DEEP LITTER HELPS A POULTRY PROBLEM

Use of deep litter is helping to solve one of the poultryman's problems, say County Agent R. C. Blaney. The problem is wet litter and the new way of handling the situation is gaining in popularity. Several inches of dry, broken litter and dry crumbled droppings now in the poultry house may serve as a deep litter. The deep litter is made frequently and in limited amounts, about enough to cover the surface. The hens scratching breaks it up better than if large amounts are added.

Two functions are served by the deep litter. One is dryness and the other is insulation of the floor. It promotes fowl comfort during deep winter in houses which otherwise would be colder, and it also saves frequent cleaning, the poultryman's worst chore in winter. If portions of the litter become wet from spilling of water and add enough cream or mayonnaise to moisten. Add all the other ingredients and mix well. Spread between thin slices of bread.

Wertner, field secretary of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society; and Harry Wood, Scott Arboretum, Swarthmore College.

The problems of life will never be settled by the boys and girls who are out for a good time, although they may create some private problems for themselves.

Sarah Ann's Cooking Class

How much cheese do you eat a year? A study of a cross section of families, 3,000 in number, in one large city of the U. S. revealed that only 27 per cent of the families surveyed were eating cheese at all. Cheese gives good returns for your money, says the National Dairy Council for the food value is very high and it is available in appetizing variety. It is really a concentrated form of milk, and provides additional ways to include milk in family meals. About 5 quarts of milk are required to make 1 pound of cheese.

Cheese Dumplings

2 cups flour.
5 teaspoons baking powder.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons shortening.
12 cups grated cheese.
1 cup milk.
2 cans condensed tomato soup, diluted to make 4 cups.
Sift flour and measure. Add other dry ingredients and sift together. Cut in shortening and work in cheese. Add milk gradually, mixing with a knife to soft dough. Heat soup to boiling. Drop dumplings by spoonfuls into top of soup. Cover and cook 15 minutes. Do not remove cover during cooking. Serve dumplings covered with tomato sauce. Add 1-4 cup of grated cheese to the soup before adding dumplings if desired.

Creamed Eggs

3 tablespoons of butter.
3 tablespoons flour.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
1-2 cups of milk.
1-2 pound of pimento cheese, grated.
6 slices of toast.
6 eggs, hard boiled.
Parsley.
Melt the butter, add flour and salt. Stir until mixed well. Slowly add the milk and cook over hot water, stirring constantly. Add the cheese, heat 15 minutes until well blended. Place the toast on a hot platter and pour a little of the cheese sauce over each slice. Then arrange 2 halves of eggs on each serving and pour the rest of the sauce generously over them. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve at once.

Ham Au Gratin

2 cups light cream cheese.
3 large potatoes.
Cheese.
Ham.
Prepare the cream sauce. Pare and slice the potatoes. Put alternate layers of potatoes and thinly sliced layers of cooked ham into a casserole. Cover with cream sauce and grated cheese. Bake covered for 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Remove cover and brown cheese.

Tutti Frutti Cheese Sandwiches

1 package cream cheese.
1 tablespoon chopped marachino cherries.
1 tablespoon minced crystallized pineapple.
1 tablespoon salted finely chopped nuts.
Mash cheese with a fork and add enough cream or mayonnaise to moisten. Add all the other ingredients and mix well. Spread between thin slices of bread.

Crabmeat Special

1 can of mushroom soup.
2 tablespoons flour.
1-3 cup water.
1-8 ounce can of crabmeat.
1 section Grapeseer cheese.
Heat the soup, add the flour which has been mixed with the water. Add the crabmeat, free of bone. Cut the cheese in small pieces and add. Serve on hot toast.

Grilled Cheese Sandwiches

1 hard boiled egg.
1-2 tablespoon pimento.
1 small onion.
1-2 pound cheese.
1-2 cup evaporated milk.
1-4 teaspoon salt.
1 tablespoon butter.
1 tablespoon flour.
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce.
Put the egg, pimento, onion and cheese through a food chopper, using the medium knife. Melt the butter in a saucepan and add the milk and stir until the mixture turns to a boil. Combine this with the cheese mixture and spread between slices of bread. Toast under a low heat until golden brown.

Apricot Rice Fluff

1 1/2 cups dried apricots.
1/4 cup sugar.
2 cups cooked rice.
3 tablespoons powdered sugar.
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon.
1/4 teaspoon lemon extract.
Wash apricots and simmer in just enough water to cover for 25 minutes. The water should be nearly evaporated, if not, drain. Add 1/2 cup sugar and continue cooking for 5 minutes. Remove from fire, beat to a pulp and cool. Whip cream until thick, but not stiff. Add the powdered sugar, rice, cinnamon and extract. Mix thoroughly. Beat in the apricot pulp and pour into a paper lined bread pan. Chill 3 hours. Serve in glasses.

Deviled Rice and Cheese Balls

2 tablespoons prepared mustard.
2 tablespoons grated horse-radish.
Cook rice. Then mix with the egg which has been well-beaten, add 1/4 teaspoon salt. Shape the cheese into balls about 1/2 inch in diameter. Roll them in the mustard and horse-radish which has been mixed together. Put rice and egg mixture around the cheese balls, being careful that every bit of cheese is covered. Shape with the hands.
Fry in deep fat until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper and keep hot until ready to serve.

DISPELLING THE FOG

By CHARLES MICHELSON
Director of Publicity, Democratic National Committee

Nobody can be sure at this writing just where Mr. Wendell Willkie stands in the matter of conscripting industry. He started in, of course, by setting himself against the idea that the President should have the authority to make over any establishment that weighed on the preparedness job, and he viewed with alarm the prospect of cracking down on preparedness facilities, on the theory that that classification might be interpreted as meaning newspapers and radio.

The administration did not sit well on such Republican members of the House of Representatives and the Senate who understood the necessity of hurrying up and making effective the preparedness program. There were many sarcastic suggestions that the Republican candidate seemed to favor conscription of young men but was bitterly opposed to the conscription of money; that it was all right to send an individual citizen to defend his country but that it was all wrong to ask that business in its various forms should also be expected to do something for the safety of the country. This reaction seems to have rattled the utility candidate and started him to hemming and hawing and hedging and hopping, to explain that what he said wasn't exactly what he meant and to insist that he was as deeply concerned with the individual voter as he was with the individual money-making institution.

In the Middle of the Road

What he apparently desired to convey was that he was in favor of conscription, that conscription was wise, but that he didn't like the way that man Roosevelt was approaching the problem. As a thoroughly conservative liberal to satisfy the progressives, and a thoroughly liberal conservative to satisfy the people who are putting up the money for his campaign, he hoped that his position would not be misunderstood. But of one thing he was sure, and that was that he disapproved of the Roosevelt approach either to liberalism or to conservatism. This may seem like a rather confused diagnosis, but it is not more confused than Mr. Willkie's own position.

Actually, conscription of industry was a Republican slogan from the time that Warren G. Harding succeeded Woodrow Wilson at Washington. Over and over, the argument was made that in time of war all hands should be compelled to put the safety of the country first, regardless of hardships, even if those hardships represented the limitation of the individual citizen's freedom. This himself sounded off in his inaugural address, where he described "the ideal republic" where, he said, "we may call to universal service every plant, agency, or facility all in the sublime sacrifice for country, and to not one penny of war profits shall inure to the benefit of private individuals, corporation, or combination."

The Harding viewpoint was adopted in the declaration of faith on which Calvin Coolidge ran for President in 1924. It sounded so good and represented such an appeal that Herbert Hoover ran on the same platform in 1928. In Herbert Hoover's second campaign for the Presidency the declaration went still further, for in the platform of 1932 not only was it demanded that every material resource in the nation "should bear its proportionate share of the burdens occasioned by the public need" but it added: "It is the duty of government to perfect plans in time of peace whereby this objective may be attained in war."

If twenty years of iteration and reiteration does not establish as a party policy so obvious an expedient as that which we are discussing, it would be pretty hard to find anything in platforms to which one might pin his faith. Yet here we have the Republican candidate for the Presidency side stepping and shuffling over it and a number of Republican legislators making the enactment an excuse for hampering and delaying the whole defense program.

The Sacred Cause of Profiteering

It is quite understandable that the crowd from which the Republican campaign funds are due to be raised, should object to any measure which would put a curb on extortion. This outfit figures that the Government has to have certain supplies to equip us for a possible great emergency and true to its habit, wants to levy all the traffic will bear in the situation. The Government, on the other hand, is seeking authority to prevent outright profiteering. It is willing to make contracts assuring a generous profit, but needs the indicated authority in order to hold any possible chiselers in line. Every war-time President has had this authority and I don't think any of them has ever had to invoke it.

It would seem either that Mr. Willkie should tell the obstructing Congressmen to get off the right of way or for them to tell him to get on the track. But there does not appear to be any meeting of the minds.

The situation is not dissimilar from the difficulty the Republican candidate and the various subversive groups have in getting together. Mr. Willkie has announced that he does not want the vote of any of the intolerants, but a spokesman for the Ku Klux Klan, defending the recent meeting of the knights of that order at the camp of the pro-Nazi Bund is out, with this statement: "We intend to fight with every ounce of our strength and until the last ballot has been cast that Roosevelt shall not have a third term; that America does not want war, and for the right to work. To this end we dedicate ourselves, which can only be accomplished in the defeat of Mr. Roosevelt and the election of Wendell Willkie."

HOUSEHOLD SCRAPBOOK

Holes in Screens

A small hole in a screen can be mended by first trimming the edges until it is roughly square. Cut a new piece of wire cloth about an inch larger each way than the hole. Pull out several wires on each side of the patch and bend so that the wires stick out at right angles. Place over the hole and push the wires through the screen, bending back through the opening until the new piece is firmly in place.

Aluminum Polish

A good polish for aluminum ware is made by mixing ammonia and water in equal quantities, and then adding the mixture to sufficient borax to make a paste about as thick as paint. Apply with a thick soft cloth and polish with cotton flannel.

Leaky Vases

Take some melted paraffin and pour it into the vase and allow to harden over the spot where the leak occurs. It will not leak again.

Protecting the Hands

Before attempting some job around the house that is rough on the hands, such as when cleaning, moisten some white soap and work it into the pores under the fingernails, and around the cuticle. When the work is finished wash the hands and all the soil will come off with the soap.

Worn Rugs

Worn rugs may be mended by sewing a piece of burlap to the wrong side with wool thread, making stitches form loops on the right side, afterward clipping the loops the height of the nap of the rug.

Easily Found

The electric light buttons sometimes prove very difficult to find at night. However, if they are touched with a little luminous paint, they can easily be seen in the darkness.

Cleaning Bottles

To clean a small-necked bottle where it is impossible to get a brush into it, use a few heavy beans, small buttons, or tacks, and a small amount of soapy water. Swish these thoroughly about inside, and every particle of stain will be removed.

Ecu Curtains

White curtains can be made ecru by dipping them into a solution made by boiling one tablespoon of black tea in one quart of water. Strain this solution before using.

Painting Blackboards

The blackboard should first be painted with ordinary glossy black paint. Then, when this is dry, apply a coat of black paint mixed with turpentine instead of oil; this will dry a dead black.

Care of Rubber Goods

To preserve soft rubber goods suspend the articles, or rest them on a rack, several inches from the bottom of an enclosure, in which place a small quantity of kerosene. The vapor arising will prevent cracking without injuring the goods.

ever it is, will be moved, and the Benner home—regarded, it is said by Governor Brumbaugh's son, the noted architect now restoring Daniel Moore's early home near Reading, "the finest specimen of Revolutionary period architecture in central Pennsylvania"—restored to its former glories.

Popular Senator F. A. Godcharles now at work on a monumental continuation and amplification of the pioneer historians of central Pennsylvania, John Blair Linn, J. U. Shaffer, J. F. Meginnis, J. H. McMinn and others—said the other day: "The General Philip Benner home epitomized a golden era in Pennsylvania—in fact, no history of the central part of the state, its industries, its minerals, its forests, its agriculture, its people and above all, its social life, can ever be written leaving it out. What a service to posterity to keep standing this noble Pennsylvania Kenilworth."

Health and Beauty

WHAT ARE MICROBES?

The world is full of curious things among which are microbes. They are so small that most of them can only be seen with the most powerful microscope. We see the result of their work, but we would never know the real agencies behind their accomplishments if we were not aided by the inventions of scientists. We shudder and think of them in terms of invaders and killers which many of them most certainly are. Suppose that all the microbes in the world should suddenly be completely eliminated, what would happen? Wounds would not become infected any more. If you should get a blister on your heel it would get well. Your child would be free from any of the germ-produced infections. Some play a very large part in the economy of life; they cause decay and decomposition. It is the germs that disintegrate dead bodies and vegetation of all kinds and return them to the soil to furnish materials for all growing things to feed upon.

Nothing is lost in the universe; only forms are changed. The animal or plant dies and the process of decay takes place. It is then nutrition, or as we say fertilizes the crops and vegetable life of all kinds. Man and the animals feed upon the food thus produced and so the process goes on endlessly. Life, death, decay; their return to the soil to fertilize it and give sustenance to all life upon the earth. (To Be Continued)
