Cooking Schools Are 90 Years Old!

After 90 years, women are still going to cooking schools—more anxious than ever to learn new methods that will release them from women's age-old drudgery. The picture above shows a typical group at a 1940 electric cooking class.

The first public cooking school of which there is record was that of James Sharp of England who gave a lecture in 1850, demonstrating his cooking theories by roasting a large quantity of meat and cooking vegetables, puddings and pies.

Today's all-electric cooking schools are a far cry from that early one conducted by Mr. Sharp. They are conducted by trained home economists who present tested recipes for varied, well-balanced meals. The cooking directions they give are definite—for definite results.

Each year thousands of women eagerly flock to electric cooking schools all over the country, keen to learn all they can about the new cooking methods that have done so much to free them from the old forms of cooking drudgery.

One of the first converts to the electric stove was Mrs. Etate Rohrer who, as early as 1897, became enthusiastic over this method of cooking. Mrs. Rohrer, cook book author and teacher of Fanny Farmer, was the first person to give specific measurements and directions for cooking. The modern housewife's thanks should go to this lady who deplored the carelessness of such terms as "a pinch of this," "a small cupful of that," and "bake until brown." Her directions were accurate and definite.

It was largely through her methods that cooking began to emerge from the chance stage, and became the definite science that it is today. And it was to keep pace with accurate recipe directions that oven controls and automatic temperature control were added to the modern range. Today, housewives use measured ingredients in mixing a dish—and measure time and heat in cooking it.

Today's housewife, who has an electric range in her kitchen, nonchalantly enjoys a cooking success her Mother and Grandmother would never have thought possible. And she has leisure to devote to other activities besides housework—time to make herself a well-read charming personality.

Broiler Suggestions

Don't forget that you can toast bread for the entire family on the broiler rack of your electric range—a good thing to remember when you're doing chicken a la king or creamed asparagus on toast.

Speaking of broiling, scientists tell us that broiling or broasting requires four times as much energy as standing. The broilers of the modern electric ranges are planned to conserve energy—they're waist-high and convenient to use—no bending is necessary.

FARM CALENDAR

Timely Reminders From The Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture

Avoid Farm Accidents—With increased use of mechanical equipment on farms there has come a rise in the number of accidents. Agricultural engineers of the Pennsylvania State College urge farmers to remove all hazards that they can and to observe safety precautions. Keeping the machines in good condition is a big help in preventing accidents.

Feed Starving Bees—Colonies of bees which do not have enough honey for feeding purposes will need to be fed. Sugar syrup is the material recommended by extension specialists of the Pennsylvania State College. White granulated sugar, 2 1/2 parts by volume, is dissolved in 1 part of water by volume, and fed on warm days.

Plan the Program—Planning the program is essential for the success of rural social affairs. Rural sociologists of the Pennsylvania State College urge assignment of responsibility for various phases of the program to different persons and providing some thing of interest to all who attend.

Manage Pullets Properly—To avoid a fall molt, the poultryman must manage his pullets to provide enough feed for production needs and to maintain body weight. Poultry specialists of the Pennsylvania State College call attention to the need of taking care of details.

Meet Vegetable Needs—Vegetables vary in their temperature and humidity requirements in storage. Meeting these needs will help the vegetables to keep longer, say Penn State vegetable gardeners.

Eat Apples for Health—Apples contain a number of health-giving properties which help people to keep well. Fruit specialists of the Pennsylvania State College say that there are varieties for every use.

MOTORIST SAVED BY PROMPT ACTION OF R. R. WATCHMAN

Prompt action and quick thinking on the part of Mrs. Edith Baughman, crossing watchman at Thirteenth street and also prompt action of Blaine Cowher, crossing watchman at Fourteenth street, prevented what might have been a very bad accident in Tyrone on Saturday night at 8:55 o'clock.

A gentleman driving a car with a Maryland license came up Thirteenth street, turned off on to Washington avenue, and straddled the railroad tracks, going down straddle of the tracks for about thirty feet, and was unable to get the car out.

Mrs. Baughman, sensing the danger and noting an approaching freight train coming down through East Tyrone yard, frantically blew her whistle and waved red lantern, attracting the attention of watchman, Blaine Cowher, at Fourteenth street, who succeeded in flagging the freight train at his crossing.

Several gentlemen in the vicinity, seeing the situation, came to the rescue of the Maryland man, lifted his car off the tracks, and he went on after thanking the group. In the excitement of the moment, it seems no one procured the man's name or number.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To Remove Cork

A cork may be pulled, when no corkscrew is at hand, by inserting two pieces of wire on opposite sides of the cork between the cork and the bottle. Then hold both wires and twist as you pull; the cork will come out readily. This same means can be employed by using two kitchen forks, inserting one prong of each fork instead of the wire.

Eating Onions

There are some people who like onions, but seem unable to digest them. However, if the onions are sliced, boiling water poured over them, and allowed to remain for two minutes, then plunged into ice water, the onions can be eaten without any after effects.

Window Boxes

Instead of allowing the window boxes to remain empty all winter, they can be made to look attractive with cedar or pine branches, adding a few sprigs of bittersweet to brighten them.

Giving Baby Medicine

When one is alone it is sometimes very difficult to give the baby medicine with tiny fists flying. Try wrapping him in a blanket with his hands down by his sides. In all probability he will be crying by that time; so just hold his nose for a second and pour the medicine into the open mouth. The operation will be over in a minute and baby will have received the full benefit of the medicine.

A Deodorant

Try placing a lump of sugar in the vase containing cut dahlias or chrysanthemums. This will prevent the unpleasant odor which the water usually takes on after a while.

Worn Typewriter Ribbons

When the letters produced by the printer at the heavy black letters show rather faint, fill a small oil can with olive oil and oil the ribbon with this while running it from one spool to another. Allow to stand for a day and you will be surprised how the ribbon is beginning to produce the next day.

Cooking Rice

Always be sure to wash rice before cooking. Put the rice into a strainer and wash in cold water, placing strainer over a bowl of water. Change the water and repeat three times, or until the water is clear.

Violet Talcum Powder

Violet talcum powder can be made by mixing 14 ounces of powdered talc, 2 ounces of powderedorris root, 1/2 ounce extract of cassia, 1/4 ounce of jasmine.

Stiffening Rugs

Rugs may be stiffened by stretching them tight and true and then tacking face down. Sprinkle the backs generously with a solution made by dissolving 1/4 pound of flake glue in 1/2 gallon of water. This should be prepared in a double boiler or a container surrounded by hot water. Allow the rug to dry for twenty-four hours.

Cement for Pipe Joints

A cement for steam and water pipe joints can be made by mixing 10 lbs. of yellow ochre, 4 lbs. ground litharge, 4 lbs. whitening, 1/2 lb. of hemp, cut up fine. Mix together with linseed oil to about the consistency of putty.

Sticking Drawers

Rub a little paste floor wax on the slides and also on the lower edges of the drawers themselves, and polish thoroughly. Unless vigorously rubbed, wax forms a sticky coating, but properly polished it forms a hard, smooth finish.

Tempering Knife Blades

To temper a knife blade, heat it evenly, turning carefully and fre-

STUDY OF SPANISH ATTRACTS STUDENTS

Growing interest in Latin America is reflected in a 30 per cent increase in number of students beginning the study of Spanish at the Pennsylvania State College. Professor Paul R. Daugherty reported that 260 students are enrolled in elementary Spanish this fall as compared with 195 last year. Upperclassmen accounted for much of the gain. The total Spanish enrollment has advanced from 370 to 438.

"Not only is there an increased interest in Spanish on the part of students planning commercial careers, but there is an accompanying cultural impetus to know more about our Latin American neighbors," said Professor Daugherty.

We often wonder whether the politicians believe one-half the things they say.
