneweiler, of Ocochee Mills, smashed into the rear end of a highway truck last Wednesday morning on the Ocochee Mills-Philipsburg road. The truck was driven by Lawrence Richey, of Chester Hill. No one was injured in the crash and the damage to the Minneweiler car was estimated at $100.

Sojourning in Florida

The citrus and truck was not damaged here to any great extent though father north around the central part of Florida it was an entire loss. Truck suffered some, tomatoes etc lettuce mostly, also beans. However, they simply plow it up and plant again. And they do not lose anything, the price on what they have left just goes higher and they receive as much with less work. Shrubbery now is much greener and coming out lovelier than before the freeze. Everywhere is the tender herbages of spring.

We kept very comfortable through it all. Not even a cold. Now the wind has veered to southwest and the fronts of the palm trees are tossing lightly in a warm breeze. The sun is shining brightly and the sun bathers enjoying the warmth.

Perhaps you would be interested in hearing something about this beautiful trailer park, "where our caravan has rested." It is about 40 acres in extent and laid out in streets like a city. One main avenue along the west side, bisected by another avenue and has 20 streets running east and west. It is under management and much is being done to beautify it. The streets are being covered with pure white sands from the Gulf. At night, under the moon, they look as if covered with snow. The entrance is being widened, shrubbery planted, buildings repainted and they tell us when we come back next year we will see many more improvements. There are fifteen shuffle-board courts, horseshoe pitching courts, an archery range, two card rooms, a children's playground, with swings, etc. and a large auditorium or dance hall. Three dances are held each week. The other nights we have a picture show, or musical party, and this week they have scheduled an old fashioned barn dance with old time fiddlers to play, this to be held in addition to the other three dances. One evening each week we have a picture. This last week we had a man from Holland who has traveled extensively, who showed us travel pictures. Particularly interesting to us was the reel on the Yellowstone National Park, because we had seen this all.

Shelling is another diversion which has become quite popular in camp. It is said there are 400 varieties of shells to be found on the beaches of Florida. Interesting indeed is the fascinating trip to the beach to see how many varieties you can find in a stroll along the white sand. Several shell classes have been formed and exhibits of collections are to be held.
The next week, Feb. 26th to March 3 marks the high water tide in the bay. The camp will have many leave and from then on until April 1st many more. Of course quite a few remain until May or June, which they say, is a wonderful time in Florida. Of course, it all seems to be that, as for ourselves, we expect to begin the northward trek about March 18th, and will "nightly" pitch our moving tent, a "days march nearer home." It is hard to part with all the good friends he have met and played with. And one wonders if they will be here next season. However we have noted this; that most of them do return, whether it is the lure of the sun, the Gulf, the comfort of the sun or just the old legend about getting sand in their shoes so they come back, but whatever it is, there is always a honing for the same place when cold winds blow in our northern states.

Probably our last from this address. We have enjoyed writing to you and hope you have derived like amount of pleasure in reading our thoughts about glamorous Florida.
Sincerely,
R. P. and MRS. R. P. WILLIAMS

8 CENTAURIANS HAVE 1ST BIRTHDAY IN 4 YEARS
Friday was a big day in the lives of a number of Centre countians, for it marked their first birthday anniversary for a period of four years.

The little group, deprived of three out of four birthdays through the fact that they were born on February 29, which by an irregularity in calendar years comes only once every four years, includes the following persons:
Mrs. Charles R. Kurtz, Frank P. Gehret and Miss Jane Beatty, all of Bellefonte; Billy Musser, Pleasant Gap; Sandra Mayes, Lemont; Mrs. Mary M. Lykens, State College; Mrs. Carl Watkins, Millbrook, and Elwood Comly, of Unionville. Several of them were guests at birthday parties held in their honor.

Unlucky Trio

THE NERVOUS MODERN CHILD
If this restless jazz age does not soon come to an end, the world will be crowded with physical and mental wrecks.

Children were formerly kept comparatively quiet during infancy and childhood. They were also put to bed early at night. During the day they played with a few simple toys or romped in the gardens or under the trees.

Today their nurseries are fitted up in every kind of contraption intended to amuse and interest them. Ambitious mothers try to teach them to fit maps and puzzles together at a very tender age. As soon as they begin to toddle they play in the streets where life is a constant source of danger.

Poor little things dart back and forth on treacherous skates and scooters, escaping automobiles, looking and listening at every turn for juggernauts of death that strike so swiftly, maiming or killing. They are tense and on the quiver every moment, for they cannot romp, skate and play where deadly machines dart back and forth without realizing that at any moment they may be crushed under a truck, automobile or motorcycle.

When they go to school, the work is of necessity under our public school system so arranged that a certain amount must be covered in a given time. They are still further stimulated by the offering of various rewards or distinction if they attain certain standards.

The result is that some children easily reach the coveted goal while others who may have tried equally as hard and failed, feel bitter and keen disappointment which is further aggravated into resentment against the teacher who was in no way to blame for their failure.

If you enter a moving picture theatre where there is a show of a character which is most exciting, filled with fighting and dangerous hair-breadth escapes, you will find the place packed with children of all ages, squealing, yelling, and otherwise giving vent to their excited pent-up emotions.

Do you wonder that nervousness is increasing among children? It is a disease that is growing by leaps and bounds. The nervous child, unless placed in the proper environment and treated as he should be, will grow up into a neurotic, delinquent or psychoneurotic. He may ultimately land in an insane asylum. The latter institutions are becoming so overcrowded that at the present rate of increase in their population, in a few years the sane, normal people that are left will be unable to bear the burden of the unfit.
