EDITORIAL

The French idea of peace, "with honor," is peace. South America is safe as long as American warships can guard her coast-line and ports. The complete effect of war upon our internal economy, including agriculture, is not yet realized by any of us. Declarations in favor of peace, made in the United States, will have nothing to do with the decision of Herr Hitler and he will decide whether we enjoy peace or not.

13 Hurt as Bus, Autos Collide

Car Forced Off Highway by Truck Causes Wreck Near Duncansville

Thirteen persons were injured, none seriously, Friday night in a collision of a bus of the All-American lines and two automobiles a short distance west of Duncansville Blair county, at the fork of route 22.

Joseph Yeager, 30, of Cleveland, Ohio, driver of the one car, recalled a possible fracture of the right knee and lacerations of the head and face, and was admitted to Mercy Hospital, Altoona, for treatment.

The accident occurred when a truck driven by Jack McCrea of Akron, Ohio, passed a tractor-trailer outfit operated by James E. Connolly of Pittsburgh, forcing off the highway Yeager's car. Trying to get back on the road, Yeager's car sideswiped Sproul's car, which is said to have started to follow McCrea's truck. All machines were headed west except Yeager's.

The bus, which was directly in back of Sproul's car, was struck by Yeager's machine almost immediately. The impact caused considerable damage to Yeager's car, pinning him against the steering wheel. The bus passengers were taken to the LaFinkle hotel at Duncansville.

Random Items

BOTTLE EXCHANGE: Last week this department carried a breakfast table grudge into the day's work and reported that the Bellefonte Milk Bottle Exchange must have become bogged down, because bottles from Jersey Shore and Lock Haven dairies are being used in Bellefonte. The strange bottles, it seems, find their way into the Exchange, and when the owners do not claim them they are used sometimes by local dairies. It is better to do that. Exchange officers say that to destroy perfectly good bottles. And that sounds reasonable.

TAXES: Beginning this week the great American taxpayer is paying extra taxes for gasoline, cigarettes, liquor and other items to help finance the national defense program. Looking on the plight of France and England, most of us will be happy to pay the tax to protect this country from a similar fate. We'd like to be assured by the National Government that there is a definite plan for national defense. We'd like to know, for example, what would happen if a force of several thousand parachute troops were to land in Centre county. Sounds fantastic, but it isn't impossible. We were better prepared for war back in the pioneer days. Then every family had a flintlock—and a flintlock in those days was the best weapon even trained soldiers had. Today a family is fortunate if it can lay hands on a revolver, which is mighty poor defense against a bomb.

GOOD OLD COUNCIL: We've always liked to hear Bellefonte Council rumble and threat about Mayor Harris, when the Mayor isn't present. There is much loose and irresponsible talk of how the Mayor is going to be brought to terms in his end of running the municipal government. Then when Hizzoner appears, things cool off with remarkable rapidity. The Mayor, for all the things Council sometimes says he doesn't do, seems to have an unerring faculty of knowing what goes on and how to come away with the honors, but on occasions when Council has timidly suggested that the Mayor might change this or that, Mr. Harris rises up in indignation on his own part and tells Council what it has done or is doing wrong. Whereupon Councilmen usually sit meekly in their chairs and Hizzoner sweeps majestically from the room, leaving the feeling at the press table that perhaps Council shouldn't have mentioned the thing at all.

NO IDEAS: This corner seems to have few ideas. What with the school board returning to normal and with a let-down in the current murder investigations, we find ourselves without much mental stimulation. It might, however, be well to report that the corner honestly is making an appearance in rapidly increasing numbers. Since they are so late in coming we predict a rather light swatting season, and even that in this troubled day, should be a matter for rejoicing.

GLORIOUS FOURTH: We suppose the State-wide ban on fireworks is a good thing. But we feel a bit sorry for the younger generation. They're missing the thrill of putting off a giant firecracker in a barrel in someone's cellar. They'll know nothing of blowing up mud dams, bottles, and cans with firecrackers. They won't have the fun of throwing a handful of carbide and a cup of water into an oil drum and setting off the charge with a spark plug. They won't honor their nickels for weeks ahead to squander it in a day's orgy of firecrackers, skyrockets, torpedoes and all the other infernal noisemakers the neighbor's darned kids until last year set off under our bedroom window.

Baby's Body Found

State police at the Huntingdon barracks are searching for any clues which may lead to the arrest of the person who deposited the premature body of an infant in a railroad car near Huntingdon. Police said decomposition made identification of the body difficult. The object was found in a car at a stone quarry and was wrapped in a woman's dress, newspaper and burlap bag.

Believed to have been melancholy over the death of her husband last August, Mrs. Bertha F. Weight, 66, a native of Bellwood, drowned early Friday morning in a bathtub at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Garman, Bellwood.

A note she left expressed regret at the time of the death of her husband. She arrived Thursday evening from her home in Saginaw Mich. to make her home with her sister. The coroner pronounced her death a suicide.

Born in Bellwood, she was the daughter of Thomas and Margaret (Zimmerman) Steele. Members of the family include one daughter and one son, Mrs. Joseph DeBlase of Altoona and George Weight of Saginaw, Mich.; two sisters, Mrs. Garman and Mrs. Clark Kerns of Bellwood.

OSCEOLA YOUTHS INJURED IN WRECK

Two Osceola Mills youths were injured last Thursday morning at 3 o'clock on the outskirts of Philipsburg on the Tyrone Pike road when the car they were riding in crashed into the home of James Russell. Injured in the crash were James Mineweiser, who was removed to the Philipsburg Hospital, and Edmund Kantoski, 22, owner and driver of the car. Kantoski was treated at the hospital dispensary for lacerations and then discharged.

Lock Haven Youth Drowns In River

Tragedy is Clinton County's First Swimming Casualty of Season

Thought to have been seized with cramp while swimming in the Susquehanna River last Thursday afternoon, 18-year-old Christian D. Tallman of Lock Haven, sank before rescuers could reach him and was drowned.

Tallman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Tallman, of Grove street, Lock Haven, was swimming with John Baird, Arthur McCloskey and Lynn Ricker, opposite Price Park, when the accident happened. His companions had preceded him across the 200-yard river and did not discover his plight before reaching the opposite shore. By then it was too late to return and be of any assistance.

Two of the group, Baird and Ricker, returned to the spot where Tallman went down, while McCloskey started for assistance. The body was not located until over an hour after the accident.

Surviving in addition to his parents are the following brothers and sisters, Mary, Edna, Franklin, Frederick, Paul, all at home, and a grandmother, Mrs. Anna R. Schade.

The young man was graduated from the Lock Haven High School this Spring, and had planned continuing his education. He had returned from a trip to the World's Fair Friday. He was a member of St. Luke's Reformed Church, and had been on the high school tennis team. He was the oldest of the Tallheim children.

HOUSEHOLD SCRAPBOOK

Blonde Hair: All the lights in blonde hair can be brought out without injuring the hair by placing as much borax as can be held on a quarter-of-a-dollar, adding this to a gallon of water, and using as a rinse.

Squaking Shoes: When the shoes squeak, take a darning needle and insert it several places between the layers of leather in the soles. Then with a small oil can, drop a little oil into these holes.

Paint Remover: Try using undiluted vinegar for the removal of obstinate paint stains on the mirror or window pane.

Cleaning Lace: Fine lace can be cleaned by laying it on white paper and spreading magnesia over it. Cover with another white paper and press between the leaves of a heavy book for a few days; then brush out the powder.

An Appetizer: A good appetizer is stuffed olives rolled up in slices of bacon. Slice them shut with toothpicks and toast until the bacon is done. Serve with small crackers. Pick them up by the toothpicks to eat them.

Avoid Rings: To avoid rings after cleaning with gasoline, rub the spots on washable goods with a strong solution of salt before applying the gasoline.

Lemon Milk Shake: A delicious lemon-milk-shake can be prepared as follows: Beat together two eggs, adding 1-2 cup ice water, 6 tablespoons lemon juice and 1-2 cup sugar; mix thoroughly. Add this mixture slowly to 3 cups cold milk, stirring constantly. Serve at once. This will afford about four or five glasses.

Where Mosquitoes Breed: Ideal breeding places for mosquitoes are wet areas, gutters, drains, tanks, bottles, barrels, cans, pails, kegs, tubs, buckets, and empty boxes—any receptacles that can collect water.

Paraffin: Keep the paraffin in a lipped utensil, or cheap tin teapot, for quick melting and convenient pouring.

The Garage Floor: Oil and grease stains on the cement floor of the garage are very unsightly. They can be removed by scouring with naphtha and a vigorous brushing with the broom.

Anybody with ready cash will meet people who know how they should spend it.

Health and Beauty

HOW TO REDUCE SAFELY Article No. 2: Alas there is no royal road to slenderness. If you keep your over-weight, it goes unerringly things to you. It ruins your figure, spoils your posture, ages you in appearance, and finally shortens your life. Listen to this blast from modern medicine. "This popular syndrome is gradual, symptomless and almost humorous in its development; but after the patient has passed through the smiling stages of obesity to a condition of genuine corpulence, a wide variety of annoying symptoms may be traced back to the pendulous abdomen with its accumulation of fat. The two most damaging effects of the protuberant, fat weighted abdomen are strain on the spinal axis which causes a deformity of the spine and irritation of the spinal nerve. The stomach cannot churn and digest the food properly on account of the apron of fat that hangs over it. The heart is also embarrassed by the pads of fat that surround it, and it becomes at times so hampered in its functions that the patient finds breathing difficult. Interference with the circulation gives rise to unpleasant and sometimes alarming symptoms. If the patient is a sufferer from hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure, his difficulties are greatly increased. If he is to be benefited, it is essential to reduce the weight and improve the posture. It is an established fact that fat people are very fond of the pleasures of the table. They also crave fattening foods. Some of them show very little will power in controlling their appetites. They are given to fooling themselves in regard to their size. If a fat person enters a room he will often select the smallest and frailest chair there is, and sit on it, causing the hostess, some bad moments, for she constantly expects that the chair will break and precipitate the occupant upon the floor. Some time ago the writer had put a corpulent patient upon diet, but she failed to lose a pound of weight. In fact she gained. One day a friend who heard her lamenting that she wasn't losing weight, asked her, "Are you on a diet?" "Why be sure," was the reply. "Do you eat anything besides the prescribed diet?" queried the friend. "No, I don't eat anything other thing except my usual three meals a day," was the amazing reply. Certain faddists are teaching that fasting for weeks at a time is the proper method not only for reducing the weight but for curing diseases as well. It is a well known fact that excess materials are stored in the body as fats and sugars. If food is not eaten for a long time, these reserve stores are first drawn upon and are burned or oxidized by the body to keep its vital forces going. A short fast for a day or two, or in certain cases even longer, may be beneficial, but a long fast can be productive only of harm. After the body uses up the reserve fat and sugar, if food is not eaten, then the tissues that form the actual structures of the body itself will be drawn upon.

Fifth Column Destroyed: When ten American Legion training rifles were stolen a week ago in Highland Park, Mich., police succeeded fifth columnists wanting to drill. The mystery was cleared up with discovery that a group of boys, 8 to 12 years old, had sold seven of the rifles for twenty-five cents apiece and were playing cowboy and Indians with the other three.
