

Housewives Everywhere Are Enthusiastic Over Roaster Cooking

The homemaker who uses an electric roaster, takes the afternoon off without a care in the world, coming home to find a perfectly cooked dinner ready to serve the family.

It's not surprising that housewives are enthusiastic over electric roaster cooking. Why wouldn't they welcome a method that's so easy so clean, so cool, so time-releasing and so dependable!

From the very first time they use the roaster, housewives report perfect results. There's nothing to it, they say. They just follow the instructions that come with the roaster and, using any tested recipe, have a perfect product every time.

It's the automatic heat control that's responsible for cooking perfection. Once the temperature dial is set at the proper degree of heat for the type of cooking to be done—whether it's a low simmering temperature or a high, quick heat—that temperature is constantly maintained.

With such dependable heat control, the housewife is freed from constant watching in the kitchen. She can go about other tasks while dinner is cooking—or leave the house for a ride or a bit of shopping—knowing that she will return to a well-cooked meal.

Another reason housewives praise the roaster is the coolness of roaster-cooking. You see, the heavy insulation around the roaster keeps the heat in where it is needed instead of allowing it to heat the kitchen.
