In Memoriam

A loving tribute to a Dear Priend Rev. J. J. Weaver." I cannot know where Heaven lifts
Its jasper walls in air.
But ob, I've dreamed its giory

More beautifully rare. Since this Dear one we loved Became an Angel fair.

And left us for a little while

To live and laugh and linger
there.

We miss his smile—the light it

The tenderness of his touch, the words he apoke—the character this love that was so much. We long for the sound of the sil-enced step The prayers of his earnest soul. The sound of the gentle voice now hushed The best of his heart of gold . We shall always think kindly of this precious one. Whom, we worthily called a Priend.

Who patiently, prayerfully, thank-fully Bore his cross to the end. His leaving hurt and saddened us And dimmed our eyes with tears, But the memory of his sweetness To gladden tomorrow's years,

And in our bitterest loneliness
When our hearls seem crushed with pain.
It's comforting to know that our great loss
Ls Heavens still greater gain.

"Oh yes, I know not where His city Its fronded palms in air, this I know, he cannot drift Beyond Gods love and care: M. A. SHULTZ
