Institute Speaker

Dr. Smith was educated at the University of Manchester, England, and he has a degree of Ph.D. from that institution.

During the World War he received the King's Medal and the thanks of Parliament for establishing and supervising war relief work on the Isle of Man.

Dr. Smith is a citizen of the United States and has resided here since 1919. He is one of the oldest and best known broadcasters in the Mid-West and with Bill Hay he started the Radio Round Table. For many years he wrote a daily column for the Chicago Daily News on social subjects. He has successively been minister, sociologist, radio commentator and lecturer, and is ranked as one of Chicago's outstanding speakers.

Town To Be Host To Convention

throughout the county and a list of committee chairmen appears in the last paragraph of this notice.

The list of speakers scheduled for the convention includes many names well known throughout the United States. The topics are of exceptional interest and the convention shows promise of being unusually attractive to those who are history-minded.

The two-day session will begin with a luncheon at the Nittany Lion Inn, State College, at 12:30 o'clock Friday, with S. K. Stevens, of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission as chairman. Addresses will be given beginning at 2:30 o'clock in the Liberal Arts building on the campus. From 4 to 5:30 p. m. a tea for women delegates will be held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Asa L. Martin, State College.

The annual convention dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m. at the Nittany Lion, with the Association president, Dr. Martin, presiding. At 9 p. m. the Council of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission will meet.

Saturday will be "Bellefonte Day" for convention delegates. After a business session in the Liberal Arts building, State College, at 9:30 a. m. the delegation will come to Bellefonte for a luncheon at the Penn. Belle Hotel at 12:30, sponsored by the County Historical Society.

Mr. Meek will preside at the luncheon, and three prominent Bellefonte residents will give brief talks on the lives of Bellefonte's three governors. Judge Ivan Walker will speak on incidents in the life of Governor Andrew Crest Curtin; John G. Love will outline Governor James A. Beaver's life, and J. Thomas Mitchell has selected Governor Daniel H. Hastings' life as his topic.

At 2:30 the meeting will adjourn to enable convention-goers to visit the County Library building, and to make a tour of the scenic and historic places for which the Bellefonte area is so widely known.

Mr. Meek reports that tickets for the luncheon at the Penn. Belle Hotel will be 75 cents each.

Local membership chairmen from whom memberships in the County Historical Association may be obtained, are as follows: Bellefonte, Mrs. Robert Mills Beach; Pleasant Gap, Mrs. George Magargal; State College, Harry A. Letzell; Stormstown, Mrs. Robert Gray; Snyder, Mrs. Miriam Berk; Ballymore, Dr. B. M. Herrmann; Pine Grove Mills, Mrs. J. Will Kepler; Millheim, Mrs. J. Randall Miller; Rebersburg, Mrs. Mary M. Abbott; Centre Hall, Mrs. Frank V. Goodhart; Snow Shoe, Miss Zoe Meek; Phillipsburg, Miss Caroline Hale; Port Matilda, Prof. H. A. Alshouse; Unionville, Eugene Hall; Milesburg, Miss Ella Levy; Howard, Mrs. Joseph Caseman; Eagleville, Mrs. Josephine Dyer; Buffalo Run, Miss Myrtle Selzer; and Aaronsburg, Mrs. John Forster.

The large edifice was crowded to capacity with uniformed firemen from Bellefonte and many surrounding towns and cities, and by hundreds of friends of the family and of the local firemen. Every seat in the stately building was taken, and all aisles, with the exception of the center one, were full. Additional hundreds, unable to find space in the church, stood respectfully on the steps and sidewalk outside during the service.

Profound silence reigned through the solemn ritual for the dead of the Catholic church, and at the conclusion the Rev. Mr. Downes, speaking through a specially installed speaker system, stated that he would depart from custom to pay special tribute to Joe.

"There are two kinds of soldiers," the rector declared. "There are the soldiers of war who protect our lives and our property in times of strife. There are soldiers of peace who protect our lives and property in peace time. Those are our firemen," the speaker said.

"The deceased in whose memory we are assembled here was a true soldier of peace, and his death in line of duty is no less worthy of honor than that of the soldier who dies in battle."

Father Downes pointed out that while DeLallo had not died in actual fire fighting, he had lost his life in training to fit himself to render the utmost in service to any who might be in danger of loss of life or property through fire or other catastrophe. There is little or no distinction between the two, he said.

The rector spoke feelingly of his long personal association with the deceased; of his vital interest in protecting the lives and possessions of his fellow man, and of his unflinching courage in time of danger. In conclusion he bespoke for the we are assembled here, was a true deceased an everlasting peace. "Be not sorrowful, friends," he concluded, "for Joe will live again and some day you shall meet him face to face."

Slowly, sorrowfully the hundreds of firemen filed from the church, formed in ranks ahead of the funeral coach for the march to the cemetery. Close relatives, including DeLallo's widow and his aged mother, his brothers and sisters were escorted to cars for the short ride to the church cemetery on East Bishop street.

The procession moved slowly away to a funeral march by the Bellefonte American Legion and Auxiliary Junior Band, under the direction of Olin Butt.

At the cemetery the throng assembled around the grave while the brief last rites were said. As the casket descended slowly to its last resting place, surrounded by a veritable mountain of flowers, many a stalwart fireman wept openly and unashamed.

Hundreds Visit Home
All day Friday, while the body was at the DeLallo home on East Logan street, a steady stream of visitors called to pay their last respects. That night more than 150 Bellefonte firemen visited the residence in a body. During the day and night, a guard of honor from the Undine Company, in dress uniform, stood at the door.

While services were in progress Saturday morning, most stores and business places in Bellefonte closed their doors. The flag in front of the Undine House, across the street from the Catholic church, remained draped in mourning until after the funeral. Social activities at the Undine House, terminated with the news of DeLallo's death, did not resume until Monday night.

Many flowers reported that nearly 120 individual floral displays were sent to the DeLallo home—more than for any other funeral in recent years except that of Frank Wetzlar, of Milesburg.

Hundreds Attend DeLallo Funeral

putable evidence of the blow suffered by the community in the tragic mishap.

In the history of Bellefonte the funeral will stand out as one of the largest and most touching ones in the recollection of the community's oldest inhabitants.

The funeral service began promptly at 10 a. m. when the Widows' funeral car arrived in front of the church. As uniformed members of the Undine Fire Company stood at attention on both sides of the steps leading from the sidewalk to the church door, the casket was borne into the edifice by six casketbearers, all members of the Undine Company and all in dress uniform. The bearers were: Chief John Gillen, Paul Emerick, Charles Saxton and Vincent Flynn, all members of the ladder team who had been present when their comrade was killed; and James Carpeno and Edward Kern.

During the ceremony in the church the casket reposed in front of the altar, with lighted candles at each end. Flowers were not included in the Catholic funeral service.

Other survivors include these brothers and sisters: George DeLallo, of Hazleton; Mrs. John Vettec, of Oaklyn, N. J.; Mrs. Joseph Caldwell, of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. Mark Worrick, of Pleasant Gap; Angelo, of Jersey Shore; Peter, Anthony and Mrs. Paul Saxton, all of Bellefonte.

Third Violent Death
Joseph is the third member of the DeLallo family to meet a violent death. His father, the late Nicholas DeLallo, was killed in a fall of rock at the Chemical Lime Company quarries here in 1926. Joseph's brother, Samuel DeLallo, was killed by a fall of stone in the quarries of the American Lime and Stone Company in 1918.

Undine Statement
In a statement given to the newspapers, Undine officers expressed their appreciation and respect for the former chief as follows:

"Through Joe's fine work as a rescue man and ladder expert, nearly every fire chief and fire company in Pennsylvania knew of him. Many fine telegrams from sincere men of the departments expressing their sorrow were received.

"The loss of Joe to the Bellefonte fire department has been one of the saddest events ever to occur in the department's history. As assistant chief he had the final honor of officiating at two fires on Monday and Wednesday before the accident and both fires he handled in excellent order.

"The Undine Fire Company can not fully express its gratitude to the fellow firemen from other cities for the sympathy and sincerity they have shown Joe. May every fireman in the state rest assured that every possible angle of this accident will be checked before a statement as to its cause can be given."

Hundreds of Firemen

Among the more than 400 firemen, most of them in uniform, who attended the funeral were members of the following companies: Undine and Logan Companies, Bellefonte; Pleasant Gap Fire Company; Hand-in-Hand and Hope, No. 2, both of Look Haven; Phillipsburg Fire Department; Fame, Junction, Brooklyn and Henderson companies, all of Lewistown; Burnham company, Yeagerston company, Clearfield and Huntingdon companies. In addition, the chief of the Crescon company and firemen and officers from many other departments in this area were present.

4 Children Survive
Joseph DeLallo was a son of the late Nicholas DeLallo and Mrs. Flora DeLallo, of East Beaver street, and was born in Bellefonte on March 5, 1905, making his age at time of death 35 years, 6 months, and 28 days. He is survived by his wife, the former Arlene Alterio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Alterio, of Pleasant Gap, and four children: Joan, Nancy, Nicholas and Ethel, all at home.

Other survivors include these brothers and sisters: George DeLallo, of Hazleton; Mrs. John Vettec, of Oaklyn, N. J.; Mrs. Joseph Caldwell, of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. Mark Worrick, of Pleasant Gap; Angelo, of Jersey Shore; Peter, Anthony and Mrs. Paul Saxton, all of Bellefonte.
