PENN STATE TO HOLD SUMMER MUSIC CAMP

A new band and orchestra school, built along the lines of a Summer music camp, has been announced by Pennsylvania State College for its main Summer session July 1 to August 9. The school is open to both high school musicians and music supervisors.

In charge of the program will be Dr. George Sallade Howard, who has made a reputation in band music at the Chicago College of Music, the Ernest Williams Band School and the Mansfield State Teachers College. Professor Hummel Fishburn of the Penn State music faculty will direct orchestral instruction.

Professor Fishburn said the school would "add all the advantages of a college campus to the already popular idea of summer music camps." Trading in your home town is
