the church, and that everyone should practice co-operative parental training in the homes at all times under all conditions. The principal of the Walker Township High school, Prof. Lewis Q. Fawcett, speaker of the evening, said: "Of all the tasks in the world that parents undertake, probably none is so important as that of preparing the next generation for its place in a changing world. The training of children is a high calling and a great responsibility because children are born imitators. They imitate the good and the bad, the weak and the strong, the true and the false points of their elders. Therefore, it is right and proper that we live so that the younger generation may see the good in us." He gave five rules for better living, as follows: self control, reliability, self-reliance, teamwork, and good workmanship.

Mr. Fawcett used for his conclusion this Collect, written by Mary, Queen of Scotland, when she was in an English prison: "Keep us, O God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed. Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking. May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face, without self pity and without prejudice. May we never be hasty in judgment and always be generous. Let us take time for all things; make us to grow calm, serene, gentle. Grow that we may realize the little things that create differences; that in the big things of life we are as one. And may we strive to touch and to know the great common human heart of us all; and, O Lord God, let us not forget to be kind. Amen."

Pennsylvania industrial activity in May soared to the highest level for that month since 1939—with the single exception of 1937—the Pennsylvania State College monthly business survey reports. Noting it had predicted recently that "an end was in sight for the sharp business recession which had been in effect for the three preceding months," the survey reported its May index mounted to 76.9, a gain of 17.4 points over May of 1939. Last May, however, it was pointed out, industrial activity was sharply curtailed by the coal mine shutdown due to contract negotiations.
