BELLEFONTE DRAFTEES GO TO FORT MEADE

Draftees from Bellefonte will go first to Fort Meade, Maryland, one of the 13 Army posts designated as reception centers for conscript troops, it was learned here today.

Either direct from their homes or from temporary "assembly points" at which they will stay less than a full day—only long enough to be inducted into the Army and grouped for transpor-tation—the Bellefonte draftees will go to Fort Meade for a four or five day program of orientation.
At Fort Meade, according to present plans of the war department, they will get the preliminary "shaking down" designed to settle them speedily into Army routine. They will get intensive elementary military training. They will be given aptitude tests, and on the basis of results will be classified as to aptitudes. Then they will be assigned to Regular Army or National Guard units. either at Fort Meade or elsewhere. Since the capacity of the Fort

Meade reception center will be only approximately 1,500 conscriptees, reporting dates will be "staggered" and draftees will be sent through in contingents of 1,500 each four or five days, until all have been handled. This means of the draftees called in Bellefonte may wait even as late as December before being order-

Police Investigate Philipsburg Stories

Pvts. Harold D. Ream and John Eisenhooth, of the Rockview substation State Motor Police, after investigating the finding of "hair' and clothes in the Philipsburg area during the weekend, attached no significance to either find.

Murder rumors spread through Philipsburg when Harry Hassinger, of Philipsburg, reported the finding of a woman's clothing in a heap in while he was hunting mushrooms. The items included a hat, brassiere, step-ins, dress, slip, shoes and stockings. The grass was much trampled for an area of six feet around the clothing, it was said. The clothing, not new, is believed to have been there for some time.

Rumors were renewed last Thursday when a man fishing in the Black Moshannon lake said he this fall. found entangled in his hook what he thought to be a woman's hair. Police, after grappling in the lake, decided that the hair was nothing more than fine roots from trees and other vegetation in the dam.
