THE WAR IN EUROPE

While the capture of Tobruk, like that of Bardia, enhances British military prestige and strengthens the English position in and around the Mediterranean, the war in Europe will not be determined by events in the Near East area.

The Italians, it may be said, are in desperate circumstances in Africa. Graziana's army has been cut to pieces. Unless heavily reinforced in men and materials it will come to disaster, ending Mussolini's dream of an empire.

The key to British success is control of the Mediterranean, which prevents effective assistance from Italy or Germany. The dive-bombing attack of German Stukas, upon British naval units, may preface an Axis effort to open a sea-lane to Libya. So far, there is no way to know whether the British fleet will relax its pressure.

Uncertainty in the Balkans

The Italians in Albania continue to suffer steady losses but the situation in the Balkans is so unsettled that nobody knows what may happen in Rumania the Germans face difficulty in disorders that may seriously affect oil supply and certainly will delay military moves until the internal situation is under complete control.

Bulgaria remains a question-mark but the general idea is that Soviet Russia disapproves of German penetration into that country and Turkey makes no secret of its intention to resist Nazi advances toward the Thracian frontier. This attitude confirms the opinion of some observers that the Soviet, while maintaining neutrality, is encouraging opposition to German acquisition of an all-powerful position.

Hitler Considers Strategy

Hitler's strategy in the present struggle has been to prevent having to fight on two fronts. First, that goal, it is said, he made up to Stalin, frowned upon war in the Balkans and concentrated upon war in the west. Italy's attack upon Greece and his adventure into Rumania may represent the deliberate reversal of initial strategy, made inevitable by failure to conquer the British Isles.

The failure of Germany to extend greater aid to the Italians may reflect Hitler's determination to confine his efforts to the main arena, where the result will settle the issue in other areas. Any deviation from this program will be a concession to Italian extremity, designed to prevent disintegration of morale which might cause Italy to drop out of the fight.

a large onion, cut it in such a way that the root remains on the left-over part. If this is done, the onion will not dry out, and can be saved for future use.

Dyeing

Dyeing and tinting the garments in the washing machine will give a more even color effect than if done by hand. This method also does a more effective job of stirring.

Loose Tiles

If the floor or fireplace tiles become a little loose, fix them immediately before they are kicked out and lost. A little plaster of Paris mixed with vinegar to a paste should be smeared on the loose tiles, and tiles can then be cemented into place. Do not walk on the tiles until they are dry.

Lemon Juice Polish

A few drops of lemon juice dropped on black or tan shoes followed by a brisk rubbing with soft cloth will give a splendid polish.

Paper Label

The paper label on a bottle can be readily removed by first wetting it and then holding it near a flame of the stove.

POMONA GRANGE NEWS

Centre County Pomona Grange No. 13 met Saturday, January 18, with Logan Grange in their hall at Pleasant Gap with an attendance of nearly 200 patrons.

The morning session was presided over by the Worthy Pomona Master, L. E. Biddle, and consisted of the regular routine of business. The auditor's report of all Grange activities and the Fair Association for 1940 was given. The following were elected members of the Fair Association: George Ralston, V. A. Aumiller, Frank Keller, Henry Zerby, Harry Fisher, G. E. Ardrey, Ralph Blaney, Victor Brungard, and Robert Reed.

The address of welcome was given by Joseph Owens, master of Logan Grange, and the response by Harry Leathers, of Howard Grange.

The afternoon session opened with singing in charge of Mrs. John Furl and Ernest Frank. Pearl Biddle, Juvenile deputy of Centre county, had charge of the Juvenile program. Progress Juvenile gave a play entitled "Alice Becomes a Good Girl" directed by Mr. Grace Sweetney. Spring Mills Juvenile directed by Mrs. Straub, presented a tap dancing number and guitar music with two songs, "Playmates" and "Sunshine." Marion Juvenile gave a reading, "The Orphan Boy."

Pennsylvania's Historic Trees

Young hunters and sent the late Colonel Coleman K. Sober of Lewisburg on a 23-mile "initiation" hike through the snow and over the rocks to get "Old Lame Legs," a particularly ugly and cantankerous black bear. Colonel Sober got the bear and was made a member of the Hall hunting camp on Rock Run.

"Lame Legs was a third larger than any bear I ever saw," the Colonel, who was the world's champion trick shot once declared to a friend, "and despite his partly paralyzed hind legs, due to an old bullet in the spine, could travel faster than most bears in perfect condition."

A Sugar Valley Tragedy

Of tragic interest among hunters' trees is the old dead chestnut in Sugar Valley, Clinton county, long used by Jake Karstetter, the celebrated Civil War sharpshooter. Going to his tree, which was close to a favorite deer crossing, he saw what appeared like a half grown black bear in the crotch.

Thinking that the bear had gone up there to drop down on a fawn something, however, very rarely done by bears, he aimed and fired. There was a piercing scream, so terrible old people say that it riled the waters of Fishing Creek. A young boy, rifle in hand, dropped from the branches and was dead before the frenzied Jake could get to his side.

"My eyesight is exceptional," he told Judge Burnside and jury, at his trial in Lock Haven for manslaughter, "but this time I admit I made a bad mistake."

Knowing the old timber's harmless, fatherly propensities, the 12 "good and tried men" acquitted him without leaving the box. But the incident left Jake an embittered and soured man.

A Novel Honeymoon

Colonel Noah Parker rigged up a bark house on his favorite watch tree at the Great Salt Lick in Potter county and spent part of his honeymoon high up in the branches of a giant beech tree with his lovely child wife. The Colonel was only out to kill deer and when the bears frolicked below, the pretty little bride would spatter the clowning brum's eyes and nose with tur-

by Mary Bartley, Walker Juvenile directed by Mary Vonada, gave a play, "Mother Mothering and the Quints," and song "America." Howard Juvenile, under direction of Edna Holt, gave a recitation "New Year," recitation "New Year's Prayer," play, "The City Cousins," recitation, "Good Intentions," and play, "Going Somewhere." Logan Juvenile, Pearl Biddle, matron, presented a two step and a play "Going to Market."

A question forum was then held with questions relating to Grange Fair and Grange work. Two dramatized recitations, with Joseph Owens as reader, entitled "The Old and New Year," and resolutions for each month of the year, were presented.

The worthy lecturer, Phoebe Cronister, had on display thirteen different kinds of bread. Mayne Harpster gave a talk on bread.

The opening of the evening session was a question and answer period on the State Grange sessions held at Wilkes-Barre, by the patrons who attended State Grange.

Two one-minute plays by five boys, entitled "Over Worked" and "A Hospital Scene," and songs were next on the program. Brother Sankney of Blair county gave a brief talk. Nine candidates were instructed in the mysteries of the fifth degree.

Blair County Preacher Killed

Weyant, who came down the hill next, applied his brakes, which sent his car skidding into the rear end of McGraw's car. The minister then got out of his machine and walked to the front end to determine the damage, while another car operated by James H. Himes, 37, of South Lakemont, was approaching from the same direction.

Himes told Hoover he was going about 20 miles an hour, saw the traffic snarl and also Weyant as he was walking along the road, but a string of oncoming autos caused him to swerve to the right in order to avert a collision. The slippery road sent his auto skidding, first into a car in the opposite lane, operated by Thomas G. Peoples, Blair county register and recorder, then side-swiping Weyant's automobile and finally pinning the pastor-teacher against McGraw's machine.

Orchids from a Holly Grower

Ordinarily we don't go in for owner-testimonials. But every now and then, along comes a letter that so perfectly portrays the way Buick owners feel about their cars that we haven't the heart to keep it from you.

Here, for example, we quote from Mr. Ambrose Brownell, English holly grower of Milwaukie, Ore., who wrote to his dealer:

"... When I drove that '41 SUPER out of Flint . . . and started a circle trip home . . . I jotted down each gas purchase and mileage to sort of figure my expenses . . ."

"It wasn't long before I got suspicious of something wrong . . . The gas gauge needle just didn't go down fast enough . . ."

"But, Roy, all the way home it was the same story. The Buick wormed through miles of city traffic . . . made numberless stops to inquire directions, purred along in sizzling heat that made my feet feel like two fried eggs, breezed over the Rockies at 9,000 elevation . . . and finally fairly stole home through the sinuous Columbia Gorge . . ."

"Statistics? Of course, 3,200 miles; 165 gallons . . . Ethyl gas; 19.51 miles per gallon; gas expense—17/100¢ per mile; total out-of-pocket expense—128/100¢ per mile."

"... Roy, I'm glad I bought a Buick."
