Truck Causes Damage
A driverless truck, coasting backwards down a short grade at Lytle's Addition, State College, damaged the parked coach of Mrs. L. H. Wands to the extent of $88 Wednesday morning of last week. The truck was left standing by Ralph Rudy, State College. It is believed that the brakes failed, allowing the truck to drift backwards.

Germans Lose Air Jobs

Eighty German employees of the Avianca Company, Colombia's domestic air service, have been discharged and replaced largely by North Americans and some Cubans. The Germans discharged were chiefly in technical positions, pilots, radio operators, mechanics, and photographers.

Milesburg Child Cause of Alarm

ply began to search. When her efforts proved fruitless she called across the creek to residents of Central City for help. The search gained momentum steadily and about 8 o'clock Milesburg firemen and members of the Undine and Logan Companies of Bellefonte entered in the search.
In quick succession State Motor Police from the Rockview barracks, Sheriff Edward R. Miller and his Deputy James Hugg, Boy Scouts and hundreds of volunteers estimated at 400 persons in all, reached the scene to comb the thick underbrush which surrounds the home on all sides.

Firemen donned boots and waded through the creek in the belief the child might have fallen into the water. Several Milesburg residents who own small boats cruised up and down the stream banks. Meanwhile hundreds of others, armed with flashlights and lanterns, beat through the underbrush searching for the two-year-old and his dog.

At midnight, when the entire area had been gone over with the thoroughness of a fine-tooth comb, searchers gathered in small groups in Central City and among themselves discussed other possibilities which might account for the child's absence. There was talk of kidnapping, and theorists didn't overlook the chance that the child might have been done away with. The boy's parents were unable to give any information which might support such possibilities, however.

Police began checking on reports that two men had been seen in the area during the afternoon. The identity of both men was known and officers spent an hour or more checking on their activities in the Bellefonte area. At 2 a. m. police gave up the search after making arrangements to have a squad of volunteers on hand at daybreak.

As dawn broke Thursday morning, searchers gathered in Central City, and bloodhounds from Rockview penitentiary were at the Mac Hall service station there. The dogs were in charge of their keeper, Paul Musser, of Millheim, while Dr. J. W. Claudy, superintendent of the prison, also was on hand to aid in the search.

Just as plans had been completed to set the dogs on the trail, two Milesburg brothers, Melvin and David Mills, who were on their way to the mountains to hunt groundhogs, came upon "Jackie" and his dog in a clover field on the John McCoy property south of Tangle-town. The brothers had been asked to keep a lookout for the missing youth and they took him home immediately.

From the meager account the child was able to give of his wanderings, it was learned that he and the dog had walked through the woods and fields until it became dark, when they stopped to rest. Sleep overtook the boy, and the dog stood guard. When it grew light the next morning the boy was found in the field until the Mills brothers came along.

When found the boy did not seem alarmed by his long absence from home and friends and after being taken home and fed, he and the dog returned to play in the yard in front of the home.

The search the previous night, it was found, had ended at the edge of the field in which the boy was discovered the following morning because searchers did not believe that a two-year-old youngster could have walked any further beyond darkness fell.

The boy who plays alone much of the time because his home is some distance from other habitations, is described as being "grown up" sort of child who seems to be able to take care of himself despite his extreme youth.

Teachers Attend School Meeting

gram centered around the question, "What should our children learn in our schools?" The 8 o'clock Wednesday night session, presided over by Fred E. Kelly, instructor in visual education, dealt with "The value of visual and other sensory aids in teaching," and the 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon session, under the leadership of Edward B. van Orman, assistant professor of psychology, will deal with the problems of "effective teaching."

Both resident and visiting members of the summer sessions faculty will appear on the programs. Among the visiting members are Arthur K. Loomis, superintendent of Shaker Heights schools, Cleveland, Ohio; J. Frank Faust, principal of Chambersburg high school, and Gilbert S. Willey, director of instruction, Denver, Colo., public schools. Dr. E. C. Peters, director of educational research at Penn State, also will be a speaker.

Dr. Frank A. Butler, associate professor of education, who is chairman of the program committee, emphasized that interested persons may attend one or all of the sessions.

Wheel Drops Off Car.
Two cars were damaged slightly Friday morning on the Earlstown road, east of Boalsburg, when a wheel dropped off one of the autos and rolled against the other machine. The cars, traveling in opposite directions, were operated by W. E. Lynn of Julliat and Shirley Ann Chesnut of Millburg. Total damage was less than $10. No one was injured.

Germans Lose Air Jobs
Eighty German employees of the Avianca Company, Colombia's domestic air service, have been discharged and replaced largely by North Americans and some Cubans. The Germans discharged were chiefly in technical positions, pilots, radio operators, mechanics, and photographers.

HOUSEHOLD SCRAPBOOK

Home-Made Glues
The white of an egg makes a splendid glue for many purposes, especially for cementing small pieces of wood, leather, crockery, etc. Evaporated milk is a good substitute for glue, especially for paper. Glue can be made by adding ordinary tapica to water and boiling.

Removing a Splinter
A splinter can be removed as follows: Place a wide-mouthed bottle, nearly full of hot water, over the splinter and press tightly. The suction will draw the flesh down and the steam will remove the splinter.

Unused Silver
Store unused silver knives, forks, and spoons in glass jars and they will remain bright and unscratched.

Fish
To bone a fish, begin at the tail and run a sharp knife under the flesh close to the backbone. With the knife, follow the bone its entire length, making a clean cut as possible. This removes one-half the flesh from the bone. Pick out with the fingers any small bones which may remain.

Kid Gloves
If the winter kid gloves are packed away in Mason jars and the lid screws on firmly, it will prevent any danger of mildew from forming, and probably ruining the gloves.

When Dry Cleaning
Salt added to gasoline used for dry cleaning will prevent the formation of the objectionable ring.

Stabbing Glass Stopper
If a glass stopper is hard to remove, a little glycerine poured around the neck of the stopper will loosen it. If the stopper does not come off immediately, allow it to stand until the oil works into the neck of the bottle.

Cheese Eggs
Eggs, scrambled with cream cheese, make a delicious dish. Melt a cake of cream cheese in butter, and when the mixture gets hot, pour in six eggs, beaten with a little milk. Stir thoroughly all the time it is cooking, and serve very hot.

Faded Draperies
Why not make the faded cretonne draperies and curtains into laundry bags or cup aprons? The fading will not interfere with their usefulness.

To Clean Furs
Clean furs by first brushing the wrong way; then sift over the fur some hot cornmeal or bran. Rub this into the fur and allow to stand before brushing it out. Take the fur outdoors and brush (with the nap) with a stiff whisk broom, after which saturate a clean cloth with gasoline and rub the fur well, using a whisk broom to restore the nap; then hang in the sun to dry. Rub with the nap when cleaning, and never use water on furs, as it shrivels the hide.

YOUR HEALTH

Shakespeare has Caesar saying: "Let me have men about my that are fat."
We'll wager Caesar did not say that in the summer time.
Fat men in the summer time are a sadder sight than in other seasons.

They suffer excessively from heat. Fat people suffer from more than the heat.
The most serious complaint fat people suffer from is short life.
Excess weight leads to crippled functioning of several essential organs of the body.

In long standing obesity there is an infiltration of fat into most of the body organs, particularly the heart and blood vessels.
Fat seriously hinders vital function.

The death rate from circulatory disease is two and a half times as great in overweight people as in people with normal weight.
Excess fat is said to be one of the most common precursors of diabetes.

Fat people are also particularly susceptible to diseases of the liver and gallbladder and they are less resistant to bacterial infections than others.

The risk of a major operation to the life of a fat man is great.
The bony skeleton suffers from overweight, the arches of the feet give way to chronic flatfoot and the joints of the spine develop worn areas resulting in arthritis.

Overweight in some rare instances may be caused by glandular dysfunction—but most cases are caused simply by overeating.

Weight reduction should be one of scientific and mathematical planning.
We know the caloric values of foods and the kind and amount of food needed can be calculated by simple addition.
Eating food is great fun but getting fat is foolish and fatal.
There are few old fat people—they don't live that long.

DO YOU KNOW
The good may die young, but all of the smart people do not die young. The average age of death for all the presidents of the United States is 68.4 years. The average age at death of eminent men of antiquity was 66.7 years, while in modern times, 150 noted scientists and poets died at an average age of 64 years.

The girl shows have nothing that isn't visible on the beaches.
