

Echoes From the Past

Fifty Years Ago

The Fourth was a quiet day in our town. The attractions at Tyrone and Williamsport drew a large number of people while many others left for the mountains or to Penn's Cave. All the stores and business places closed and few people were on the streets. The only reminder that it was a National holiday was the report of firecrackers and the flash of fireworks in the evening. Those who remained at home tried to amuse themselves in this way.

Last week Peter Ashcroft, of Philadelphia, was released from jail where he had been held for violating the liquor laws. The Ledger, of that place, says: "Mr. Peter Ashcroft came home on Thursday night in good health and spirits. He was met at the depot by a large crowd of admiring and sympathizing friends, headed by the Amateur Band, and escorted to his home, where he held a reception. Peter says he was imprisoned without cause."

One day last week one of the trainmen on the Buffalo Run road noticed a broken tire on the track near Waddies station. Upon examination it proved to be the body of a middle-aged man. From the condition of the corpse it was evident that death had occurred several days previous. As it lay, a portion of the body was partly covered by water. The exposed part was badly decomposed while the part under the water was fairly well preserved. The Justice of the Peace was informed at once of the matter and the remains were properly interred. Up to this time it is not known who the man was. It is thought to have been a peddler or a tramp who had been on that section the week before. As there were no indications of foul play or bruises on the body it is supposed that he might have been subject to fits and met his death by falling in the water.

Last week a blind musician who makes his living by singing and selling popular song books arrived in town. He registered at the Garman House that night. At about 10 p. m. he was in the kitchen and expressed a desire to be shown to his room for the night. Mr. Al Garman promptly responded and after lighting a lamp kindly led the blind man upstairs and showed him to his quarters. After a short conversation the general landlord was about to leave the room and said, "I put your lamp on that stand; you can find the matches alongside of it." That was too much for the blind man who exclaimed: "Get out with your matches and lamp! A blind man has no time to fool with such things." Al took the matches and lamp and started downstairs feeling that he ought to hire a cheap boy to kick his trousers thoroughly.

Free delivery at last! Bellefonte stepped one notch forward on Monday morning when the long talked-of and much discussed mail system went into effect. As the carriers, Messrs. John Wagner, James Byard, Johnny Bair and Thomas Benner emerged early on that morning togged out in fresh, clean and nobby grey uniforms, everybody stopped to compliment them on their general appearance. The intention was to have the carriers begin the first of July but owing to delays in obtaining mail pouches and other equipment it was postponed the following Monday.

place the following Monday. The rope broke and the fork fell, the prong passing through the front rim of a man's hat. Accidents of this nature are common occurrences almost every year and farmers cannot exercise too much care for the safety of those employed.

Twenty Years Ago

Misses Mary Alice Thompson and Margaret Bower went to Philadelphia; Miss Thompson to visit a cousin, and Miss Bower to spend two weeks at the home of Miss Helen Hess.

The Allison timber land on the Seven Mountains was recently sold to lumberman Charles Bilger, of Pleasant Gap for $20,000. The timber was just east of Poters Mills and was said to be the best white pine—original and sap—in the valley.

Professor Lloyd Rogers and Arthur Fulton, teachers in the Detroit high school, passed through Bellefonte on their way to their home in Nitany to spend the summer vacation. Professor Rogers was a former principal of the Bellefonte High School.

Israel Witten, a native of Russia but for twelve years a resident of Bellefonte, received his United States naturalization papers. During his conduct of a profitable junk business in Bellefonte Mr. Witten had gained an excellent reputation for honesty and fair dealing.

Earl Corman, Willard Abt, Jack Decker, Malcolm Yeager, Nevin Noll and Samuel Waite motored to Philadelphia to spend Sunday, and on their way home in the evening experienced considerable tire trouble. The trip from Philadelphia to Bellefonte consequently took about five hours.

Decker Brothers, of Spring Mills had placed a sawmill in operation on the timber tract which they purchased from the Bartses Brothers, west of Old Fort and west of the 23 acre oak timber tract into merchantable lumber. The price paid by the Deckers was $3,500.

The barn and outbuildings on the attractive 40-acre farm of Fred Smith, near Philadelphia, were destroyed by fire originating in straw in the wagon shed. Firemen prevented the flames from spreading to the house. All livestock which were in the implements, grain and hay were lost. Damage was estimated at $3,000 with $800 insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Wagner and two children, of Beaver, arrived in Bellefonte for a vacation which they expected to spend with relatives and friends in this area. Miles Wetzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wetzel, who is currently where he had obtained employment for the summer. He expected to resume his studies at Penn State in the fall.

Rev. W. D. Donat finished his pastorate at the Aaronsburg Reformed church by holding communion in the morning at Millheim; preaching at Salem in the afternoon, and delivering a Children's Day address at Coburn in the evening. The Rev. Mr. Donat and his son, Nevin, expected to make their future home at Strawberry Ridge, Montgomery county.

A costly fire in the P. R. R. yards at Sunnyside was prevented when Section Foreman Edward Quick sent two men to the yards to extinguish a small fire that had started in the bottom of a box car which was being hauled from the American Lime and Stone Co. The fire was shovelled from the car before the fire was extinguished. A hole was burned in the bottom of the car.

"Larry" Shields, captain of the Penn State track team, was fishing in a trout stream near State College, when a large rattlesnake made a lunge at him. Heavy trousers the angler was wearing prevented the snake's fangs from entering the flesh. A farm boy nearby with a rifle killed the snake, which had six rattles. Shields was the intercollegiate mile champion and was virtually assured of representing America in the Olympic contests.

Marriage licenses were issued to the following couples: Lloyd E. Quiser, Mingo, and Mary E. Peters, Mill Hill; William Wyant and Clay Lingafelt, both of Hollidaysburg; Lewis L. Grain, Sandy Ridge, and Sarah M. Cowher, Port Matilda; John H. Kuhn and Emma K. Rowe, both Boalsburg; Willis W. Stephens and Emily A. Neidigh, both State College; Elmer L. Langie and Velma E. Weaver, both Spring Mills; Ralph W. Mansfield, Morristown, and Helen I. Marton, State College.

The road from Monument to Orviston and leading to Bald Eagle Valley at Beech Creek, was being improved rapidly and showed signs of becoming a popular scenic drive. The hatch in John F. Musser's incubator at Millheim, of 50 ringneck pheasant eggs was a failure. Only one of the eggs hatched and that produced a cripple. Millheim sportsmen were making arrangements to secure several mature birds to raise a flock of the game birds for stocking the nearby mountains.

John Long, of near Penn's Cave, was taken to the Lock Haven Hospital, suffering from a stomach affliction. James McCook, of Centre Hill was using the lumber from a house he was tearing down at Red Mill to enlarge the property he recently purchased from B. H. Arney, in Centre Hill. A traveling agent of the Lewistown Tobacco Company, had his car slightly damaged in a collision with a truck operated by Charles Workman, of Mingo, while the two cars were passing on the state road east of Bellefonte. Two of the finest fields of wheat in Potter township were on the Hosterman and Swartz farms, at Tusseyville, tenanted by A. L. Shutterbeck and Milton Kline, respectively. During a severe storm lightning killed four valuable colts in the S. E. Weber clearing, formerly the D. J. Meyer pasture grounds, near Linden Hill. The colts were the property of Samuel Horner, Lanson Burris, and a pair owned by John H. Horner, which were mule colts.

Over The County News

Damage estimated at $20 resulted to the automobile of P. R. Middleworth, State College, last Tuesday morning at 11:30 o'clock when it collided with a car driven by Robert Glouin, also of State College at the corner of W. College avenue and Pugh street. After the Glouin car had pulled into Pugh Street, in an attempt to turn around by backing out on College avenue, it backed into the Middleworth car, damaging the front fenders and headlights. Officer Grant Kough made the investigation.

Six Bellefonte youths attending the Youths Temperance Council encampment from June 22 to 29 at Messiah Bible College, Grantlham Pa., won a track meet at the camp and received an attractive trophy as their reward. The youths, who competed with athletes from every section of the state, are: William Nolan, James Hoy, Jack Steele, Phil Gordon, Donald Leamer and Jack Rocky. The trophy will remain in their possession until next summer when they will endeavor to retain it by winning a track meet to be held at Bloomsburg.

Joseph L. Neff, 14-year-old State College youth picked up with three other youths for a series of robberies, was placed in the custody of the juvenile court officer after a hearing before Judge Ivan Walker last week. The youth was returned to the home of his parents. Judge Walker, who told the boy that he was being given consideration because of his age and the fact he has never been before the court before, ordered him to pay the costs of prosecution and to be in court for the amounting stolen. It is understood that he was given a permanent job in State College.

Mayor Hardman P. Harris, of Bellefonte, went fishing one night last week for a big trout he has been fishing about in Spring Creek below the mill works bridge. The mayor whipped the stream until dusk without a sign of the big trout. And then he suddenly felt a tremendous tug on his line and got set for what he thought would be a fight to the finish with a big trout. But the object on the end of his line went through motions that were not like those of a struggling trout. When Hizoner finally reeled in he found that he had caught a large rat that had become fast to his hook as it was swimming in the creek. That was the second time the mayor has caught a rat while fishing but he isn't discouraged and will keep right on fishing for that big trout until he lands him.

Miss Ruth Zubler, Spring Mills was elected president of the Centre County 4-H Club Council at the meeting last Monday night at the Court House in Bellefonte. She succeeded Donald Fisher, Stormstown, president for the last year. Ninety-seven boys, girls, and local leaders, representing 20 clubs attended the meeting. Other officers of the council elected for the ensuing year are Elwood Homan, Pine Grove Mills, vice president; Gladys Hoover, Pine Glen, secretary-treasurer; Ruth Stine, Stormstown, soror leader; Inez Luce, Centre Hill, game leader; and Kelly Chromare, Port Matilda, news reporter. The Council plans to hold a picnic at Hecla Park this month for all 4-H club members in the county. The new officers will act as a committee of Lenora and Miss Dorothy Seely of State College; Mrs. Margaret Meyers, mother of the bride, of Tyrone; Mr. Edward Meyers, brother of the bride, of Tyrone; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Keefer, aunt and uncle of the bride, of Huntingdon, Pa., and Mr. Howard Purry, Jr., and Miss Lois Stanley, both of Tyrone. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Peters and son David Glen. We herewith extend most hearty congratulations to this young couple and wish them much happiness in the years to come. Their future plans have not been completed at this time.

Peters-Meyer Wedding:—A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Sunday afternoon, June 30th at 3 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Peters, when their son Verne Melville was married to Miss Louise Meyers, of Tyrone. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. F. Kerstetter of the Methodist church under a bank of spruce and pine very beautifully arranged in the corner of the front room and a large bouquet of red roses at the side. Lohengrin wedding march was played by Miss Ruth Parsons as the bride party entered the room from the second floor. The bride was attended by Miss Lois Stanley of Tyrone and the best man was Mr. Howard Purry, Jr. also of Tyrone, both friends of the bride. The bride was attired in an afternoon gown of blue moire silk and carried a bouquet of blue delphinium and white lilies. The maid of honor wore a pale green silk evening gown and carried a bouquet of summer flowers. Immediately after the ceremony refreshments were served to the following guests: Mr. Samuel Lucas, an usher; Mrs. Snyder Stover and Mrs. William Solt and Teddy Solt of Bellefonte; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Fox and Mrs. E. H. Reed; Mrs. G. A. Garrett and daughter Patty Lou; Mrs. Kenneth Hall; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Watson; Miss Mae Baney; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Williams and daughter Nell; Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Hurt and daughter Louise; Miss Ruth Parsons and Louise Tingle, all of this place and Mr. and Mrs. Malhorn Bruce of Lenora and Miss Dorothy Seely of State College; Mrs. Margaret Meyers, mother of the bride, of Tyrone; Mr. Edward Meyers, brother of the bride, of Tyrone; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Keefer, aunt and uncle of the bride, of Huntingdon, Pa., and Mr. Howard Purry, Jr., and Miss Lois Stanley, both of Tyrone. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Peters and son David Glen. We herewith extend most hearty congratulations to this young couple and wish them much happiness in the years to come. Their future plans have not been completed at this time.

Sunday School Lesson

JOB'S STRUGGLE TO FAITH IN LIFE AFTER DEATH.

International Sunday School Lesson for July 14, 1940.

GOLDEN TEXT: "As for me, I know that my Redeemer liveth."—Job 19:25.

(Lesson Text: Job 14: 13-17; 17: 13-16; 19: 23-29.)

This lesson is a continuation of our study of last week. After seven days of silence, in which the three friends of Job sat beside him to comfort him, there begins a discussion as to why this terrible punishment had been sent on Job by God. One by one the friends speak and after each speaks, Job answers, proclaiming his innocence of the sins which they insist he must have committed to have had these afflictions visited upon him. While we do not have the space to discuss the arguments given by the three friends, nor the answers given by Job, these who would understand this lesson more fully would do well to read the Book of Job from the fourth chapter through the nineteenth chapter—the basis for our consideration this week.

Although stoutly insisting that he is innocent of the sins which his friends believe responsible for his condition, Job finally sinks into a slough of despondency. He cursed the day he was born and asks God that he be permitted to die if he can no longer count upon the favor of God. He denounces his friends as "miserable comforters" and in the words of James Aitkens, he turns "once more from his friends to God himself. He craves again the opportunity to contend with God face to face. As he rehearses what would be his blessing, he forgets his own sorrows in the recollection of the sorrows of mankind; and now for the first time there gleams for him a light which flashes all over the darkness which surrounds him, his own anguish and the anguish of the world. What if there be a life beyond the grave where the righteous, rescued out of Sheol by the hand of God, shall enjoy his favor forever. The hope gleams for a moment and is gone but it recurs again."

Then another round of discourses begins between the three friends and Job. They deny his arrogance and apparent irreligiosity. Job's attitude during the first round of the controversy is the example of a wicked man's impatience under calamity, and their opinions that he was guilty of some secret sin is confirmed. Losing patience with Job, they use all the arguments they know to prove to him, by past experience and observation, that it is the wicked who suffer and the righteous who are rewarded.

The effect of these accusations and the insistence of his friends that he was a sinner raised Job's suffering to the point of extreme mental anguish. He realizes the apparent distrust of his friends, the fact that God has denied him justice, has stripped him of his glory, relentlessly persecuted him and had wounded him almost unto death. However, Job's wonderful faith in God cannot be destroyed even by these unexplainable things that have happened unto him. He knows that there must be some way for him to escape from his misery that there must be some reason for his suffering. He thus reaches the spiritual crisis of his life—either he must sink into everlasting despair or he must see God through all his suffering.

Job then utters his everlasting confession of faith in the goodness of God—"As for me, I know that my Redeemer liveth, and at last he will stand upon the earth; and after my skin, even this body is destroyed, then without my flesh shall I see God; whom I even I shall see on my side, and mine eyes shall behold, and not as a stranger." He was confident that even though he couldn't understand the workings of God in this life, after death everything would be revealed to him and that his righteous life on earth would be vindicated by a just God.

It would be well for us to remember that many of the greatest advances that have come to human beings have come through suffering. By his suffering and death on the cross, Jesus demonstrated his unending love for sinful man. If he had avoided the cross, he would have renounced his honesty, his sincerity, his closeness with God. That suffering was turned into good—the salvation of the world if they only accept him.

Nip Plan to Smuggle Booze

Authorities of the Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg nipped in the bud what they believed was an attempt to smuggle liquor into the penitentiary following the discovery of a cache on the institution's grounds. An investigation was begun after guards uncovered a quantity of wines and liquors hidden in a field. The bottles bore stamps of the State Liquor Control Board.

UNIONVILLE

(From last week)

Furres, Bauder has joined the band of new car owners, since having purchased a new Dodge last week.

Miss Alice Brugger returned Sunday from a two weeks vacation spent with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Waite and family of Warrior's Mark, Pa.

Mr. James B. Stere and son John C. and Walter Zahniser motored to Pittsburgh last Sunday and spent a couple of days on business and pleasure.

Miss Margaret Parsons, student of the Thompson Business School in Harrisburg, arrived home Saturday morning and is spending this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Parsons.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Bullock returned home last Saturday from a weeks vacation spent with their children, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Bullock and Rev. and Mrs. Robert Keeler, all of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Raymond Snoke and Miss Charlotte Stere, accompanied Rev. H. E. Oakwood to Hollidaysburg, last Wednesday where they attended a caterers' luncheon at the Presbyterian Home for the Aged.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Fisher and son Jay, of Philadelphia, are visiting for a couple weeks with their respective parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Williams and Mr. and Mrs. J. Harold Fisher, while Mr. Fisher has a two weeks vacation.

Rev. D. D. Kauffman, of Newton Hamilton, Pa., former pastor of the Methodist church here, attended a Father and Son banquet held in the Methodist church of Milesburg last Friday evening, accompanied by his new son-in-law Mr. Lee Alexander.

Mr. J. R. Williams has purchased a new car this week and it is not a Ford this time, as he has decided to make a change, and it happened to be a Dodge. He told some of his friends a ride up to his farm in the country on Sunday afternoon and upon their return had a flat tire, in the rain, and he decided it was time to do something about it, hence the new Dodge.

The Welsh Singers of Johnstown, Pa., sang in the Methodist church on Sunday morning to a full house. There were fourteen singers and they certainly did make the music ring and echo through the church auditorium. Everyone present enjoyed their singing to the greatest extent and showed their appreciation for their coming so far to sing to them, by a few moments of silent prayer in their behalf. Rev. Kerstetter gave a few brief remarks which were also very much enjoyed. They were entertained in homes of members of the church for the noon meal and left for their home in the afternoon expecting to stop on their way back and sing to some other folks.

Our community was greatly shocked Monday evening on learning of the death of a former citizen, in that of James R. Pratt of New York City, who died very suddenly. Particulars were not learned at this writing but we were informed interment would be made in New York. "Jim" as he was known by his friends around here, was a former teacher of the Grammar School here and later took up the ministry and preached in the Presbyterian church and in his later years was working in the Missionary work of the Presbyterian church. He was a brother of Howard R. Pratt who comes here often to visit with his sister and husband in the Pratt homestead. Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Hurt. Most sincere sympathies are extended to the family in their hours of sadness.
