

Echoes From the Past

Fifty Years Ago

The young men who organized a social club last week have rented rooms in Crider's Exchange, which will be handsomely furnished. The organization is a strong one and starts in with a good financial showing.

The prospects for a good crop of wheat this year are good. The fields look green and were not injured by freezing the past winter. The farmers need it as the yield must be large when the price is from 75 to 80 cents a bushel.

Saturday the Pennsylvania Railroad issued a circular for adding the Union news agents to sell fruits and confectionery on the trains. Only papers, periodicals and other literature will be carried by the boys hereafter. The officials recognized the other as a nuisance.

Our young legal friend James L. Hamilton, Esq., expects to be located at Graham, Tazewell County, Virginia, for the next few months. He will be back to Bellefonte to organize a lawyer's ball team next fall and will clean up the manufacturers in good shape.

Last week a car load of foreigners arrived in town and we understand they will be employed on the extension of the Buffalo Run Railroad. It is the intention to continue the line from State College to Huntington county for the purpose of reaching some of the ore fields in that section.

Marriage licenses were issued to the following couples: William H. Crook, Harrisburg, and Miss Mary E. Whippo, Bellefonte; Ellis Dillen, Julian, and Miss Clara Wilks, Clearfield county; Daniel C. Decker, Altoona, and Miss Agnes Brouse, Pine Grove; Mrs. Alex. Alexander and Miss Rosie Richards, both of Huston; Mrs. B. M. Daugherty, Clearfield, and Miss Annie Haines, of Snow Shoe.

The Commissioners would do a great act by illuminating the town clock dial so that the married men of town would know when to be at home with their families. The young fellows are not particularly in need of such a pointer. Rev. A. K. Felton, pastor of the Lutheran church, Phillipsburg, preached his farewell sermon to that congregation last week. During his stay of four years at that place he succeeded in the erection of a handsome house of worship which is nearly completed and paid for.

Augustus McClain has met with another disaster. He is apparently the child of misfortune. On Monday evening last about 9 o'clock fire took possession of his barn situated in Bald Eagle Valley about eight miles east of Tyrone, and totally destroyed it with all its contents, with the exception of the livestock, consisting of hay, grain and feed, and farming implements. His loss will foot up to about $1,500 upon which there is an insurance of $700. His tenant, S. E. Barr, of Martha Furnace, who had recently removed to the place with the intent to stay, suffered a slight loss. Although insured at its former location, it did not carry, and he with Mr. McClain are both losers. Lumber has been ordered and temporary sheds will be erected for the protection of the livestock.

Twenty Years Ago

Thomas Beaver, son of the late Governor Beaver, of Bellefonte, was a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Legislature, opposing Hon. Ives L. Harvey.

Mr. and Mrs. George Jordan, of near State College, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. They were the parents of twelve children, nine of whom were living. They also had 30 grandchildren and 7 great-grandchildren.

Samuel Klinefelter, of near Tusseyville, severely cut himself about the right foot while chopping wood. The axe fell on the top of the foot, severing a large vein. He was assisted by his home by his daughter and by James Swabb, who summoned a physician.

Marriage licenses were issued to the following couples: Charles F. Shook and Orpha L. Slegal both of Spring Mills; Mathias Zimmerman and Catherine Maurer, both of Spring Mills; Russell H. Rossmann, of Phillipsburg, and Helen K. Colyer, of Millheim; Harry D. Ruhl, of Spring Mills, and Irene E. Smith, of State College; Joseph Flack, of Julian, and Ruth Alkey, of Bellefonte.

A. B. Ballore, of Hopewell, Va., wrote the Kerlin Poultry Farm, at Centre Hall, that he was mailing them a valuable Masonic ring which he had found in a crate of fancy eggs received from the Kerlin farms. It developed that C. E. Fink packed the eggs and while going so the ring had slipped from his finger. While he knew of his loss, he had no idea where the ring had fallen.

Christy Smith had been placed in charge of the music store of Shaffer and Kremer, at Lock Haven, and he was contemplating moving his family to that city. Miss Grace Showalter had completed her term as teacher at Snow Shoe, and had gone to Hannah where she was finishing the school term in that community. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Showalter, of Bellefonte.

A group of prominent Bellefonte citizens met at the Curt House in response to a letter from Robert F. Hunter, to consider the pressing need for more houses in Bellefonte. Mr. Hunter pointed out that if Bellefonte was to grow it would have to provide housing facilities for new residents. A temporary organization was effected with Mr. George Hazel chairman, and John L. Lock, secretary. It was tentatively decided to form a house-building corporation to build homes to be sold or rented. Final plans were to be made at a subsequent meeting.

Musser lot, where they were caught. Fortunately neither the man nor the horses were injured.

The name of W. D. Zerby, Esq., of Bellefonte, was to appear on the Democratic primary ballots in Pennsylvania as a candidate for Congressman-at-large. The honor was accorded to Mr. Zerby without any solicitation on his part.

Mrs. Frank Maloy, mother of Dr. Edwin S. Maloy, of Bellefonte, died at her home in Millheim, Pa., on Monday afternoon at the age of 80. She was afflicted with a motor accident in front of her home. When one of the victims was brought to the Maloy home for treatment, Mrs. Maloy recognized her as a close friend of the family and became unconscious, succumbing shortly afterwards.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. White and son, Steilard, who resided on the Calvin Peters farm on Dix Run, narrowly escaped death when their Dodge touring car was struck by a westbound freight train at the first crossing above the station at Unionville. Although the car was demolished, its occupants escaped without serious injury. Mr. White suffered a fracture of the right leg below the knee and Mrs. White and their son received only minor lacerations and bruises.

Bressler, former vice-dean of the School of Agriculture, Penn State, has been asked informally to resign as president of Rhode Island State College, according to press dispatches from Providence, R. I. Dr. Bressler said that if the request for his resignation was made, he would give them his resignation. Louis A. Ream, secretary of the board, said that the resignation would be formally requested at the board meeting. Dr. Bressler said that the only reason given for the request was that the board had "lost faith" in his work. Dr. Bressler has been president of Rhode Island since 1931, during which time the college

Causes of Bowel Trouble in Chicks

Since the lining of the intestinal tract of the baby chick is very sensitive during the first weeks of its life, anything that may upset its digestive system will quickly manifest itself in bowel troubles.

In many cases bowel troubles are often complications or after effects of common colds. The congestion of the nasal passages and lungs reduces the efficiency of the respiratory system in purifying the blood, whereupon the burden of removing the accumulated toxins and poisons falls upon the digestive system.

The fluid content of the bowels is increased to flush out these poisons, resulting in the watery droppings that you see, which often adhere to the down of the chicks, causing pasted vents which further obstruct the elimination of fecal matter. Prolonged digestive disturbances bring about an inflammation of the intestinal tract which is evidenced by the presence of numerous off-colored droppings, usually of a mustard color and frothy consistency.

Bowel trouble due to pulorum disease can be largely eliminated by removing the carriers of the disease by testing with pulorum antigen, for it is known that the organism can be passed on to chicks through the egg. If the disease has been present in previous lots of chicks, or is present in the adult flock when the new chicks arrive, a thorough disinfection and fumigation will help to eliminate the possibility of infection from the source.

As a further precaution against the possibility of infection from some source that may have escaped your sanitation program, it is advisable to use a good drinking water medicine right from the first day and continuing for at least two weeks. Use a reliable preparation that will inhibit the growth and spread of disease organisms in the drinking water, and carry on the work in the digestive tract.

Excessive dryness is apt to prevail, especially in a well built brooder house, and this is often a predisposing cause of either bowel or respiratory troubles. The lack of humidity causes irritation and inflammation of the respiratory passages, removing the moist, protective coating against infection and allows easy entrance to disease organisms.

Frequent spraying with a stimulating, antiseptic solution mixed with warm water will help maintain the desired humidity, especially under the hovers and relieve the irritation and inflammation of the respiratory tract. The antiseptic will kill the germs on contact, before they may become lodged in the breathing system, thus reducing the possibility of more serious complications, such as pneumonia.
