

Echoes From the Past

Fifty Years Ago

Morris Hayden, a young colored lad of Tyrone, last Saturday morning went down to the depot at that place. He staggered across a track where a freight engine was shifting, was knocked down and run over. He was taken to the Altoona hospital where both limbs were amputated.

Twenty Years Ago

Miss Betty Beak, of Moshannon, had accepted a position as messenger for the Western Union Telegraph Company at Philipsburg, while learning the art of telegraphy.

ous bruises about the body in addition to fractures of both wrists. Records for Bellefonte borough for the year 1849-50 revealed that expenditures by the Borough department that year totaled about $1,500, and by the water department about $1,000. In 1920 the total borough expenditures were about $75,000.

Miss Gerlie Taylor, in spook costume, won first prize of $4 at a masquerade skate held at the Novelty Rink in Bellefonte; George W. Friedly, barber at Rhule's shop, won first gentleman's prize of $4, for his costume as a clown, Ralph Haasinger in a negro costume, took second prize of $2.

Miss Dora Shipe, of Milesburg, daughter of Emanuel Shipe, had her left leg fractured Labor Day when in a board on the merry-go-round in the park at Snow Shoe broke and her leg was caught while the machine was in motion. A physician set the bone and the young lady was sent to her home.

While returning to Bellefonte from Philadelphia, Mrs. August Glantz, wife of the proprietor of the Grand picnic, had three fingers crushed in the door of a Pullman car. The accident happened at Harrisburg, and word was sent ahead to Huntingdon where a waiting physician treated the wounds.

The Brokerhoff House, one of Bellefonte's prominent hostilities, was to be temporarily closed about October 1, when H. S. Ray was to give up his tenancy and move to the Monroe Armory property on East Linn street. The hotel was to undergo repairs while closed. The new manager had not been named.

Miss Mildred Eberhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Eberhart, and Harry M. Wian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wian, were united in marriage at the Bellefonte Methodist parsonage by the pastor, the Rev. Alexander C. Scott. Mr. Wian was employed by the State Highway department here. The couple expected to reside in Bellefonte.

George Young, Bellefonte barber, was making arrangements to go to Miami, Florida, to spend the winter. Before leaving he expected to undergo a slight operation on his hip, which was believed to be the cause of a rheumatic condition from which he suffered. Mrs. Young expected to remain in Bellefonte with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Struble, during his absence.

Marriage licenses were issued to the following couples: Joseph I. Weaver, State College, and Hazel C. Rishel, Leontine; Boyd C. Fredricks, Centre Hall, and Esther A. Foreman, State College; Harry M. Wian and Mildred A. Eberhart, both of Bellefonte; J. Latimer Bryan, Milesburg, and Mildred C. Hassinger, Philipsburg; Harrison E. Wittmer, Bellefonte, and May W. Spotts, State College.

While Miss Catherine Bent, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bent, of North Spring street, Bellefonte, was sitting on the porch of the family home at dragon fly, commonly known as a "snake doctor," bit her on the arm. Several days later the arm was swollen to almost twice its natural size and a physician discovered that blood poison had developed. The victim was responding to treatment.

Air Mail Pilot Walter Stevens and his mechanic, Walter Thomas, of Cleveland, enroute to Chicago with a cargo of mail, were hurried to death at Pemberton, Ohio, fifteen miles south of Toledo, when their plane caught fire at an altitude of 50 feet. The fatal accident happened the day after the pilot and mechanic had stopped in Bellefonte on their way west. While here Stevens told friends at Bellefonte, where he was well known, that it was his last trip since he had resigned from the air mail service. The plane in which the two men were killed was an all-metal Junker type—the same kind in which Pilot Max Miller and his mechanic met death only two weeks previously.

Over The County News

Miss Lottie McCool, chief operator in the Millheim Bell exchange enjoyed her annual vacation last week in Millifenburg and Sunbury.

Dinges Brothers, operators of the Pine Creek Mills, are improving the buildings to a coat of dark red paint. This is just another indication of the progressiveness and up-to-date methods of this prosperous and bustling firm.

G. C. Boob won fifteen gallons of gasoline last week at the West End Fair as a reward for guessing most accurately the number of empty quart of tins used in making up a parade float by the West End Service Station, Millifenburg. Mr. Boob's estimate of 1978 was just one more than the number used.

The improvements made along East Main street, Millheim, seem to continue right along the street. With the completion of the brick road proper the past several years, that his sidewalk needed raising to meet the new grade. However, instead of raising his old walk, J. B. is making a new one, a piece of work that will add considerably to the value of the home.

Surveys are now being made to rebuild a four mile stretch of highway from Boalsburg on the Earllys road to Centre Hall. It was reported by Aaron C. Letzler, local Superintendent of Highways. The new road will be 18 feet wide and covered with a three inch macadamized surface. $110,000 has been allotted for the work which will be started as soon as the survey is completed.

Roy C. Arbogast, who has been conducting a grocery store in Rebersburg, Pa., for several years, has rented the store room in the Mrs. Amelia Bowersox building on Main street, Millheim, vacated by Bricker's Clover Farm Store, and will open a grocery store there in the near future. The Arbogast family will become residents of Millheim, having also rented the W. H. Brech place, the former Gutelius property.

Last Thursday afternoon an accident occurred at the intersection of Route 45 and the road to Laurelton. W. C. Auman, of Millheim was traveling east on the main highway and Thomas P. Wise, of Rebersburg, drove out the Laurelton road, falling to stop at the intersection. It is alleged, slight injuries were suffered by Mrs. Auman and daughter, Betty, and their Dodge sedan was badly damaged in the crash.

Earl Wian, of Valley View, was elected to the Board of Supervisors of Benner township last Saturday night at a meeting of that board in Bellefonte. He succeeds the late Elmer "Peet" Breen who died several weeks ago. Mr. Wian was elected to serve for three years, until the expiration of Mr. Breen's term. Other members of the board are Gilbert King of Valley View and Lewis Pitzer of Pleasant Gap. Mr. Wian, who was formerly employed by the board is well qualified for his new position.

Last spring, when he started to raise chickens, S. P. Springer, at Norwood-in-the-Narrows, did not think much about an angle but the one of selling eggs. However, a recent visitor took a look at the Buff Orpingtons and immediately ordered a half dozen. The stranger declared that he wanted the feathers more than the chickens—and for the express purpose of tying fire-trousers—the Orpington's feathered coat having just the shade of feathers that he needed to make some especially attractive lures for wily brook trout.

Posters announcing the National Letter Writing Week, scheduled for October 6 to 12, have brought to mind the fact that the official who is sending out this appeal to citizens to "write today to those away" is Ramsey S. Black, third assistant Postmaster General, a resident of Harrisburg, where he was formerly postmaster and where he was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Mr. Black and the late Rev. J. J. Weaver, of Millheim, were fast friends, the latter being an all-year-round exponent of the plan to keep in contact with friends and relatives by letter writing, and he practiced it religiously.

The Centre County Historical Society made plans for a concerted membership drive at its meeting last Monday afternoon at the library and historical building here. The members present voted to continue the present officers, President George R. Meek and Secretary-treasurer J. Thomas Mitchell and the directors in office until the annual meeting in May. Representatives of the Penna. Historical Association from State College announced tentative plans for the annual meeting of the group to be held at State College Friday and Saturday, October 18 and 19. The Centre County Historical Society will be in charge of a luncheon session of the convention to be held Saturday noon, October 19, at the Penn State Hotel here, following which the most of their opportunities in life answers such questions as: Who is the Wise man? What is the best way for an intelligent person to conduct his life? Where can one find dependable guidance for his life? Does wickedness pay? What are the results of wisdom in the individual's life?

If tapeworms and capillaria worms are present in the flock it will be necessary to treat each pullet individually with worm "caps" containing drugs which will remove these species. Different species of worms require different drugs, and advertised claims for reliable products shipped in interstate commerce can be relied upon.

Worm "caps" that have a soluble coating make the active ingredients more readily available to the fowl, and therefore more effective. A new compound is available which can be compressed into elongated tablets, making capsules unnecessary. These convenient tablets contain ingredients which paralyze certain species of tapeworms causing them to loosen their hold upon the lining of the intestine and pass out of the body heads and all. They cause no toxic after shock.

RAM SALE USED IN SHEEP IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

As a part of the sheep improvement program in Pennsylvania, the first of this year's cooperative ram sales was held in Carlisle recently. W. B. Connell, in charge of livestock extension for the Pennsylvania State College, reports that 26 rams averaged $28.75. There were 10 consigners and nine counties were represented by the buyers.

Buck and Doe Run Valley Farms, Coatesville, consigned the top-priced ram of the sale, a Hampshire which is a son of the ram now being used in the college flock. The price was $46, and the buyer was Guy L. Robinson, Montrose.

The next ram sale will be at Indiana September 29.

WORM PULLETS BEFORE MOVING TO QUARTERS

The most convenient method of freeing pullets of the worms picked up on the range is to use a flock treatment that can be mixed in the growing mash. Given five or six days prior to moving, this treatment will leave round worms and cecal worms on the range and give the pullets a clean start in the laying house.

Flock treatments over a period of days will remove cecal worms, for the remedy will have an opportunity to penetrate into the tips of the ceca where this species is found. A good flock worm treatment should be a properly balanced mixture of refined ingredients rather than crude raw products. It should cause no physical disturbance; in fact it should contain supportive drugs which will help the fowl throw off the toxins secreted by the worms during the period of infestation.

After all, what is wisdom? Dr. H. C. Moon answers: "True wisdom is more than knowledge, or skill, or judgment, or prudence; it implies the highest and noblest exercise of both moral and intellectual powers. And it has seven prominent traits (James 3:17): purity which is chaste and sanctified; peaceableness in spirit, endeavor, and effects; gentleness which is forbearing as to faults and winsome in doing God's work; docile; fruitfulness, especially in acts of mercy; impartiality which sees good in the unloving and bad in the veneered moralist; sincerity which is without dissimulation.

Sunday School Lesson

THE VOICE OF WISDOM

International Sunday School Lesson for September 22, 1940.

Golden Text: "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life."—Proverbs 4:23.

Lesson Text: Proverbs 4

While our lesson for this week is entitled, "The Voice of Wisdom" and we have no quarrel with that, we call your attention to the subject assigned for the consideration of young people, in their quarters, based on the same scripture reference, Proverbs 4. It is "Living Intelligently." We are going to try to treat this lesson with that subject in mind.

Surely this generation needs the injunction, from the Bible and from any other source, to live intelligently. So immersed is the world in the pursuit of material possessions, of personal entertainment and the gratification of individual desires that in the mad race to accomplish its aim, it forgets the real values in life and fails to use the intelligence which God has bestowed upon it.

There are two essential elements in creative living—intelligence and love. The Christian life is always characterized by reasonableness and good will. While there were people in Jesus' day who thought he was crazy, he was the clearest expression of the wisdom, the power and the love of God. A study of Jesus' life will show that he lived intelligently and he invites us to share his mind, to walk in the truth he revealed, and to live sanely and creatively.

The Book of Proverbs, written mostly by Solomon, David's son, is a book of wisdom, of advice, addressed especially to young men who really desire to make the most of their opportunities in life. It answers such questions as: Who is the Wise man? What is the best way for an intelligent person to conduct his life? Where can one find dependable guidance for his life? Does wickedness pay? What are the results of wisdom in the individual's life?

After all, what is wisdom? Dr. H. C. Moon answers: "True wisdom is more than knowledge, or skill, or judgment, or prudence; it implies the highest and noblest exercise of both moral and intellectual powers. And it has seven prominent traits (James 3:17): purity which is chaste and sanctified; peaceableness in spirit, endeavor, and effects; gentleness which is forbearing as to faults and winsome in doing God's work; docile; fruitfulness, especially in acts of mercy; impartiality which sees good in the unloving and bad in the veneered moralist; sincerity which is without dissimulation.

1. Above all the authorities which might speak to a rising generation to guide it in right ways, the most helpful word ought to be that of parents who have tested the good life by their own experiences. Vss. 1, 10.

2. Wisdom, as a way of life, has brought to men all those things implied in this chapter: Position, Honor, Character, and Long Life. Vss. 8-10.

3. Men show themselves to be lovers of wisdom by the moral tone of their lives. It is as inconsistent for wise men to follow in wicked ways as for them to persist, in the face of evidence, in the belief that the earth is flat. Vss. 14-17.

4. One of the greatest rewards to come to the righteous is their increasing ability to recognize and to enjoy goodness. Vss. 18.

5. There is a two-fold method of escape from evil. One concerns itself with directions as to escape from evil (Vss. 14-17), while the other concerns itself with dealing with one's own attitudes toward a good life. (Vss. 20 ff.)

6. There are three things about every person which need to be watched closely, lest they become occasions of evil: Lips, Eyes, and Feet. (Vss. 24-26.)

7. If "heart" signifies the emotional life of a person, and out of (Continued on page three)
