Propose Expansion of Chemical Lime Co. (Continued from page one) 4 1/2 per cent preferred stock of the National Gypsum Company on a ratio which would be approved by the court. Wynne said these creditors and stockholders would receive in Gypsum bonds a "substantial proportion" of the value of their financial interest in the Chemical Lime Company. The National Gypsum Co., described as an 18-million-dollar industry and the second largest of its kind in the world, has never defaulted on a preferred stock dividend, it was said. In the formal presentation of his plan to the court, Mr. Wynne expressed the belief that acceptance of his suggestion would not only practically double the output of the Chemical Lime Company, establish it on a sound and permanent financial basis, and assure all creditors of consideration, but also would give employment for many additional workers and bring direct financial returns to the Bellefonte Central Railroad and to the community of Bellefonte. Commenting upon the proposal, Tuesday, Mr. Wynne declared that an additional rotary kiln and a hydrating kiln are "minimum necessities" at the chemical plant if the proposed plan is to be carried out on an economical and efficient basis. The mechanical equipment installed by the previous management of the company, he said, is "unbalanced" and until that condition is corrected it is impossible to operate with maximum efficiency.

4 1/2 per cent preferred stock of the National Gypsum Company on a ratio which would be approved by the court. Wynne said these creditors and stockholders would receive in Gypsum bonds a "substantial proportion" of the value of their financial interest in the Chemical Lime Company. The National Gypsum Co., described as an 18-million-dollar industry and the second largest of its kind in the world, has never defaulted on a preferred stock dividend, it was said. In the formal presentation of his plan to the court, Mr. Wynne expressed the belief that acceptance of his suggestion would not only practically double the output of the Chemical Lime Company, establish it on a sound and permanent financial basis, and assure all creditors of consideration, but also would give employment for many additional workers and bring direct financial returns to the Bellefonte Central Railroad and to the community of Bellefonte. Commenting upon the proposal, Tuesday, Mr. Wynne declared that an additional rotary kiln and a hydrating kiln are "minimum necessities" at the chemical plant if the proposed plan is to be carried out on an economical and efficient basis. The mechanical equipment installed by the previous management of the company, he said, is "unbalanced" and until that condition is corrected it is impossible to operate with maximum efficiency.

The proposed R. F. C. loan of $350,000 would correct the situation, he indicated. Up to this time the R. F. C. loans to the Chemical Lime Company total about $750,000. Engineers from the National Gypsum Company, large users of lime, have surveyed the chemical plant and have agreed upon a plan of reorganization, he continued. Some details in the proposed set-up are to be changed before the hearing, August 8, Wynne said. If the court approves the plan, it will have to be voted upon by creditors and stockholders before it can be put into execution. Wynne predicted that if his plan is adopted the output of Chemical will be "practically doubled" and the chemical lime plant will become the finest plant of its kind in the United States east of the Mississippi. He predicts that under the proposed changes it will be possible to manufacture high quality lime at prices lower than elsewhere in the competitive area. Bellefonte, he feels, would benefit greatly under the plan. The immediate increase of production would mean a larger payroll and larger local expenditures for labor and materials, he said. Pointing to the achievements brought about in the 2 1/2 years since the Chemical Company was placed under the trusteeship, Wynne said the payroll is three times greater and sales are about 2 1/2 times greater than when the company went under Federal 77-B regulations on January 10, 1938.
