Fifty Years Ago

Miss Millie Smith, daughter of Exc-Treasurer Charles Smith, of this place, left this week for a visit to Atlantic City, after which she will return to West Chester to attend the State Normal School at that place.

The bricklayers are at work on the new United Brethren church building. The first story will be finished in pressed brick to the window sills and from that up in wood. The tower will be of brick. It will make a handsome structure and one of the nicest houses of worship in this section.

Ed. Note: In a report of an assault and battery trial in Court it is alleged: "The defendant was charged with calling upon the lady at her house and while there he took her by the hand in a violent manner, and solicited a kiss." The dastardly villain in the case was acquitted of the charge.

E. G. Schaeffer, of Williamsport, formerly of Zion, who has been attending Post's Shorthand and Business College, has accepted a position as stenographer and typist for the Henry Distin Manufacturing Company of that city. He is turning out in the neighborhood of 100 letters per day, with but a short experience.

On August 22 the temperature at Milton was up in the eighties, with occasional flashes of lightning. It cleared shortly after midnight and by 3 o'clock the following morning there was a quarter of an inch of snow on the awnings of the stores in the business part of the town. The early freight trains on both the Philadelphia and Erie and the Philadelphia and Reading roads were covered with about a half inch of snow.

The report of Messrs. Simon Harper, C. W. Hosterman, William Wolf, Mich Derstine, John Spangler, John Emerick, and James C. Boal, appointed at a recent term of court as a board of viewers to assess amount of damages incurred by the straightening of the main street leading to the station in the borough of Centre Hill, was filed. The award of damage was: J. D. Murray, $48; Emily Alexander, $94.50; Daniel Fleisher, $175.50, and George Nearhood, $8.

James Kerr, Washington, D. C., Ex-Gov. A. G. Curtin and Major R. W. McClure, of Huntingdon, with other prominent speakers will be present and address the meeting. This is expected to be the largest and best picnic ever held by the club. See large poster for full excursion rate for the group trip, H. H. Benner, secretary.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. made application this week to the County Commissioners for the use of the court house during the coming winter for the purpose of giving a course of entertainment the same as during the past season. The commissioners will not likely grant this request as they do not consider it their duty to give the use of public buildings for holding entertainments, especially when more suitable places can be had. We heartily endorse their action. There was a time when there was some excuse for granting such requests but that time has passed. The court house is not built and is not maintained by the taxpayers for the purpose of a public hall or play house—it is the Court of Justice.

Under an arrangement with E. B. Westfall, Supt. of the P. & E. & L. & T. Railroad, shipments for the exhibition to be held in Grange Park will be charged regular current rates to Centre Hall, but all such shipments after the exhibition, if unsold and reshipped, will be returned free to original point of shipment, over any of the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad system by which they came. This free return will only be granted upon presentation of the original paid freight bill and a certificate signed by the proper officer of the exhibition to the effect that the exhibits are unsold in addition to the above mentioned privilege granted arrangements have been made by which all camp equipment will be carried free.

Mr. Jodon, a former general manager of the Bellefonte Central Railroad, took a U. S. Civil Service examination for the position seven years ago and received word shortly thereafter that he had passed the examination with a good grade. However, he heard nothing more about it until a month ago when he was advised.

Jack Stover, truck driver for Korman & Company, Bellefonte motor transport company, became sick and lay in a Cleveland, Ohio, hotel last Saturday, after delivering a load of merchandise in the Ohio metropolis. Word of his illness was telephoned to his family at Millheim, and Mr. and Mrs. Bethard Keller left that night for the Ohio city. They brought him back home Sunday afternoon and he has since been confined to his bed. It is thought that he injured himself internally by heavy lifting in unloading his truck and x-ray photographs were taken to determine if that is the cause of the trouble.

COLLEGE TWP.
Mrs. Daniel Lutz, of State College, and her guests Mr. and Mrs. Willard Roan from Lafayette, Indiana, spent Wednesday visiting among relatives and friends in the township and other parts of the county. Mr. Roan is a member of the E. T. Roan family, who lived in Bellefonte for many years and which time they operated the E. T. Roan grocery store. Later the family of five became residents of this township, Willard then just a boy, living in the property next to Mrs. E. T. Roan's birthplace, the Herkimer homestead. It is nearly thirty years since the family moved to Indiana, and this is Willard's first trip back to Pennsylvania.

Sunday School Lesson

PRaising GOD FOR HIS BLESSINGS.
International Sunday School Lesson for September 1, 1940.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Bless Jehovah, O, my soul; and forget not all his benefits."—Psalm 103:2.

Lesson Text Psalm 103; 1-5; 10-18.

The Book of Psalms is the greatest collection of hymns and praises ever brought together. No wonder the Jews used them, set to music, as their hymn book. Today, in our modern choirs, there are no selections more beautiful than one of these Psalms sung to the accompaniment of stirring music.

The theme of the 103rd Psalm, the basis for our consideration this week, is almost a lost art in this day—that of gratitude. Adults, as well as children, accept the gifts bestowed upon them by a thoughtful God or sympathetic society as a matter of course, with no thought whatever of being grateful or of thanking the giver.

However, David, the writer of this beautiful song of praise, was mindful of all the blessings that God had showered upon him and he called upon his soul and all that was within him to praise his holy name. This Psalm is the record of a monologue—a man talking with himself. If we, in this day of fun and hurry, would stop long enough to be quiet and would recollect to ourselves the "benefits" which God has bestowed upon us, we would, like David, sing a song of thanksgiving and praise.

If we will study this Psalm, we will see that the Psalmist thanked God for four different kinds of benefits. The first was thanks for the forgiveness of sins. When David looked back at this life and thought over all the things he had done for which he needed forgiveness, a wondering gratitude filled his being at the divine mercy which had pardoned his sin. Then he thanked God for his health. We are prone to give all the credit for our bodily healing to doctors and surgeons who, of course, contribute a large part, but these same doctors and surgeons would have been helpless to restore our health had it not been for the recuperative power of nature, bestowed by a living God.

The Psalmist also thanked God for redeeming his life from destruction. How often have we today seen evidences of God's protective care over the lives of men and women who apparently have been miraculously saved from peril or death. It is because all of these benefits received continually from the Lord that the Psalmist can say to his soul that God has satisfied it with good.

After recounting many of God's blessings to him, the Psalmist begins to relate some of the great characteristics of the one from whom all blessings flow. He says God is full of compassion and graciousness, slow to anger, and plentiful in mercy with those who have sinned. If God were to give us what we deserved, we would be in a terrible condition, but God is full of mercy toward his weak, wayward children and he forgives our sins and casts them from him as far as the east is from the west, remembering them against us no more, provided we confess our sins, repent of our wrong doings and turn unto him.

God is pictured as a loving father, who loves his children, sympathizes with them, instructs them, chastises them when necessary for their own good. God knows all about us, he "knoweth our frame," for he made us himself. While our span of years on this earth is brief, God's mercy is showered upon us here and on into everlasting life.

In order to receive the blessings of God, which we cannot merit but which he has promised to abundantly bestow upon us, the only condition is that stated in the 18th verse of the 103rd Psalm: "To such as keep his covenant, and to those that remember his precepts to do them." We cannot ignore God and his laws and expect to receive his blessings.

When we have been blessed by him, let us return thanks to him and let our lives be an evidence to the world of our gratitude.

RUNVILLE
About 70 of our folks gathered in Locust Grove last Saturday and enjoyed in a fine picnic dinner and a good number stayed for supper.

Mr. Walter Herral and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Confer and family motored to Jersey Shore visiting with relatives last Sunday.
