

HOT SCHOOL LUNCH ADDS TO CHILD'S WELL BEING

Do you know that the hot lunch benefits your child in more ways than one?

Where the hot school lunch has been tried and used, results show that the child who has had this type of lunch has increased in weight, has less colds and infections, and has better school marks.

The school child needs three good meals a day, reminds Miss Helen S. Butler, home economics extension representative of Centre county. Whether eaten at home or at school, the noon meal should furnish about one-third of the child's food for the day.

One hot meal may not mean much, but eating a cold lunch every day for eight years or more may mean the difference between poor health and good health.

Many schools have no facilities for preparing and serving an entire hot lunch, but it is possible for every school to provide one hot dish for the school lunch. Best results have been found where only one hot dish is prepared and served a day. This hot dish supplements the cold lunch each child brings from home.

To insure success in the hot lunch program, it is necessary to have the interest and cooperation of parents, teachers, and pupils. Mothers, individually or in a group, can supply the equipment and staple supplies. The pupils can prepare the hot dish, serve it, clean up afterwards, and keep the records and accounts. The teacher's enthusiasm and interest will help to start the program and keep it going.

Suggestions for the one hot dish include the single food or combination of milk, eggs, or vegetables. Some desirable dishes are: cream of vegetable soup, vegetable beef soup, spinach with hard cooked eggs, baked potato, chili-con-carne, cocoa, or creamed eggs and peas on whole wheat toast.

The food in the box from home may contain:

1. Sandwiches—preferably of dark bread with a vegetable filling of chopped cabbage, carrot, spinach or lettuce; dried fruit fillings; cheese; or a combination of eggs.
2. Fresh raw vegetable or fruit, such as celery, carrot strips, cabbage, tomato, apple, orange, or banana.
3. Milk.
4. A simple dessert, such as fruit candies or molasses cookies, may be added to give variety to the box.

You will find that a menu built on this lunch pattern sounds interesting and tastes good as well. A menu may include: cream of potato

FLOWER ARRANGEMENTS REQUIRE SOME THOUGHT

Gardens in the fall hold flowers in a variety of colors and textures. Why not use them before Jack Frost waves his wand?

Among the flowers may be delicate, gay dinnias, colorful calendulas, snapdragons, asters, large and small marigolds, velvety, petunias, and sturdy chrysanthemums.

With these on hand, let's try some original arrangements and color combinations, suggests Miss Helen S. Butler, home economics extension representative of Centre county. You may want a special arrangement for a particular niche in your home, or to exhibit at the next flower show. You can be your own judge for these too.

The flower show judge likes to see an arrangement that has distinction. This is one that is unusual in color harmony, arrangement, or use of materials.

To be most attractive, flowers should have some relation to the container in which they are placed. It is essential that texture, form, and color of flowers and containers be in harmony with each other. Keep the flowers more prominent than the container, yet in some way make them related to each other.

Color harmony is important. It is the best to have the combinations pleasing in value relations or gradations of color. And it is wise to have one tone predominant.

To achieve good balance in an arrangement, we need to watch the stem length of the flowers in comparison with the height and width of the container. Usually the deeper colored, fully opened flowers are put at the lower end of the bouquet.

Do not overlook good quality in flower and foliage when making bouquets. We like arrangement to last well, and good quality is one requisite.

Large Barn Near Bellefonte Burns

Stormtown, and his gasoline-powered threshing outfit were finishing the threshing of the Heckman oats crop. Mr. Gorman noticed a small fire on top of the straw stack beside the barn, and spread the alarm.

The threshing outfit was halted and moved away from the scene while workers, frantically sought some means to reach the blaze on top of the stack. In a few moments however, fire worked down the side of the stack and soon the entire heap was ablaze.

Realizing only a miracle could save the barn, Mr. Gorman, Andrew J. Shively and others ran to the barn and led several horses and some cattle to safety. When the Undine Fire Company, summoned by a still alarm, arrived at the scene the entire building was involved. Firemen ran a suction hose from a cistern and stood by to protect nearby buildings. Nothing could be done toward battling the main fire since the whole structure was involved and burned to the ground within an hour.

The building, 50 by 80 feet in size, is reported to have been nearly a century old, but was in excellent condition. In recent years the stables had been concreted and a sheet metal roof had been put on the building.

Fred Heckman, who leases the farm from his mother, declared that while the building was insured up to its limit, the loss will be considerable. Yesterday he had made no plans for the future care of his stock and crop.

Mr. Gorman, the operator of the threshing machine declared he didn't believe the fire could have originated from a spark in the machine since the straw pipe was full when he stopped the machine, and none of the straw showed evidences of fire. He expressed the belief that a match might have gone through the machine and had become ignited just before being blown onto the stack.

Four Cars Involved In Night Accident

Four cars were involved in a Saturday night accident in front of Lobb's Grill at Chester Hill, near Phillipsburg, which resulted in estimated damage of $530 and slight injuries to a passenger in one of the cars.

A Plymouth sedan and Ford convertible coupe driven respectively by Kenneth Fields, Clearfield, and Christy Meek, Pottsville, collided and banged into two cars parked along the side of the highway. The parked cars, a Ford truck driven by Leslie Thompson, Osoola Mills, and a Mercury coach, driven by William P. Long, State College, were damaged $10 to $20 respectively. Damages on the Fields car were estimated at $100 and on the Meek car at $200.

Leonard Gardner, a passenger in the Meek car, suffered slight injuries and was treated at the Phillipsburg hospital.

Turnpike Open; $1.50 Toll Charge

Dedication Not Set; Pay When Leaving; Round Trip For Passenger Cars, $2.25

The Pennsylvania Turnpike was officially opened to the motoring public Tuesday morning at one minute past midnight, just twenty-three months after the first ground was broken to start construction.

The Turnpike Commission meeting at Harrisburg Monday afternoon made the announcement of the opening of the 160-mile stretch which connects Harrisburg and Pittsburgh. At the same time, the commission announced the toll rates for all types of motor vehicles.

The tolls are:

Passenger cars, $1.50 for full route, and $2.25 for round trip good for thirty days; Trucks, $3 to $10, dependent on weight and type of vehicle.

Buses will pay on the basis of seating capacity, but exact rates were not immediately announced.

For trips of less than the entire distance, passenger cars will be charged on an approximate pro rata basis of a cent a mile while trucks will approximate from two cents to six cents a mile on partway trips.

Payment Upon Leaving

Collections of toll fares is necessary to retire $40,800,000 worth of bonds sold to the RFC, which amount together with an outright grant of $29,250 by FWA, provided the funds for the construction of the turnpike.

Tickets will not be sold in advance. The motorist, on entering the turnpike, will be handed a ticket showing the point and time of his arrival on the highway. On leaving, the attendant at the interchange will collect the ticket, and the amount due, which is provided on the face, and stamp the time of departure.

Long lines of automobiles were on hand at the Carlisle interchange long before the midnight hour, each driver anxious to be one of the first officially to enter the turnpike from the eastern terminus.

Carlisle Provides Folders

Souvenir folders were handed to each motorist, specifically printed for the occasion, identifying the driver as the "first," the "second" and so on up to the "thousandth" motorist to enter or to leave the turnpike.

George I. Chadwick, secretary of the Carlisle Chamber of Commerce, and several hastily recruited business men, stood beside the toll-takers to give away the souvenirs, which described Carlisle as the "eastern terminus" of the turnpike, and which was decorated with special stamps.

Starting at 8:30 a. m. Tuesday, a staff of twelve girls of the Carlisle High School band, attired in natty green and white uniforms, handed out the souvenirs.

Turnpike Open; $1.50 Toll Charge

Dedication Not Set; Pay When Leaving; Round Trip For Passenger Cars, $2.25

The Pennsylvania Turnpike was officially opened to the motoring public Tuesday morning at one minute past midnight, just twenty-three months after the first ground was broken to start construction.

The Turnpike Commission meeting at Harrisburg Monday afternoon made the announcement of the opening of the 160-mile stretch which connects Harrisburg and Pittsburgh. At the same time, the commission announced the toll rates for all types of motor vehicles.

The tolls are:

Passenger cars, $1.50 for full route, and $2.25 for round trip good for thirty days; Trucks, $3 to $10, dependent on weight and type of vehicle.

Buses will pay on the basis of seating capacity, but exact rates were not immediately announced.

For trips of less than the entire distance, passenger cars will be charged on an approximate pro rata basis of a cent a mile while trucks will approximate from two cents to six cents a mile on partway trips.

Payment Upon Leaving

Collections of toll fares is necessary to retire $40,800,000 worth of bonds sold to the RFC, which amount together with an outright grant of $29,250 by FWA, provided the funds for the construction of the turnpike.

Tickets will not be sold in advance. The motorist, on entering the turnpike, will be handed a ticket showing the point and time of his arrival on the highway. On leaving, the attendant at the interchange will collect the ticket, and the amount due, which is provided on the face, and stamp the time of departure.

Long lines of automobiles were on hand at the Carlisle interchange long before the midnight hour, each driver anxious to be one of the first officially to enter the turnpike from the eastern terminus.

Carlisle Provides Folders

Souvenir folders were handed to each motorist, specifically printed for the occasion, identifying the driver as the "first," the "second" and so on up to the "thousandth" motorist to enter or to leave the turnpike.

George I. Chadwick, secretary of the Carlisle Chamber of Commerce, and several hastily recruited business men, stood beside the toll-t
