

MILESBURG

Mrs. W. S. Walker returned home on Thursday evening from a two weeks vacation spent in Pittsburgh Ligonia and Tyrone.

Mr. Del. Shearer and Miss Louise Walker motored to Harrisburg on Friday where they were united in marriage. After a brief trip through Virginia they returned to the Walker home Sunday evening leaving Monday morning for New Alexandria where Mr. Shearer is in business with his father, and where they will go to housekeeping. Our sincerest congratulations are extended to this estimable young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grenninger and son-in-law, daughter, and two grandchildren of Lockport Heights were Sunday callers at the George Smith home. Other guests at the Smith home were Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert King and two sons of Valley View.

Don't forget the Bingo party at the firemen's hall every Friday night, nice prizes and lots of fun.

The Gulf gas station at Central City is being opened by Miles and James Holt. Your patronage will be appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith of Curwensville were Sunday callers at the home of Mrs. Roy Hall and family.

BE NONCHALANT

Your world may be in a turmoil. And then at times you are peeved. Put on a brave front, and smile. Don't wear your heart on your sleeve.

Just keep all your troubles hidden. For the world doesn't seem to care. Put on a brave front and smile. Walk along with a nonchalant air.

To you your troubles are tragic. To others they don't mean a thing. You might just as well laugh as cry.

Then your troubles might take wings.

For troubles have been mans lot. Ever since the world began. And every one has their share. They were woven into life's plan.

Bank Completes Interior Changes

tion of the building was rebuilt to match the architecture of the bank building, and the entire first story devoted to the new quarters for the Trust Department. At the front is the private office of the Trust officer's consultation and conferences. Next to the front, and connected by a wide opening with the main lobby of the bank, is the space for the Assistant Trust officer, with a wicket and counter work, similar to the teller's equipment for the Trust Department's money transactions. Next, toward the rear, is a new vault for the safe keeping of Trust records. This vault is built with walls, floor, and ceiling that will qualify for the highest rating as a burglar proof vault, so that when the bank's present burglar proof vault is filled by expansion of the bank's needs, the new trust record vault can be made burglar proof by the installation of only a new burglar proof door. At the rear of this trust portion of the building is a work room to house the accounting and clerical work of the Trust Department.

Board Acts To Aid BHS Band

Breon, of State College, now teaching music part time in the Spring Mills school, will be retained as a full time teacher by the Spring Mills school, but will spend up to three days each week in the Bellefonte schools, instructing prospective band members.

Under this arrangement a total of $702 of Mr. Breon's salary will be paid through State appropriation, while the $7.50 instruction fee from each prospective band member will be sufficient, it is believed, to pay the remainder of the instructor's salary. Under this plan the cost to the school district is expected to be negligible.

As new players become familiar with their instruments they will be absorbed into the band, but their instruction will continue throughout the school year. There will be no additional charge for this instruction, the $7.50 fee covering all charges to the student. It is hoped to obtain between 25 and 35 new members in the band, and the number of days Mr. Breon will spend weekly in instruction here will depend upon the number of students in the class.

In compliance with a request by Governor Arthur James, the schools of Bellefonte will be closed all day, Wednesday, October 16, when all men from 21 to 35 years of age will be required to go to the polls to register for conscription. The purpose of closing the schools is twofold: to release from normal duties persons of registration age, and to lend moral support to the United States' efforts to provide adequate national defense.

The Junior organization of the Bellefonte Woman's Club was granted permission to use the high school gymnasium for a Halloween dance, October 31, and the Bellefonte High School Alumni Association was granted use of the gym for a similar purpose Friday evening, October 25.

The board passed a resolution asking the County Commissioners and Borough Council to exonerate the school property from county and borough tax in the event a holding company for the school building is formed. Normally the holding company would be liable to payment of taxes, although schools and school property are tax free.

The board moved to ask the solicitor for an opinion as to how the school district may include its $55,000 bond issue as well as a $14,000 bond issue which may be renewed in the holding corporation's fund for a new building. Because of legal requirements there is some doubt as to how the district can turn over its money to the fund expected to be provided by the holding corporation.

Fire Victim Succumbs Here

rouching his wife told her to follow. After Hanley carried the child downstairs and placed her on the grass outside he discovered that his wife had not come out of the house. Returning to the building he found her at the head of the steps, her nightgown badly charred. She was rushed to the hospital, where hopes were held for her recovery until shortly before death ensued.

Centre County Coroner Charles Shecker, of Milesburg, conducted an investigation, but deemed an inquest unnecessary. He certified that death had been accidental. The fire at the Hanley home was confined to the living room.

Eleanor Waugh Hanley was a daughter of Karl T. and Emma Spritzley Waugh and was born at Beloit, Mich., on January 1, 1914, making her age at time of death 26 years, 9 months and 3 days. Surviving are her parents, her husband, one daughter, and a brother, Charles M. Waugh, of Princeton, N. J.

Funeral services were held in Washington, D. C., on Monday, followed by interment in that city.

65-Foot Ladder Falls; Fireman Fatally Hurt

tions; then continued upward and checked the catches between the second and third sections. Completing the inspection he continued on up the silvery web, coming to a halt four rungs from the top.

Waves to Crowd

There he hooked one leg around a rung, waved to the crowd below and appeared to have no indication of the threatening danger. As horrified spectators watched the giant ladder began to swing sideways to the right. DeLallo shifted his weight, a customary practice in ladder work to overcome swinging. But the ladder did not spring back into position.

One eye-witness said: "The ladder continued moving to the right, slowly. It seemed like minutes passed and the return swing firemen expected did not develop. Instead the ladder continued down. Joe appeared not to be alarmed, apparently feeling that the ladder would spring back into a vertical position. But the drop continued until the upper part of the ladder was almost horizontal, with most of the bend just above the first section.

Rail Snaps

"Suddenly," the witness continued, "the rail on the outer side of the curve gave way under the strain. The upper half of the ladder, cut from its main support, plunged 35 feet to the ground with DeLallo still clinging to the rungs.

"His head struck violently and he was still," the eyewitness concluded.

After the rail snapped the upper section of the ladder was supported only by the inner rail which did not extend except to keep that end of the ladder from falling. During the descent of the ladder remained firmly in place, held by the ground crew consisting of Merrill Waite and Wilbur Coder, who held supporting poles, and Albert Krinsky, Sr., Harry Davis, John O'Leary and Paul Emertio, who kept the foot of the ladder in place.

Coder, standing out from the ladder with the supporting pole, narrowly escaped being struck by the upper end as it crashed earthward. DeLallo was placed in the E. E. Widdowson ambulance, which had accompanied the Undines to Lewisburg and was rushed to the Lewisburg hospital, where he died without regaining consciousness.

Crowd Is Stunned

In the throng of spectators watching the exhibition was DeLallo's wife. While the ladder was falling and after the crash, spectators, stunned, stood horror-stricken for a moment before realizing fully what had happened. Members of the ground crew lowered the broken ladder immediately and aided in placing the comrade in the ambulance. The ground crew and other firemen in the area were powerless to aid when the ladder began its fatal swing.

Undines "Carry On"

The tragedy cast a pall over the remainder of the convention. The marching unit, chosen by State Firemen to lead the mammoth parade, decided to carry on despite the accident, officers expressing their belief that "Joe would have wanted us to go on with the show." Members of DeLallo's family and officials of other fire companies encouraged the marching unit to appear in the parade.

Bells of the Lewistown fire houses tolling at the Undines, their flag draped in mourning, passed by. Many other marching organizations carried flowers out of respect for the tragedy. Restaurants, fire houses and other public places in town tolled money containers for the deceased's bereaved family. Most of the fire companies which won prizes in the parade turned over the money to the family.

Premontion

DeLallo may have had a premonition of impending disaster, according to a fellow Undine with whom Joe made the journey to Lewistown that morning. "I'll be glad when this is over," Joe is quoted as having said to the friend. A few moments before the exhibition, DeLallo accompanied E. E. Widdowson to a restaurant for a cup of coffee. After giving Widdowson his personal belongings, DeLallo made arrangements to return to Bellefonte as a passenger in the ambulance.

While the Mifflin County Coroner investigated the accident, the broken ladder was carefully inspected by firemen and by others, in an effort to determine the cause of the accident.

Ladder Inspected

Brought to Bellefonte the following day, the ladder was taken to a private garage. Sunday afternoon officials of the Undine company reconstructed the accident while photographs were taken. The ladder was then inspected minutely for flaws, and each section was carefully photographed. It is possible that the ladder may be sent to a laboratory for complete tests of the tensile strength of its various parts, it was indicated yesterday.

Undine officials report that representatives of the company, which recently used the new set of aluminum ladders to the local firemen, have offered to replace the broken ladder free of charge.

Name Members For Draft Board

Superintendent of Schools F. Glenn Rogers, and County Commissioners Charles F. Hipple, Fred C. Mensch, and Harry V. Keeler.

Meanwhile the County Commissioners, who are charged with carrying out the registration throughout the county next Wednesday, October 16, have set up the necessary machinery to gather facts on the thousands of Centre county men between the ages of 21 and 35 years who are eligible for the forthcoming draft.

All judges of election throughout the county have indicated their willingness to serve as registrars without pay during the day, and most of the other election officers also have agreed to serve.

In most of the precincts the election board will be aided by volunteer registrars, the total number in the larger districts totaling up to ten registrars, and in the smaller ones, five or six.

The necessary forms will be filled out on a typewriter, or in printing, by the registrars.

At Penn State College, eligible members of the student body will be registered by a board of 75 persons in charge of Edward Hilbman, the registration being scheduled to be made in the College armory.

A special registration board will visit the Centre County Hospital to register any men patients within the age limits.

At Rockview prison and at the County Jail the wardens are charged with registering eligible inmates when they are discharged from custody. As prisoners they are not considered as being eligible at this time, but will become so on their release.

Registration places will be provided with tables and chairs instead of the customary voting booths. Everything connected with the registration is being done free of charge.

The polls will open at 7 a. m. and will close at 9 a. m. Eligible men are asked to register in the precinct where they live, if possible, but they may register in any other precinct if necessary. Any person unable to register for any sound reason on October 16 is charged with the duty of registering at the first possible opportunity after October 16th. At that time he will be compelled to give a valid reason why he did not register on the 16th.

The precinct registration boards are given the responsibility of getting all registration cards, unused supplies and other material into the Commissioner's office on the day following registration. The Commissioners will hold the cards intact until they are turned over to the county draft boards.

Severe penalties are provided for failure to register.

In order to complete final arrangements for registration the County Commissioners yesterday announced that the regular Friday meeting of the board this week will not be held. This announcement is made to prevent disappointment to persons having business to transact with the Commissioners.

In each precinct the registrations will be taken at the regular polling places.

respective lists for two new garments for a child or adult. These donations are utilized in the community distributed through the school, Red Cross, and State nurses, and other authorized channels of public service.

There has been a reorganization of the Needlework Guild this year. The former officers who served so long and efficiently expressed a wish to hand down their work to the Reading Club, a group of Bellefonte women who have met once a week for the past five years and who agreed to cooperate in this worthwhile project. For that reason persons who have been listed in pre-vious years may find themselves on the lists of new directors, but their help is requested just as formerly. Anyone who wishes to give and who may not yet be on the list, is asked to get in touch with the secretary, Mrs. Hugh M. Quigley.

Officers of the Bellefonte branch of the Needlework Guild for 1940 are as follows: Mrs. W. Fred Reynolds, president; Mrs. W. W. Sieg, vice president; Mrs. Hugh M. Quigley, secretary; and Mrs. John G. Love, treasurer.

There were 761,567 visitors to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park of Tennessee-North Carolina during 1939.

Aged Methodist Minister Dies

The Rev. William Moses, 93, pastor of the Third Street Methodist church at Williamsport in 1884 and 1885, retired Methodist clergyman who served his denomination 58 years, passed away Sunday at his home in Camp Hill. His death was sudden as he had been active as usual Saturday and was stricken during the night. Three sons and a daughter survive.
